Margaret Mangan the News
Oh, Susannah Is the Song
Can't We Save Ourselves?
First Voting Quadruplets

By Arthur Brisbane

Because of the sudden death of J. W. Byrns, Speaker of the House, regretted by many old friends of all political affiliations, Congress will postpone adjournment. A recess will permit Republican members to attend the Cleveland convention.

All the usual news, and many interesting discussions in politics, crime, secret murder societies, European news, interest Americans, but the news really important to the human race has to do with Margaret Mangan, a widow, 73, and her son, William, 48, a paralytic.

As they were crossing the street, a heavy truck bore down on them. The mother, who might have escaped with ease, stood where she was, using her strength to push her paralytic son to safety. He was slightly hurt; she was crushed and killed.

And if she came back, she would do exactly the same thing again, under the same circumstances.

You can say that of many mothers, not of so many fathers.

Steps leading to choice seats on the Landon bandwagon are well worn already. Connecticut says "Landon only," intelligent Texans are climbing aboard, also gentlemen from Indiana. The country has stopped speculating about the Republican nominee now, it is Landon.

The remaining question is, "Who for Vice-President?" One thing is certain, whoever becomes Vice-President will remain Vice-President. Governor Landon is young, remarkably healthy, absolutely temperate. Nothing to hope for from delicate health or old age there.

Some politicians, without cooperation from the Republican candidate, have selected "Oh, Susannah" as the Republican "theme song" at the Cleveland convention. Perhaps you remember some of the words: "Oh, Susannah, Susannah, don't you cry." It is a good-natured song, not the most intellectual in the world, but better than "You've got to stop kicking my dog around." Perhaps you remember that one.

Why do Americans swallow eagerly anything in the way of foreign-made goods, especially if they come from the friendly British islands?

British merchants advertise proudly, "Made in Great Britain." Every Englishman urges, "Buy British." Americans seem proud if they can advertise, "Made in England," or "Made in France." Perhaps our goods are inferior, but every American makes his money here, why not back our own people?

Particularly amusing are the activities of a so-called "Oxford Group," busy here telling American pickpockets, alcoholics and others how to be "saved." You would like them to be saved, but why an "Oxford Group?"

Can you imagine how it would amuse the British if any Harvard, Yale or Princeton "movement" established itself in England, and told the English how to be saved?

The Keyes quadruplets—Mona, Roberta, Mary and Leota Keyes, 21 years old yesterday—will all vote together in November.

Never before have quadruplets lived, all four, long enough to vote. It will be interesting when the five Dionne girls reach 21, and march to the polls in Canada. Many that read this will not be here then, but may see the quintuplets, from above.

Serious anxiety in France, as the French President, Lebrun, calls on Leon Blum to form the first Socialist government that France has ever had. Europe, and conservative French, will watch closely the most radical government seen in France since the revolution.

Meanwhile, France is shipping gold out of the country, 53,000,000 francs worth on one ship, always a sign of national timidity.

At heart the French are conservative; even their "extreme radicals" are not of the harum-scarum type. Leon Blum, new premier, an educated, thinking man, may find a way to avoid the threatening "nation-wide strike."

But 300,000 are on strike already, and the trouble comes with the opening of the tourist season, a time most unfortunate for French hotels and shopkeepers.

Probe Woman's Mystery Death

2 CAMBRIDGE MEN NAMED BY SISTER

A secret investigation into the mysterious death of Miss Grace Lees, 50, of Cambridge, retired bank secretary, is being made by police, the Boston Evening American learned exclusively today.

The inquiry was prompted by insistent demands of Mrs. Marion Haration of 30 Upland road, a sister of the dead woman.

Miss Lees' scantily clad body was found at 11 a. m. on Memorial Day in the loft of a barn in the rear of Roseland street, Cambridge. The cause of death was dismissed at the time as due to natural causes—a verdict of Dr. David Dow, medical examiner.

Through her own detective work, Mrs. Haration told Chief of Police Timothy Leahy, three witnesses have been found who say that Miss Lees had been in the company of two men nearly all of Friday afternoon and evening.

MISSING COAT SOUGHT

One of the two men named is a relative of a man high in Cambridge political circles, Mrs. Haration declared.

Furthermore, she said, a coat that her sister had worn on Friday and which she was still wearing Friday night, apparently had vanished.

C. F. HURLEY WINS FIRST SKIRMISH

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Springfield, June 5—State Treasurer Charles F. Hurley scored today in the first test of strength for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

Supporters of Treasurer Hurley in the rules committee elected Charles F. J. Harrington of Watertown, committee chairman, with 19 votes, to 18 for Robert V. Lee of Boston, who was put forward by backers of Attorney-General Paul A. Dever.

Despite the slim margin of victory in this test, it was an important triumph for Hurley's forces, for the rules committee recommends the procedure on nominations.

The convention is expected to endorse Treasurer Hurley for Governor on the first ballot.

As the delegates met in the municipal auditorium, Hurley appeared supremely confident of his ability to win over Dever and Lieutenant Governor Joseph L. Hurley.

As far as Governor Curley is concerned his position is outwardly unchanged from the neutral attitude he had taken before leaving Boston but there is no doubt that, inwardly, he hopes something happens to the Charles F. Hurley drive.

TO NAME COOLIDGE

It was learned today that the name of Senator Marcus A. Coolidge will be placed before the convention informally by his son-in-law, Mayor Robert E. Greenwood of Fitchburg.

Knowing that Governor Curley controls the convention, as far as his own candidacy for the Senate is concerned, Greenwood will simply tell the delegates that Senator Coolidge will appreciate any votes that are cast for him.

The natural deduction from this is that Coolidge, or a candidate designated by him, will oppose Curley in the September primaries.

Greenwood is actively campaigning for Charles F. Hurley for Governor, declaring the state treasur-

Leading candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, Lieutenant-Governor Joseph L. Hurley, State Treasurer Charles F. Hurley and Attorney-General Paul A. Dever smile confidently at the pre-primary convention banquet, at Springfield. State Treasurer Hurley, according to political observers, is seen as the strongest candidate of the three.

The Senator

Behind the Scenes At Springfield

Springfield, June 5—The Senator is the leader of the flying wedge into the tap room at the Kimball when the gong rings this morning.

It is easy to see he has not had any more sleep than a scrub lady. In fact, The Senator looks like he has been mopping up all night.

He is still in his cap and gown and is all sprinkled with drippings of red fire.

Also, he has a bass drum.

The Senator

"My good fellow," says the Senator, shooting a slightly withered cuff, "I will have a large brandy with a raw egg, whole, a dash of bitters and a topping of tabasco. On the quick."

"Senator," says the lad behind the stick, "aren't you forgetting the mustard pickle?"

Jose, 76, Injured In Racing Sulky

Allen W. Jose, 76, of Menlo street, Brighton, was nearly killed today when he was pulled from the seat of a racing sulky at the Metropolitan Driving Club track, near Soldiers' Field, Brighton.

As it was, he suffered a possible fracture of the left leg and a number of cuts and bruises. The horse stumbled as he was trotting at a fast clip.

The jerk on the reins pulled Jose under the horse's hoofs. Police took Jose to St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Warm Wave Due, No Rain In Sight

It isn't exactly a heat wave that's coming, but the mercury is due for higher brackets tonight and tomorrow, the weather man said today.

There is little chance of rain, he added, much to the discouragement of gardeners.

The humidity was 44 per cent at 10 a. m., 26 degrees less than normal. The thermometer was in the seventies after a fairly cool night.

RIVAL PENSION GROUP PLANNED

Former high officers in the Townsend Plan organization have banded together to depose Dr. Francis E. Townsend and form a new national group, it was disclosed today.

Captain Charles M. Hawks, late manager of the Massachusetts division of Townsend Club, said that the leaders of the rebel faction are meeting in Rochester, N. Y., tomorrow.

Hawks is one of the rebels as is Robert E. Clements, co-founder of the Townsend Plan and its former national secretary.

"We's switching to backing the McGroarty Bill," Hawks declared. "We're all through with Townsend, and we'll have a new organization built up in no time."

Cambridge Youth Dies in Charles

A body, identified at the Northern mortuary as that of Daniel Cullinane, 27, of Pearl street, Cambridge, was found floating today in the Charles river, near the foot of Pleasant street, Cambridge.

Police said Cullinane had lost his job and was despondent. He left home early this morning and his body was seen in the river about four hours later by a gasoline station attendant. He was unmarried and lived at a lodging house conducted by a sister.

$2,875,000 IN PURCHASES LISTED IN CITY SUIT

Edmund L. Dolan, while city treasurer, won authorization to buy a total of $2,875,000 in bonds for the city through the Legal Securities Corporation.

This was testified today in superior court, where it is charged in the city's suit Dolan was the secret owner of that concern.

LISTS BOND DEALS

The charge was made in connection with the city's suit against Dolan and six others to recover $250,000 allegedly derived from improper transactions during Dolan's term as treasurer.

Named with Dolan as defendants are J. Walter Quinn, John F. Dever, Laurence Costello, Harold B. Stimson, Robert L. Emerson, and Frederick J. Reardon.

William B. Kenney, executive officer of the Boston Retirement Board, called to the witness stand today, produced records of securities transactions which Dolan, as city treasurer and treasurer of the board, was authorized by the board to handle.

CHARGES CONSPIRACY

On August 6, 1932, Dolan resigned as city treasurer, according to the witness, and no securities were bought throughout outside houses thereafter.

Purchases of bonds recommended by Dolan, as city treasurer, in 1930, totaled $1,400,000, it was read out in court from the board meeting records, $865,000 in 1931 and $610,000 in 1932.

Throughout Kenney's testimony and the reading of the bond transactions for which the board voted Dolan authorization to act, objections were fired by Attorney Thomas H. Mohony, counsel for Dolan and acting as chief defense

C. F. HURLEY AID NAMED HEAD OF RULES COMMITTEE

DEVER SUPPORTER BEATEN BY ONE VOTE MARGIN

NILAND TO FIGHT

Another successful move of the state treasurer's forces was the reorganization of the delegation from the Cape and Plymouth and Plymouth senatorial district.

Supporters of the state treasurer eliminated from convention committees anti-Charles Hurley men, chosen at a previous meeting a week ago. With 21 delegates voting, Stephen O'Brien of Barnstable, was chosen chairman of the delegation, the much coveted rules position going to James Frazier of Plymouth.

Prepared to battle an endorsement of the Roosevelt administration, former Represenative Thomas A. Niland, anti-Roosevelt delegate elected from East Boston, appeared destined to provoke the first major flare-up of the convention.

The resolutions committee had brought before the convention for adoption a plaform consisting of six typewritten pages, leading off with a plank recalling "with pride the achievements" of President Roosevelt, and contending that the administration measures have borne fruit in "marked improvement in the condition of the country."

BACKS PRESIDENT

The document challenged the opposition party to declare what Democratic measures it would wipe from the statute books, and heartily pledged the Democratic party of the state to the re-election of the President.

Bouquets were thrown at Senators Walsh and Coolidge, both absent from the convention.

Under the leadership of Governor Curley, the platform continued. Democratic officials have "accomplished a record worthy to be placed beside that of the party in the nation and completely in accord with its principles."

This state program, the document stated, has promoted business recovery together with greater social security and justice for all classes of citizens.

URGES EXPENSE CUT

The platform advocated:

1—Reduction in expenditures of government, state, county and municipal and a study of the problems of taxation, administration costs and revision of the governmental structure. The air sought to modify thesystem which takes a toll of 52.64 per cent of all taxation from real estate.

2—An investigation and study of the conditions and causes of unemployment in the state for the purpose of increasing employment in private business and industry.

3—Submission to the voters of a constitutional amendment for biennial sessions of the legislature.

BACK WAGE LAWS

7—Consideration of legislation for apportioning of that part of gasoline tax not used by state for highways purpose to cities and towns for road repair and construction work.

8—Daily registration of voters by city and town clerks, subject to approval of registrars of voters and mandatory ward and district registration.

11—Intervention of public authority to provide for slum clearance and rehabilitation.

14—Periodic re-enrollment of all voters in the political parties.

GLYNN TO SPEAK

15—One day rest in sevn for hotel and restaurant workers.

In conclusion the proposed platform condemned lynching, went on record against extending the suspension of the law prohibiting employment after 6 u. m. of women and minors in textile industry after the emergency is over, and advocated a re-tracing of the present councillor, senatorial and representative district lines

The opening of the convention followed a night of speech making, parades, conferences, feasting, a throwback to the colorful but discredited old political conventions.

Huge campaign signs were in profusion everywhere, the various hotels in particular giving evidence of the intensity of the contest being waged for the governorship endorsement.

With an announcement that Theodore Glynn, Roxbury court clerk, and political lieutenant, would make the nomination speech for Lieutenant-Governor Joseph L. Hurley, a report circulated swiftly through the various headquarters that the governor had abandoned his neutral position.

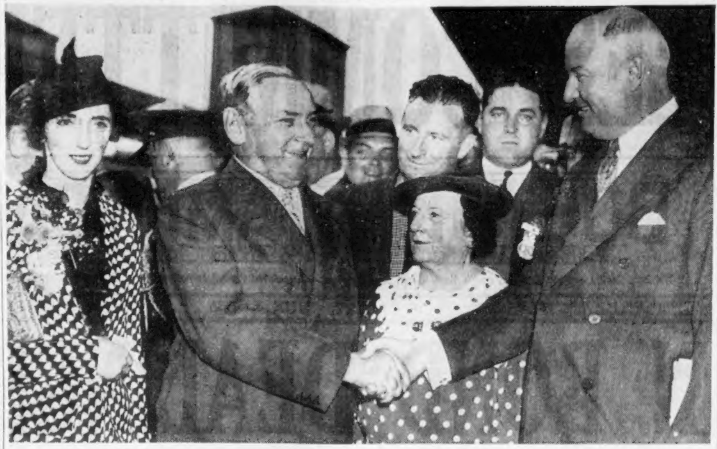
GLYNN DISCREDITS REPORT

Glynn, however, discredited the report by declaring that he has supported the lieutenant-governor's candidacy for some time and agreed to make the speech at Hurley's request.

Former Mayor William H. Henchey of Woburn, chairman of the Charles F. Hurley campaign committee, was named by the state treasurer as the man to present his name to the convention.

For the seconding speeches, he chose Joseph T. Lynch of Boston, and Miss Mary M. Boyle of Cambridge. Miss Boyle is past president of the Ladies Auxiliary, Ancient Order of Hibernians and the only women delegate to the convention from the candidate's home city.

State, National Democratic Chiefs Meet



MRS. DONNELLY GOV. CURLEY SADIE MALONE "JIM" FARLEY

Democratic hosts at the Springfield pre-primary convention vied in orations given Governor James M. Curley and Postmaster General Farley. Here's the Governor shaking hands with the New Deal generalissimo as the Governor's daughter, Mrs. Mary Curley Donnelly and Sadie Malone, treasurer of the State Democratic convention committee look on.

Boston political leaders ramed as floor managers by Treasurer Hurley for the Boston delegates pledged to his candidacy, were: John J. Dowd, president of the city council; J. Henry Smith of Brighton, school committeeman; Joseph W. McKenney, former Boston College football coach; Jeremiah H. McCarthy of East Boston; James Agnew, city councillor from Brighton; James Mellen, city councillor from Dorchester; David Lasker, former assistant district attorney, and former Representative Thomas Carr of Dorchester.

Attorney General P. A. Dever chose Representative Albert E. Morris of Everett to make his nomination speech, with Representative William P. Landragan of Lynn and Attorney Howard W. Shea of Holyoke, as seconders.

SENATORSHIP FIRST

Governor Curley gave no indication that he had changed his plan to leave the convention directly after his nomination as United States Senator to attend a wedding of a close friend of the family in New York.

While there was some talk of reversing the order of nominations starting with attorney general the rules committee, meeting to organize, indicated that the senatorship would be disposed of first.

The state treasurer has 22 of the 40 members of the rules committee pledged to his candidacy, and was prepared to elect Charles F. Harrington of Watertown as chairman of this committee. Harrington served in a similar capacity two years ago.

One of the biggest demonstrations of the night before banquet at the municipal auditorium, equaling in intensity the receptions given Postmaster General James A. Farley and Governor Curley, was accorded the state treasurer after a fighting speech in which lauded both Farley and the governor for their refusal to interfere in the governorship contest.

"We will have a good hard fight," he declared, "but we'll all be together when the time comes to face the enemy."

He pointed out that he, unlike other candidates, has been forced to seek higher office as he is finishing the three two-year terms allowed under the constitution. He called attention to the fine condition of the state credit with record low borrowing rates, and told of his fathering the idea of a central mortgage bank which later materialized in the firm of the home owners law.

He predicted that the slate of Charles F. Hurley for governor and James M. Curley for senator will win in November by a majority of 200,000.

TABLE BROKEN

The keynote address of the postmaster general was a disappointment to many in the [illegible] audience, owing probably to an off night for the deliverer of the address.

Starting the speech, the head table on the auditorium stage had to be hastily broken through because the microphones for broadcasting had been faulty in placement.

Farley contended that President Roosevent would be re-elected "by a majority so impressive that nobody in this country can have any doubt as to the faith of our people in the sincerity and ability of the Democratic administration to direct our affairs."

Speaking for the most part on the defensive, Farley made comparisons with conditions now and those four years ago and flayed the critics of the administration. He declared:

"The income taxes paid in this state indicate that, despite the moaning about dictatorship and prophecies of chaos ahead, the net income of your citizens has increased perhaps $200,000,000 over 1933."

NEW DEAL CLAIMS

Among other claims made by the postmaster general were: a steady rise in employment in this state of 10 per cent and payrolls averaging 26 per cent more than they were in 1933; 900 fewer failures in business here last year than in the year preceding the Democratic regime in Washington.

To the charges of waste and extravagance levelled at the national administration he said:

"They do not specify where this waste and extravagance is, conveying the impression that practically all the money expended in relief and emergency efforts is money thrown to the birds."

Farley professed to have no doubt that Massachusetts will go Democratic next November.

Governor Curley protested that "few men in the history of our country have been the target for greater abuses and villification than the present great leader of the nation."

The governor denied that the President was an enemy of the supreme court, saying that the President kept faith with the people through emergency measures during the greatest trial in the history of the country.

Under President Hoover, the governor asserted, the country had boasted to be "a nation conducted primarily for the welfare of the American people" but "an internationalized rule in which apparently, those in authority were more interested in preserving Europe than safeguarding the people of the American nation."

RAPS "RECOVERY DAY"

The governor was particularly outspoken in his criticism of the "recovery" exercises in Faneuil Hall, Boston, in commemoration of the supreme court's outlawing of the NRA.

Republican speakers predominated at this "Recovery Day" meeting to which former Governor Joseph B. Ely gave his hearty support.

"We are going to continue with him until economic security and justice through law is made possible for the most humble toiler in the world.

"If we could compare what is being spent to keep destitute Americans from starvation, and to uphold our business structure

STATE TREASURER'S FORCES SEE FIRST BALLOT VICTORY

with the waste involved in the suspension of thousands of banks and tens of thousands of other commercial failures during the dozen years of Republican rule, the amount possibly misspent under the present administration would seem like chicken feed."

ASSAILS COLONEL KNOX

Farley picked out Colonel Frank Knox, Chicago publisher and a G. O. P. candidate for the presidential nomination to assail, remembering the reaction which his "typical prairie state" fling against Governor Alfred M. Landon recently aroused.

The Postmaster General declared that he was probably "taking a chance" inasmuch as Colonel Knox had received the Republican vote recently in the New Hampshire primary.

Knox is enthusiastically in favor of keeping the farmers prosperous but is singularly silent as to how he would go about it, Farley said.

In summing up, the speaker also attacked Senator Dickinson of Iowa, another Republican in the presidential limelight, but neither of "these ambitious gentlemen," Farley declared, are saying anything of any importance. He continued:

"They are part of the campaign wildness of a party that is devoid of a legitimate issue and must beat the bushes for a candidate, while it resorts to generalities and fables for arguments."

State Chairman Joseph McGrath was given an enthusiastic welcome, praised by all the speakers for his organization work. McGrath got a "big hand" when he declared that he is a partisan through his position and that it is the duty of the chairman of all parties to look after members of their parties.

Attorney General Dever recited his record in office and contended that it is a record which will appeal to the banker and businessman as well as to the general public. He expressed confidence that he would be nominated.

Dog Racing Law Vetoed by Lehman

The measure, approved by the Legislature in its closing hours last month, specified that the only penalty for the making of bets, wagers or sale of pools upon the result of a dog race would be liability in a civil action for recovery of the wagered money.

Today's Boon-Doggle

To complete the quota of work relief projects in Cheyenne County, Col., President Roosevelt has authorized the expenditure of more than $108,000 of federal funds on highway improvements.

From the somewhat vague information to be found in the Works' Progress Administration records here, it appears that a considerable part of this money is to be spent in "grading, graveling and surfacing" U. S. Highway 40, South, which cuts squarely across the county in an east-westerly direction.

The most recent and authentic road maps of this section agree, however, that from Chemung, on the eastern border of the county, to Aroya, on the western border, U. S. Highway 40, South, is paved in its entirety.

To grade, surface and gravel it would thus appear to be somewhat superfluous.

THE SENATOR -:- Behind Scenes at Springfield

"Senator," says Timmy.

"Timmy," says the Senator, "I am glad to see you vacate the dog house. What are you doing here?"

"They tell me the dog house is reserved, Senator," says Timmy, "so what I am doing here is a guest conductor like Ben Bernie. How do things look?"

Beats the Drum

"Timmy," says the Senator, giving the bass drum a loud bang, "it looks like Governor Jim by acclamation for the Senate, State Treasurer Charlie Hurley for governor and either Arthur Lyman or Francis Kelly for lieutenant-governor with the present set-up favorable to Arthur. But anything can still happen."

Very little more is said while Timmy is fixing up the gasper specials, but after the brief intermission given over to reconnoitering on the inner-self, the Senator begins.

"I will begin at the beginning, which is with the fruit cocktails at the auditorium last night at the Democratic state committee dinner which costs you two and one-half bucks."

"Senator," says Timmy, "it does not cost me two and one-half bucks, because I eat at Charlie Hurley's banquet right here in the Kimball and, what is more, I thought I glimpsed you among those present."

Starched Shirts

"Timmy," says the Senator, "it is true I am at both banquets, but only because my presence is demanded at both. I broke in, as you might say, at the auditorium with the fruit cocktail, and it is a very inspiring sight, I can tell you, to see Joe Hurley and Charlie Hurley and Paul Dever sitting side by side in the starched shirtwaists puffing at cigars like a pantomime dance team getting set for a breakdown, and over Joe's head is a sign that says 'Let's go with Joe,' and over Charlie's head is a sign that says 'Win early with Charles F. Hurley,' and over Paul's head there is a sign that says 'Paul A. Dever, our candidate ever.'

"Anyway, this is a very fancy gathering, including Joe Langone in an ice cream suit without tails, fresh from leading the Dever band, but the service is a little slow after the fruit cocktail, so I say to myself I will dash up to the Kimball for a quick look at Charlie Hurley's free banquet, and who do I meet on the way out, coming in, but Judge Emil Fuchs, who stirred up the hornet's nest and only Bees came out.

"'Judge,' I say to the judge, 'How does it look for who to nominate who and why?'

"'Senator,' says the judge, 'I have all the speeches right here and all we have got to do is fill in the names and draw lots for who speaks them.'

"This is only a bum mutt but there is many a true word spoken in Springfield, even at a convention. I will now attempt a small ale, Timmy . . .

"When I arrive at Charlie Hurley's free banquet what are they serving but chicken so I have a little chicken and that is when you saw me, Timmy, and who do I run into here but Mike Ward of the Ward 21 Wards who is talking to a delegate wearing a very unusual buttonaire of a type George Holland would admire.

"'That is a very attractive buttonaire,' I say to the delegate and the delegate says: 'That is not a buttonaire, that is Mike Ward's thumb.

"'Senator,' says Mike, 'in all my life I make just two predictions. One is that the Allies win the World War and the other is that Charlie Hurley is nominated on the first ballot.'

"Governor Jim is the big show at the Auditorium as toastmaster Jim sees when he sits down and Governor Jim gets underway, and it is very difficult to hear what Governor Jim says because of the three cheering."

The Senator at this point bangs the drum three times.

"Now I will try a rye high, Timmy," he says.

Back Room Work

"Well, the evening has just begun after the two-and-one-half buck banquet and Charlie Hurley's free banquet, and while there are no fireworks, although Sammy Goodwin is present, it being two weeks early, there is plenty of red fire and parades. I do not know who these parades are for, but I love a parade.

"The back room work is well in progress by midnight. Joe Hurley is at the Clinton, Charlie Hurley is at the Kimball and Paul Dever is at the Bridgeway.

"Governor Jim is also at the Kimball and in touch with everything, although playing strictly hands-off. Timmy, that is not a joke. Governor Jim is sitting back, looking on.

"From what I can observe, if Governor Jim has any particular will in this convention beyond his own assured nomination, it is to see Arthur Lyman nominated lieutenant-governor.

"I have a short talk with Arthur and Johnny Murphy about midnight. Arthur says he is in there to win if they want him and a lot of delegates are clustering around telling him they want him. It is my own guess that Arthur is Governor Jim's choice to balance the ticket.

"The best proof of Governor Jim's hands-off policy towards choice of his successor is the way his close friends have split in support of the three candidates.

"Councillor Dan is working his head off for Paul Dever. Teddy Glynn will probably nominate Joe Hurley.

150 Won't Pledge

"There are about 150 delegates who will not pledge. So far as I can discover there are about 200 who have pledged not only to Charlie Hurley but to Paul Dever. They will turn the corner as the band wagon goes. Both Charlie and Paul know pretty well who they are.

"The resolutions committee looks good for Charlie Hurley and if the chairmanship is swung that way, that will be all there is to it.

"One thing is very noticeable. Joe Hurley has a little more strength than most people give him credit for possessing, and if there is a deadlock, watch him come.

'And now, Timmy, I think I will to bed for an hour or two before the fireworks."

The Senator gives the base drum three lusty wallops.

"Senator!" says Timmy, "how did you say the candidates were sitting at the two-and-one-half buck dinner?"

"Joe Hurley, Charlie Hurley and Paul Dever, in that order," says The Senator.

"That puts Charley Hurley in the middle, doesn't it?" says Timmy.

"By the way, Timmy," says the Senator, 'who is your dog house reserved for?"

$100 Slot Machine Fine for Man, 78

11 Drowning Ducks Saved By Police

Eleven ducklings, waddling determinedly in single file, slipped through the grating of a catch basin on Beacon Hill today and were saved—believe it or not—from drowning.

With a mother but no father to guide them, they ambled far from the familiar environs of the lagoon in the Public Garden on a sight-seeing tour calculated to be both muscle-building and educational.

Mrs. Duck, pausing for breath at Chestnut and River streets, looked back and saw no trace of her brood. Then came a series of bird-sounds that put a crimp in the sleeping habits of half a dozen persons living nearby.

The anti-social tendencies displayed by the wing-flapping, screeching mother were of such proportions that those most concerned held a hasty conference and decided to "pass the duck" to the police.

Patrolmen Martin Hefferon and Francis Smith rescued the entire feathered family and bundled them all into the patrol wagon.

Back they went to the Public Garden, where as the property of the city they glide serene on a boundless "deep" on which the most dangerous of man-made devices are the comparatively harmless swan boats.

Delayed Triplet Gets Name of Kay Regardless of Sex

Fairbury, Neb, June 5 (US)—With her twin boys born twelve days ago gaining weight and thriving normally, Mrs. M. O. Bennett today awaited the birth of a third child which her physician declares will be born within three months.

So rare in medical annals are instances of such delays in multiple births that some physicians doubted that the event will occur, but Dr. R. K. Reynolds, attending the mother asserted:

"Mrs. Bennett has every reason to believe there will be another baby, perhaps in six to ten weeks."

While awaiting the advent of their little brother or sister which will make them two of triplets, the twin boys made normal gains in weight and were taking food contendedly.

First postponing naming the boys until the arrival of the third child, the 31-year-old mother today decided to call them John Keith and Kenneth.

With her husband, a blind musician, she has decided on the name "Kay" for the late arrival whether it be boy or girl.

Wife Killer Executed

Montgomery, Ala., June 5 (AP)—Joe Wheeler Gast of Tuscaloosa died in the Kilby prison electric chair here early today. He was the first white man executed in the state in six years and died for killing his wife.

'Kiki' Weds Ex-Sanity Patient

New York, June 5 (US)—Marion "Kiki" Roberts, once a Ziegfeld beauty and sweetheart of the slain gangster, "Legs" Diamond, was married to August J. Savarese, a recent patient in the Greystone Park Sanitarium, Morristown, N. J.

Savarese and Kiki, whose real name is Frances Strasmick, sought to marry two months ago, but the wedding was postponed when the prospective groom was locked up in the State Hospital for the Criminal Insane at Trenton, N. J.

Two months ago he decided to marry in church under his right name, but his brother-in-law, Arthur Vannucchi, objected so strenuously that both were arrested, and Savarese was sent back to the asylum for violating his parole. He was released only two days ago.

DEATH PARTY IN CAMBRIDGE IS PROBED

The witnesses, Mrs. Haration claims, told her that they had seen Miss Lees with one man from 2 p. m. Friday on through the afternoon. The second man joined the couple in a restaurant, the sister said.

About supper time, according to Mrs. Haration, her sister came home for a few moments. She was wearing a corsage, and she told her sister who had given it to her. Mrs. Haration said Miss Lees then called out to her:

"I'm having a grand time! I'm going out again for the evening."

Her informants told her that her sister again appeared at the restaurant, was joined by the man with whom she had been in the afternoon and spent the greater part of the evening with him.

There is a blank after that. When the body was found the next day all of Miss Lees clothing had been stripped off except a girdle, her shoes and stockings.

Her dress and lingerie, police reported, were found in another part of the barn, which is used as a two-car garage now. The barn is owned by Michael Tierney of Richdale avenue, who found the body and notified police.

"I have been to that barn myself," Mrs. Haration said. "I can't understand how my sister ever could have got to the place without somebody taking her there. I had a hard enough time finding it."

DEMAND SOLUTION

"When they brought Grace's body home, I noticed a bruise under her left eye. I was so upset at the time I didn't think much of it.

"Now I am fairly well convinced that my sister was either attacked or was defending herself against an attempted attack when she died.

"I told Chief Leahy that. I told him I wanted an explanation and particularly from the man with whom my sister had been the day before.

"I told him that unless police can give me an explanation I will go to the district attorney and have the body exhumed.

"Death may have been from natural causes as Dr. Dow said, but certainly something preceded it.

"My sister was an extremely modest person, even in her own home and with relatives. She was not the type that could have disrobed herself in the fashion in which she was found."

POLICE SIFT SECRET

The disappearance of her sister's coat is a big factor, Mrs. Haration said, and it should be explained.

Police, on her demands, have been secretly investigating the death for 48 hours, but Chief Leahy has not made public so far the results of the probe

Miss Lees was the daughter of the late Alexander Lees of Medford, one time director of the Medford Trust Company.

She was well known in Boston financial circles, having worked for a number of large brokerage houses and banks over a period of 30 years. She was graduated from Medford high school and a secretarial college.

Trouble Doubled For Driver of Auto

He was found guilty in Dedham district court of drunkenness, operating under the influence of liquor, and refusnig to stop for an officer. Unable to pay $135 fines he was returned to Dedham jail, where two warrants were served on him by Boston police, charging larceny of a truck and contents.

He was arrested May 20 on the Worcester Turnpike.

Fiance, 87, Keeps Bridal Secrets

Friends 60 Years To Wed

MRS. MARY LIZZIE MACY
Bride at 73

The June wedding that 87-year-old Charles Wesley Smith of Roslindale is planning is still a secret, even if the newspapers are carrying columns about it.

Smith is going to marry Mrs. Mary Lizzie Macy, 73, a Weymouth housekeeper, and very quietly indeed did the couple go to Providence to file marriage intentions.

So quietly that neither his daughter and son-in-law with whom Smith makes hsi home, nor his granddaughter, who drives him to work every day, knew anything of the projected wedding until reporters started asking questions.

It still rests that way. Smith got up today, same as usual, had breakfact, and was driven to work. Nobody said anything about the wedding. So Smith didn't either.

CHARLES W. SMITH
He's Not Telling

The bride-to-be is a friend of 60 years' standing, who nearly became one of Smith's in-laws. In fact, the couple met when Mrs. Macy became engaged to Smith's brother-in-law. The latter died before that wedding.

The actual romance started, according to Smith's daughter, Mrs. C. S. Ellis, of 125 Florence street, Roslindale, about five years ago.

Mrs. Macy had moved to California, married, and later became a widow. She wrote a letter of condolence to Smith when his wife died. That started a correspondence. Four years ago Mrs. Macy came East.

The prospective bridegroom is superintendent and engineer of the Windsor Block in Dover street, South End, where he has been employed for 60 years.

Mrs. Macy is employed in a home in Edgehill road, Weymouth.

The Ellises aren't going to oppose the wedding, although they're not particularly pleased about it. But Mrs. Ellis says the newlyweds will have to find their own home. It won't be at her house.

counsel. To each, Attorney Farnum responded:

"We contend that all Dolan's activities were part of a general scheme, or conspiracy."

DOLAN RECOMMENDATION

Overcoming objections of defense counsel, Former Assistant United States Attorney General George R. Farnum, special counsel for the city, charged in an offer of proof that it would be shown the bond transactions were put through the Legal Securities Corporation by Dolan.

It is alleged in the suit that Dolan was the actual head of that concern, although close friends were acting for hi mas "straws" in the conduct of the corporation.

Kenney, in his testimony, said the Boston Retirement Board supervises city annuity savings, pension accumulations and retirement reserve funds, with the power to buy, transfer and consign all investments.

In all the transactions through 1930, 1931 and up to August 6, 1932, Dolan recommended where the bonds should be bought, Kenny declared.

QUINN FORGETFUL

Kenney took the stand at completion of testimony by Quinn, who testified yesterday that he was head of the Legal Securities Corporation and who declared that he started the concern with $5000, "which came out of a cardboard box" he kept at home.

Asked yesterday to produce ledgers and records of the company, uinn appeared today with some records, which were marked for identification.

"Why didn'ty ou bring them in yesterday?" he was asked in no soft tone by Attorney Robert L. Dodge, also of special counsel for the city.

"I forgot them," Quinn replied.

Judge Edward Hanify interrupted proceedings to ask if Attorney Harold W. Sullivan, counsel for Costello, had filed answers to interrogatories, as directed on the opening day, Wednesday.

Attorney Mahony replied he understood they were to be filed today. Judge Hanify remarked, however, that he had allowed 48 hours for the filing and had expected them to be ready at opening of court. The matter was dropped temporarily.

PAID $10,000 TO QUIT

Quinn, under questioning by Dodge, testified that Edward J. Suple, who is not a defendant, but who, it has been testified, has been connected with the Legal Securities Corporation, received $50 a week when he was with the corporation.

Q—When he withdrew, how much did he get? A—He got $65 a week and a bonus."

"Don't you understand me?" Attorney Dodge thundered. "How much was he paid to get out?"

"Ten thousand dollars," Quinn answered.

Quinn was excused from the stand then, after he had promised to make a search for more records of the company and for copies of his income tax reports, and produce them Monday if found.

MOSES 'STOP LANDON' DRIVE FAST NEARING COLLAPSE

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

Cleveland, June 5 (US)—Increased strength for Governor Alf M. Landon, of Kansas for President is moving into Cleveland from every section of the country, while a little coterie of "Old Guardsmen" strove desperately to save their "Stop Landon" campaign from complete collapse.

The "stop Landon" scheme centered almost solely around former Senator George H. Moses, campaign manager for Colonel Knox and who once branded western independent Republicans as "the sons of wild jackasses."

Moses attacked the strength of Governor Landon as "synthetic," and said that no candidate has sufficient suport to be nominated before the sixth ballot. He was understood to have conceived the plan to invite Herbert Hoover to address the convention in the hope that the former President might make some speech designed to stop the support now flowing to the Kansas governor.

Mark Requa of California, most intimate friend and confidant of Hoover, indignantly denied the published report that he had declared Hoover would "stampede" the convention.

KNOX HOLDS FREE

Former National Comander Edward A. Hayes of the American Legion, one of Colonel Knox's campaign managers, asserted that the Chicago colonel had refrained from attack upon any of the presidential aspirants and has held himself free to campaign vigorously for the presidedntial nominee of the Republican national convention.

Meanwhile, a series of striking developments demonstrated the overwhelming proportions of the sentiment for Landon and heightened optimism among Republicans flooding into the city for the most dramatic convention in a generation.

National Committeeman Harrison Spangler, of Iowa, announced that the Republican leaders are being aided in the drafting of their program of farm relief by George N. Peek, who recently quit the Roosevelt administration at Washington.

National Committeeman Charles A. Jonas announced that North Carolina will break from Judge Isaac Meekins after a complimentary vote and will move, probably unitedly, to Governor Landon.

A vice-presidential boom for Robert A. Taft was formally launched, following his announcement that he would release the Ohio delegates early in the balloting. The bulk of them will thus be able to vote their preference for nominating a Democrat for vice president vanished into thin air from whence it had come.

Strong sentiment for Senator already expressed for the Kansas governor.

National Committeeman R. B. Craeger, of Texas, practically abandoned his plan to invite a Democrat of national prominence to the convention as the suggestion Vandenberg, of Michigan, for vice president, was stated by arriving delegates, while the name of Senator Steiwer of Oregon flowed favorably from other lips.

John Hamilton, campaign manager for Landon, announced that "new assurance" of support had been pledged. Stating that his estimates were "modestly conservative," Hamilton said that Landon would receive at least 22 votes from Indiana, 30 from New York and an equal number from Ohio early in the convention balloting.

William Allen White, the Kansas editor, was practically repudiated by the Landon managers for his alleged "loose talk." White has been talking at random on the Supreme Court, progressivism, former Governor Smith of New York, Democrats and monetary and fiscal policies.

Campaign Manager Hamilton explained:

"We in Kansas who know Will White always have difficulty in determining whether he is speaking as an editor, a journalist, columnist, a statesman, a politician or as one delegate to the national convention.

"Mr. White will have one vote out of the 18 from Kansas. Nobody is authorized to speak for Governor Landon but Governor Landon himself."

MARTIN DUE TODAY

Representative Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, assistant Republican floor leader of the National House of Representatives, will arrive in Cleveland today to assume his responsibility as floor manager of the Landon campaign. The entire Kansas delegation will come upon the scene today to promote the campaign of their governor.

Hamilton said Landon's managers have received "numerous recommendations for the platform," but they will be withheld until the resolutions committee is formally elected and organized.

Representative Allen T. Treadway, a Republican leader of the National House and senior member of its ways and means committee, will be elected the Bay State member of the resolutions committee. He has declared his support for Landon.

Bacon Makes Landon Plea In Portland

Portland, Me., June 5—Maine women were urged today by Gaspar G. Bacon, former lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts, to support Alf M. Landon for President, because of his "steadfastness, common sense, grasp of fundamentals, courage and unselfish earnestness."

"He is the antithesis of Franklin D. Roosevelt, he promises only what he intends to carry out," said Bacon, before the Women's Republican Club of Maine, at Eastland Hotel.

"Where Mr. Roosevelt would do anything for votes, Governor Landon puts principles above popularity. Where Mr. Roosevelt has scoffed at all the virtues and qualities of character that have made the American people great, Governor Landon still believes passionately in the need for more self-reliance, industry, thrift and self-help.

"People instinctively trust him. He is not the candidate of any group of politicians. He has no political entanglements. He has no affiliations with any so-called 'vested interest.'

"With such a leader, we can attract all those of independent thought, whether Republicans or Democrats, who voted for a change in 1932, but who since that time have become disillusioned and disgusted with New Deal policies."

Back to Husband She Tried to Kill

Shakopee, Minn., June 5 (AP)—Mrs. Lena Schulte, 54, freed after serving 30 months in the Women's State Reformatory, today had returned to Mankato, Minn., to become reunited with her husband—whom she attempted to kill in 1933.

On the plea of her husband, who said he was willing to take her back in his home, the state pardon board commuted her five to ten-year term.

$14,850,000 in Gold

M'FADDEN RAPS RAW DEAL AS DEBT BUILDER

A vote for the re-election of President Roosevelt is a vote for greater debt and deeper gloom, according to Bernarr MacFadden, millionaire publisher and vociferous opponent of the New Deal.

He lashed out vigorously at President Roosevelt and his Brain Trust advisers in an address to the Business and Professional Women's Republican Club at a meeting in the Hotel Bradford.

Although he rode the Roosevelt band-wagon four years ago, MacFadden indicated that he had been prompted to forsake the Democratic cause largely because of vast doubt as to the ultimate nature of the New Deal's aims.

RAPS "FIXERS"

He described as "professional fixers" the men who have vamped the course of the Roosevelt administration—particularly attacking Rexford Tugwell, Felix Frankfurter and Jerome Frank.

"Rexford Tugwell laid down his conception of planned economy before the 44th annual convention of the American Economic Association in 1932," MacFadden said.

MERE BEGINNING

"He brought out very forcibly the fact that his entire political idea centered on the destruction of all competitive American business.

"Tugwell has restated the aims of the New Deal, has stood pat on all he has said, and has declared that what has happened so far was merely a beginning of what was to come."

Robbery Attempt In Belmont Fails

A. Edward Fagerstrom, 45, of Standish road, Watertown, reported to Belmont police today that he had been beaten by two men who attempted to rob him on Common street early this morning.

He said the thieves ran away when he yelled. They failed to get what money he had in his pocket.

STUDENTS CALL NEW DEAL UNSOUND

Swarthmore, Penn., June 5 (US)—Economic policies of the Roosevelt administration were described today as "unsound" by leading students at Swarthmore College who united in denouncing what they termed "mortgaging the future of American youth."

"From the standpoint of sound economics, New Deal policies are about as far wrong as they can be," said Paul Oehmann, senior student of economics.

BURDEN ON YOUTH

"It looks almost as though the first psuedo-economist to reach the President in the morning dictates the policies of the bay. The different measures adapted have developed highly conflicting results. The idea of raising prices and curtailing production is wrong, when the government is spending billions on relief expenditures."

The need for a "very definite change in our political and economic setup" was advanced by Samuel Kalkstein, senior student, who declared:

"We must either return to a sound economic system or we are doomed.

"The present program is placing a terrific burden on youth and has little to offer in the way of optimism or opportunity to the college graduate."

SEES INFLATION

William Whyte, winner of a scholarship to Harvard University, charged that "the present administration has fostered large monopolies at the expense of the smaller business men. Raising of prices has served principally to place heavier burdens on the working man by increasing his cost of living."

Government expenditures, Whyte declared, have been both "wasteful and careless," and will "lead us inevitably to inflation."

CANTON ORDERS WAR AGAINST JAPANESE

Canton, China, June 5 (AP)—The southwestern political council tonight ordered combined provincial armies of South China to mobilize an anti-Japanese expedition into the north.

The council's mandate decreed that the troops of Kwangtung and Kwangsi provinces be merged into the "people's revolutionary anti-Japanese national salvation forces" for the expedition.

Military conscription patrols were active and police tightened their precautions. A number of persons were arrested and detained for discussing the political situation in public.

Food prices were soaring. They had risen 30 per cent and the people were hurriedly storing up rice in anticipation of an approaching crisis.

Cantonese Forces Seize More Towns

Shanghai, June 5 (AP)—Southern Chinese armies drove north today, the Domei (Japanese) news agency reported, and occupied four towns in Hunan province.

The armies, from the Canton government provinces, Kwangtung and Kwangsi, met little or no opposition.

The seventh Kwangsi army moved northwest toward the major city of Hengyang after occupying the towns of Chiyang and Cheenhu.

Simultaneously Kwangtung forces were reported to have taken the southern Hunan towns of Liuchow and Yunching moving toward Laiyang on the newly-constructed Hankow-Canton railway.

Kwangsi soldiers previously were reported to have occupied the town of Lingling in southwest Hunan and Kwangtung troops the town of Ichang in the southern section of the province.

Seven Chinese Shot As Japanese Spies

Shanghai, June 5 (AP)—Chinese reports from Hsinhsiang, Honan Province, today said seven Chinese spies in the pay of Japan had been caught and summarily shot.

Their execution, it was indicated, was part of a national campaign to prepare for resistance against further Japanese encroachment—first such move since China became a republic.

Chinese sources charged Japan, if war comes, plans to organize native bandits against the government, providing the outlaws with arms, food, clothing and narcotics.

This theory gave point to Chinese plans for the protection of cities against bandits roaming the rural districts.

LEAGUE CALLED ON ETHIOPIA

Geneva, June 5 (INS)—A special session of the League of Nations assembly was convoked today for June 30 to discuss the Ethiopian question and advisability of lifting sanctions from Italy. A meeting of the League Council was called for June 27.

Il Duce Seeks Austrian Chief's Aid at Geneva

Rocca Delle Caminate, Italy, June 5 (AP)—Dictators Mussolini of Italy and Schuschnigg of Austria discussed here today the future of their countries.

Il Duce wanted to know, informed sources declared, the status of Austria's negotiations with Czechoslovakia and Poland and what part Austria would take in future League of Nations discussions of the Italo-Ethiopian war.

Hammer Slayer Dies on Gallows

Montreal, June 5 (INS)—Calm and with firm step, Armand Marchand walked to death on the scaffold at Montreal jail today for the hammer slaying of his sweetheart, Jeanne Lemaire, 35.

Marchand, convicted of beating Miss Lemaire to death when she threatened to leave him last August, was pronounced dead 11 minutes after the trap was sprung.

Otto Appeals Again For Empire Crown

Vienna, June 5 (AP)—The Archduke Otto, claimant to the defunct Austrian throne, issued a new and urgent appeal today to the Austrian people to make him emperor.

"It is high time for decisive action," wrote Otto from his exile in Belgium to Baron Von Wiesner, Legitimist leader. "I am ready at any hour to return to the fatherland and give Austria its old unity, power and happiness."

NATION CHIEFS PAY HONORS TO BYRNS

Washington, June 5 (AP)—Led by President oosevelt, high dignitaries of the United States and foreign nations converged on a flower-scented House chamber today to pay tribute to the late Speaker Joseph W. Byrns in a state funeral.

Sorrowing colleagues, in mourning garb, were assigned to escort the flag draped casket into the well of the House to the sound of funeral music.

Besides the President and members of the House where the Tennessean's voice had been heard in the nation's councils for over a quarter century, the list of those invited to attend included members of the Cabinet, justices of the Supreme Court, Senators, Representatives and the diplomatic corps.

WITHOUT PRECEDENCE

The ceremony was unprecedented, for never before had a speaker of the House died while Congress was in session.

The body of the speaker was placed amid a mass of flowers before the rostrum where Byrns had stood, gavel in hand, not 48 hours before.

In services at noon, the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House, officiated from the rostrum on which sat the newly-chosen Speaker Bankhead of Alabama and Vice President Garner. Speaker Bankhead and Representative Snell of New York, minority leader, had been selected to eulogize the dead man.

Near the casket places were reserved for Mrs. Byrns and members of the family and behind them the legislative bodies and other delegations.

ROOSEVELT TO FUNERAL

The President, who described Speaker Byrns as his "steadfast friend of many years, fearless, incorruptible, unselfish," planned to journey to Nashville for the burial services. The body was to leave here by special train in late afternoon after lying in state in the chamber.

President Roosevelt put aside many government matters and made his own plans for attending the funeral and the burial services. He expected to go on the second section of the funeral train, and after attending the services in Nashville at 1 p. m. tomorrow, leave in time to reach the capital about noon Sunday.

The Chief Executice cancelled a scheduled cabinet meeting and discussed the funeral plans with Garner, Secretary Hull, a native of Bryns' own state, and Bankhead. He also ordered flags at half staff on all public buildings in the capital and in Tennessee.

Hearst Papers Praised by Clubs

Tribute was paid the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser by members of the Jeffersonian Club last night at a meeting in the Norfolk House Center building in Roxbury.

Mrs. Francis A. Willhauk, president of the club, in an address to 100 women members, praised the Hearst papers highly for their advocacy and adherence to the principles of Thomas Jefferson.

Thomas F. Phelan, member of the editorial staff of the two papers, spoke on "The Life and Times of Thomas Jefferson."

Nicaraguan Chiefs Will Abdicate

Managua, Nicaragua, June 5 (INS)—President Juan B. Sacasa and Vice-President Rodolfo Espinosa will abdictate and leave Nicaragua tomorrow as a result of the national guard rebellion, it was reported today.

Negus Put Wreath On Cenotaph

London, June 5 (INS)—After a delay of 24 hours, Haile Selassie, Ethiopia's incognito Emperor, placed a wreath on the Cenotaph here today, while several hundred Britons looked on and cheered lustily.

9 BLACK LEGION MEN SEIZED IN FLOGGING

BY JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Dertoit, June 5—The Black Legion scandal, precipitated by the "ritual slaying" of Charles Poole, grew blacker today as a variety of sensations popped up on the probe of the night riders' secret organization.

Nine arrests were made and six more Black Legionnaires were being hunted in a newly uncovered kidnapping case—that of Robert Penlan, steel mill employe. On October 12 he was taken from his home into the country, tied to a "whipping tree" and flogged.

Other developments included the accusation that an assistant prosecutor is a member of the Black Legion, the finding here by the police of the order's printing plant headquarters and the sudden resignation of a clerk employed in the court of Circuit Judge James E. Chenot, who is conducting a one-man grand jury investigation.

DEAN, 12 GUARDED

Meanwhile, Dayton Dean, confessed two-gun "trigger man" in the Poole murder, and 12 of his confederates were closely guarded in the county jail pending heappearance in court Monday.

Mrs. Poole, the slain man's widow, revealed that for days prior to her husband's death he was "very nervous and constantly bit his finger nails." He lost considerable weight. What was preying on his mind she could not say, although he had been out of work.

Some investigators have entertained the theory that Poole was not killed because of the spurious gossip that he "beat his wife," but because he "knew too much" or was personally disliked by certain Black Legionnaires. Poole was a Catholic.

CONFESSES FLOGGING

The flogging of Penlan created a sensation when it became known. Ever since October the victim had kept silent about it. The affair was brought to light when three of the alleged kidnapers — Frederick A. Gulley, Thomas F. Cox and Earl Angstadt—were arrested and arraigned. They were held in $50,000 each for examination Monday.

Gulley told an amazing story. He said Penlan was taken from his home at the point of a pistol to a lonely spot in Oakland County, where he was tied to a tree and horse-whipped.

Bartholomew Boy Peace Pact O K'd

Los Angeles, June 5 (AP)—A peace pact in the Bartholomew family dispute, leaving 12-year-old Freddie in the custody of his aunt, who made him a $1,000-a-week film star, was set in legal phrases today for final approval.

Under an oral agreement announced by attorneys after a long conference last night, the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil L. Bartholomew, would share in their son's earnings and live here while the aunt, Miss Myllicent Bartholomew, remained in control of his film career.

Isaac Pacht, counsel for the parents, said the written form would be ready to submit to the principals probably Monday and then to Judge Harry Archbald for final approval.

"Freddie's earnings would be utilized, first, for the establishment of a trust fund for the boy, second, for the support and maintenance of the mother and father and the other two children, and third, for the support and maintenance of the boy and his aunt," Pacht said.

Florida Primary Still Deadlocked

Jacksonville, Fla., June 5 (AP)—Florida still waited today to learn which two of 14 gubernatorial candidates won runoff places in Tuesday's Democratic primary.

All but about 100 of the state's 1321 precincts were reported early today and Fred P. Cone of Lake City and William C. Hodges from Tallahassee still were fighting it out for second place.

Byrd to Announce His Plans Tonight

Byrd's friends said his future activities would be of "world-wide significance and interest."

Milk Price Delay

Announcement of proposed reduced milk prices in the Boston marketing area will be delayed until Judge Elisha Brewster, who heard complaints against 28 dealers charged with violating the interstate marketing order, makes known his opinion.

Cult Wife's Own Story

Church Organized By Black Legion

(Editor's Note: Mrs. Dayton Dean, former wife of the "trigger-man" in a Black Legion Detroit slaying, herself once a member of the cult, in a series of articles tells for the first time what she says is the real story of activities of the night riders. The third of this remarkable series follows.)

By MRS. DAYTON DEAN

(Copyright, 1936, by the Boston Evening American and International News Service.)

Detroit, June 5—The Black Legion organized a That was in the spring of 1934. I was a member. church.

The church they rented cost $200 a month. We had a hard time getting that money each month, too.

It all came about this way:

One night when we women were holding a meeting, Arthur Lupp, Michigan head of the Black Legion, Elvis Clark and Dayton, my husband, attended.

Lupp announced the Black Legion was going to organize a church and he wanted the help of the women members. He said the Legion wanted a more convenient place to meet, safe from prying eyes.

Dayton said there were a lot of back rooms in the church which could be used for initiations and meetings.

Everybody was asked to help. The men worked there every night for a long time getting the place in order.

Lupp said the Rev. Sam Jacob White was to be pastor but he was only to preach at Sunday, and knew nothing about the Black Legion. He thought it was just a group of Protestants who wanted to band together.

But the church was really just a blind so the organization could expand.

Harvey Davis ("Colonel" Davis) and Dayton got paint and covering for the furnace pipes from the public lighting commission, where both worked.

Sometimes they couldn't sneak out enough from there, and the church had to buy some supplies. Dayton said he thought he and Davis were smart to get so much material that way, for the church was so short of money.

Finally we got it going. Several people from the public lighting commission came to meetings, both of the church and of the Black Legion.

Bert Yoemans, an employe; a foreman and an engineer, all were members. Dayton told me most of the men at the public lighting commission were in the Black Legion.

The Rev. Mr. White worked hard. Once a man asked him if he could join the church. He told him he'd be glad to have him, but the "big fellows"—that is, Dayton and some of the others—told him they didn't want that particular man as a member. For some reason he was not acceptable to the Black Legion.

(Editor's Note: Mr. White said today he knew nothing about any organization within an organization in the Community church, where he was pastor for a year.

("I organized that church," he said. "I don't remember whether Davis and Dean helped to get the church in shape. Scores of people did. I remember a man named Spingler and another named Nelson. But not those two. Those men are just trying to besmirch a church. That is all!")

There was a lot of talking and finally the church was abandoned. That was in the spring of 1935, a little more than a year ago.

That was not long before Dayton and I separated finally.

Dayton was still busy with the death squad.

One night he came home pretty mad and said the Legion had to get a fast car. He said they'd "gone after a guy to take him for a ride," and had chased him for blocks, but he had a faster car than Dayton had, and got away.

"Why did you want to take him for a ride, Dayton?" I asked him.

"He's done some dirt, and needs to be taught a lesson," Dayton told me.

Art Moeller, who had roomed with us, moved. He said he was going back south and try to forget the whole thing. He was scared, he told me before he left, but he did not say why, or what had made him leave town.

'Quickie' Dishes That Are Popular

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast over Station WMEX

Hollywood gives a name to our easy dishes: "quickies"! In the mad movie business the term "quickie" is applied to a picture which is "quickly made, at a good profit to the producer, for a rapid turnover." Isn't that exactly the definition to apply to little dishes, made in a jiggy, eaten in a wink?

"Easy come, easy go" is the motto of the quickie-maker. Who cares that the avid family gobbles every crumb if it was no trouble to prepare?

Here's the kind of thing we mean:

Jelly and egg white make frosting; melted butter, confectioner's sugar, a little cream and flavoring make frosting too! Melted chocolate peppermints make dessert sauce. Crushed macaroons, crushed pineapple, and chopped cherries become a company dessert when added to whipped cream. Add ½ cup toasted nutmeats to heated maple syrup for a hurry-up sauce for ice cream. Whipped cream and applesauce are just made for hot Washington gingerbread. Topping for Devil's Food cake is different when it's made by adding 1½ cups confectioner's sugar and ½ teaspoon vanilla to a package of "creamed" cream cheese!

BANANAS AU RHUM

Bananas, partially ripe
Butter, melted
Powdered sugar
Rhum sauce

Allow one or two bananas for each serving. Peel bananas and place into a shallow, well-buttered baking pan. Brush bananas with melted butter and sprinkle lightly with powdered sugar. Broil five to six minutes or until delicately browned. Garnish with orange slices and cherries. Serve very hot with Rhum sauce made this way:

Mix one cup sugar and two tablespoons cornstarch thoroughly. Add two cups boiling water. Cook mixture over direct heat, stirring constantly until it thickens, then cook 20 minutes in double boiler. Add half cup rum or rum flavoring and sufficient red vegetable coloring to make the sauce an attractive pink. Serves six.

RICE-MEAT PATTIES

1 2-3 cups cooked rice
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 lb. ground beef
1 cup evaporated milk
2-3 cup water
1 egg
2-3 teaspoon salt

Combine ingredients and mold into patties. Place in greased pan; add 3 tablespoons boiling water. Bake in hot oven (450 deg. F.) for 15 minutes. Serves 6.

"GIDDY-AP"

½ package dates
1 cup marshmallows
½ cup nut meats
1 cup heavy cream
½ teaspoon vanilla
Few grains salt

JIFFY MUFFINS

2 cups flower
4 teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
1 egg
2 tablespoons shortening
1 cup milk

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Beat egg, stir in melted shortening and add ½ cup milk and beat half minute. Add rest of milk and stir in dry ingredients all at once. Fill oiled muffin pans three-quarters full. Bake 20 minutes in moderate oven, 400 deg. F.

BAKED PEACHES

Peel peaches, cut in halves, remove pits. Place in shallow baking dish. Dot with butter, few gratings of nutmeg and a few drops of lemon juice. Pour small amount of dark corn syrup to fill cavity of each peach. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 15 to 20 minutes.

2 Chinese Fliers Killed

Hong Kong, June 5 (AP)—Chief Mechanic Huang Chao-Ching and Leung Pang, secretary of the Southwest Aviation Corporation, were killed when a large American biblane they were testing crashed at Shekpei.

Safety Last

Des Moines, Ia., June 5 (AP)—The policemen who sought to determine if William Benjamin's car complied with safety laws said they found he had no driver's license and that the car had no brakes, no headlight bulbs or lenses, no horn, no windshield wiper, no rear warning light and improper wheel alignment.

The rear vision mirror was O.K.

HONOR IS PAID TO MANNING

Twenty-five years of service for the sick of Boston was recognized today in a glowing tribute paid Joseph P. Manning, president of the trustees of Boston City Hospital, by his colleagues at a board meeting.

The occasion was his reappointment by Mayor Mansfield for another term of five years. The resolution read:

"Yours has been a rich service—rich in patience, when progress seemed slow and when politics retarded improvement; sympathetic with city governments wrestling with budgets; rich in understanding of the difficult tasks of the officials of this great institution which has been developed under your leadership; uncomplaining indeed of some of us who oft times urged you to hasten more quickly.

"Under your direction the Boston City Hospital has grown to be one of the most renowned hospitals of the world. Through your conspicuous fairness and by the dignity of your gentle personality, you have brought increasing honor and permanent glory to this institution. As long as Boston lives, there will remain enshrined in the hearts of all understanding citizens the name of Joseph P. Manning."

Prayers for Rain Ordered in South

Charlotte, N. C., June 5 (AP)—Alarmed at the prospect of a major disaster, officials today urged residents of the southeast to pray for an enr to the searing drouth that has caused a crop loss estimated thus far at $150,000,000.

"I do not believe such prayers will go unrewarded," said Governor Olin Johnson of South Carolina, in a formal statement.

Governor Eugene Talmadge of Georgia, in urging supplications, asked all ministers to "have meetings Sunday afternoon to pray for rain."

Scattered showers fell in the Carolinas, Virginia and Georgia last night, but in most instances they hardly even settled the dust.

Chicopee Shares Good Times Bonus

New Brunswick, N. J., June 5 (AP)—Johnson & Johnson, manufacturers of surgical dressings, paid to 2500 employes today a bonus amounting to 5 per cent of their 1935 earnings. Onch each check was this notaton:

"Prosperty largely depends upon the earning power of the people; therefore, we are making this contribution to the cause of better times."

Workers in four plants at New Brunswick, Chicago, Chicopee, Mass., and Gainesville, Ga., share the bonus, it was announced.

NASHUA PILOT HURT IN CRASH

Nashua, N. H., June 5—Robert Tracy, 30, married, was probably fatally injured today when his airplane crashed at the edge of the Nashua airport.

Two men who saw the accident saved him from being burned to death, when they rushed over and switched off the ignition.

They managed to lift the plane enough to drag Tracy out. He was taken to Memorial Hospital. The motor had crushed his head and chest, and both his legs were broken.

Tracy, owner of an automobile and electrical supplies store, bought the plane with a friend about six months ago and obtained a pilot's license in March.

He was attempting to land the ship today but overshot the field and tried to rise again.

For Digestion's Sake... SMOKE CAMELS

Life sometimes pushes us so hard that we feel too worn-down really to enjoy eating. Science explains this by saying that hurry, mental strain, and constant tension reduce the flow of the digestive fluids.

Evidence shows that smoking Camels increases the flow of digestive fluids...alkaline digestive fluids...so vital to the enjoyment of food and to good digestion. No wonder—when you enjoy Camels with your meals and afterwards—you experience such a feeling of cheer and well-being!

Camel's rich and costly tobaccos are mild beyond words. Enjoy Camels—with meals—any time—for the sheer pleasure they bring you ... for their cheering "lift" ... for their aid to digestion. Camels set you right! And never jangle your nerves or tire your taste.

UNDER THE BIG TOP. The terrific pace of circus life puts performers on their mettle constantly. Yet, watching Miss Dorothy Herbert of the Ringling Bros.—Barnum & Bailey Circus in her thrilling feats of horsemanship, you marvel at her poise and daring. Her cigarette? Camel! Miss Herbert says: "I'm a devoted Camel smoker. I smoke all I want—eat anything I care for. Camels make food taste better and digest easier. They are so comforting—with that sense of good feeling they give and their cheery 'lift.' Camels have a royal flavor!"

The chef is putting the final touches to a Lobster Thermidor, while within the restaurant proper the glittering stars of Hollywood gather to chat ... to dine ... and to enjoy Camels. Many fashions and customs have been set in The Brown Derby. And none is more welcome here than "For Digestion's Sake ... Smoke Camels." In the glamorous life of Hollywood, Camels play a major rôle. The supreme mildness and flavor of their costlier tobaccos have made Camels an outstanding favorite. As Mr. Robert H. Cobb (above, left), the man behind The Brown Derby's success and host at one time or another to every great personality in Hollywood, remarks: "Camels are the choice of a great majority of our patrons."

STOP PRESS! A day's action is crowded into a few tense minutes as the reporter works feverishly to beat the deadline. "It's a life of hurry, hurry, hurry," says Peter Dahlen, crack newspaper man, "and a life of irregular hours ... irregular meals. One of the many good reasons why I smoke Camels is that they help digestion. After a particularly strenuous job, it's swell the way they make food taste better and set better with me."

SPRINT CHAMPION of the U.S., Willie Honeman (right), has spun around the boards in record time against the leading sprinters of America and the world. "I relish my food," he says—"smoke Camels while I'm eating and afterwards. Can eat most anything on the bill of fare. Smoking Camels helps my digestion to proceed smoothly. Camels are so mild they don't upset my nerves or get my wind. What a grand, rich flavor Camels have."

TEXAS WORLD FAIR OPENS TOMORROW

Dallas, Tex., June 5 (US)—Gates of Texas' Centennial Exposition, celebrating the 100th anniversary of freedom from Mexico and 400 years of history under six flags will be thrown open to the world tomorrow.

While Dallas and its $20,000,000 exposition will be the focal point of the Lone Star State's celebration, other cities throughout Texas will stage special celebrations.

In its long and at many times epochal history, Texas has been under the flags of Spain, France, Mexico, the Republic of Texas, the United States and the Confederacy.

Its centennial celebrates particularly the 18-minute victory won by General Sam Houston over General Santa Anna of Mexico at the San Jacinto battlefield below Houston, April 21, 1836.

These flags will fly in profusion from the exposition buildings and in the historical pageant, "Cavalcade of Texas," which will be staged every day of the fair.

G. O. P. Leaders Protest Trip of Marine Band

Washington, June 5 (US)—Ignoring Congress, the Roosevelt New Deal sent the United States Marine Band on a trip to Texas before House or Senate had voted the necessary funds.

The band left Washington yesterday on money "borrowed" from the contingent expense fund, with expectation Congress will approve an $11,500 appropriation, the computed cost of the trip.

Rep. Taber (R.) of New York, ranking minority leader of the House appropriations committee, said Representative Bacon of New York and Representative Thurston of Iowa, would join with him and other Republicans in a fight to eliminate the appropriation.

Representative Rich, (R.) of Pennsylvania, declared:

"There is not the slightest reason why the marine band should be permitted to go to Texas and Arkansas. It is a waste of taxpayers' money merely to help the Democratic party."

Doris Duke Gives Party for Hubby

Somerville, N. J., June 5 (AP)—Doris Duke Cromwell's party for her husband, James H. R. Cromwell, ended early today with its guest list and activities virtually as much of a mystery as were the arrangements for it.

Almost the only word concerning it which leaked from the 30-room mansion on the 2300-acre estate was that "about 70" guests from the New York and Philadelphia areas gathered to honor Cromwell, on his 39th birthday anniversary, and to dine, dance and watch professional entertainers.

Guards stood outside the sentry boxes at the four entrances to the estate and required all guests to present their invitations. Automobiles blocked the secondary driveways and great danes patrolled the grounds.

Boy's Bad Dream Starts Fire Scare

"Fire!"

When that cry resounded through the High Rock terrace section of Lynn today residents, who observed a boy flee through a window, summoned fire apparatus.

Clanging engines roared into the section. There was no fire. It was a 14-year-old in the throes of a nightmare.

Before being put back to bed he explained he had dreamed other boys with torches were setting fire to his house and others in the section.

Somerville Man Held in Girl Case

Santo J. Bertino, 35, of Marshall street, Somerville, was held in $7000 bail today after he had pleaded not guilty in Somerville district court to charges involving the abduction of a 15-year-old school girl, larceny and forgery. The hearing was continued to June 11.

Bertino was arrested in Providence by Somerville police after it was charged he had taken a Somerville school girl to Pennsylvania. The girl was with him at the time of his arrest.

'Friends of the Soviet Union' Duped by Red Propaganda

COMINTERN CHIEF GUIDED BY DICTATOR OF RUSSIA

SECRET CENTER IN MOSCOW DISGUISED

It plans revolutions by massacre and destruction in every capitalistic country for the purpose of overthrowing existing governments and establishing the so-called "rule of the proletariat."

Actually it plans to fasten upon the entire human race a cruel and oppressive dictatorship by Stalin and his Red associates.

For this sinister purpose the Soviet has devised the most powerful and far-reaching organization the world has yet witnessed. It is known as the Comintern or Communist International.

In a series of remarkable articles entitled "The Network of the Communist International," of which this is the second, Laszo-Rudolf here makes clear the methods and purposes of the Red dictatorship.

By RAOUL LASZLO-RUDOLF

In the United States, England, France, Sweden, Switzerland, Holland, Belgium, Australia, Canada, South Africa, etc., there is an organization known as the "Friends of the Soviet Union."

This organization issues a monthly illustrated magazine (in America, it is called "Soviet Russia Today," in England "Russia Today," etc.) Its activities include public meetings, conferences, exhibitions dealing with the U. S. S. R. and other forms of publicity.

The friends of the Soviet Union claims to be a "strictly neutral," and "non-partizan" body. Its membership is open to all. Its only aim is said to be the popularization of the real truth about the U. S. S. R. In its publications and in speeches it carefully avoids the usual Communist slogans.

Thousands Join

Hundreds of thousands of people of all professions are members of this organization: Teachers, physicians, artists, clerks, even clergymen—people who would never dream of voting for candidates of the Communist Party. They sincerely believe themselves members of a neutral, non-political organization.

While serving in Moscow, I had ample opportunity to study the methods of the "Friends of the Soviet Union (abridged: FSU). Its secret international center in Moscow is disguised under the name of the "Foreign Relations Commission" of the Soviet Trade Unions.

This center supplies the FSU all over the world with propaganda. Tens of thousands of magazines, newspapers, books, pamphlets, printed in English, French, German, Swedish and other languages by special propaganda organizations in Moscow, are sent to the various national sections abroad entirely free of charge.

The Moscow center also supplies the FSU with Soviet films, film strips for magic lanterns, with thousands of photographs, ready mounted exhibitions on subjects such as the Red army, collective farms, history of the Russian Revolution, racial minorities in the U. S. S. R. etc., so that practically 75 per cent of the material distributed by the FSU abroad is derived from Moscow.

But this is only one pillar of this far flung body. The official central organization of the various national sections of the Friends Of The Soviet Union all over the world is the so-called "International Committee," formerly located in Berlin, but since Hitler's coming into power, situated in Amsterdam.

It is directed by an Englishman, named Inkpin, former secretary of the British Communist Party. British Communists whom I met maintain that Inkpin owns several houses in London.

Inkpin receives his salary from the Communist International in Moscow and a considerable amount for maintenance of the International committee and the support of the national sections. He travels half of the year and frequently goes to England to control the activities of the British section so that it may be in accord with Moscow.

Inkpin also goes to Moscow and report to Manuilski, secretary of the Communist International. Recently, in accordance with the latest changes in that organization these reports are also submitted to Dimitroff, the new general secretary.

New England Police Stories

The Deadly Cream Puffs

As Told by Ace Crime Reporters

Widow Uses Mail To Do Her Killing

This is the 121st in a series of true murder-mystery stories, taken from New England police and court annals, now being published daily in the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Fred Perkins, one of the ace reporters for the American and Sunday Advertiser, relates this thrilling story of "The Deadly Cream Puffs."

By FRED PERKINS

Young Henry Cassavant would have laughed at you, if you had told him he had a lot to learn about women.

He would have been [illegible] about it. He would have [illegible] himself no Don Juan, but he would have let you understand that to him a girl was a [illegible] and a kiss was a kiss, and all the stuff about mystery [illegible] feminine [illegible] was hooey.

He certainly didn't start [illegible] analyzing the situation with his movie companion, as charming a little widow as there was in Woonsocket [illegible] put a teasing question to him.

"I suppose, Henry, you were out to see Nellie last night, as usual?" she asked smilingly.

Henry grinned and nodded.

"And I suppose that she cooked one of those marvellous suppers for you, the kind that are better than a man can buy in any restaurant?"

"She sure did," agreed Henry, this talk of food beginning to awaken his real interest in the conversation. "And is that girl, Nellie, a whiz with a cookstove! Last night she baked me a batch of cream puffs. Oh boy, oh boy, maybe they weren't Heaven!"

Henry's fair companion fell suddenly silent.

Henry supposed she was looking at the movie.

Puffs by Mail

After the show was over everything was quite as usual between Henry and his little widow. They had a bite together and he took her home. They both lived in the same neighborhood, over Ross street [illegible].

Two days later, however, Henry [illegible] kind of chicken [illegible] when he opened a package a special delivery mailman brought him [illegible] where [illegible] would [illegible] a [illegible] job.

It was [illegible] picked [illegible] sweetest, most luscious cream [illegible]

"Guess I've got the whole town cooking for me now," Henry told his helper, Almand Vadeboncouer. "But I can't eat all three of these. You try one, will you?"

The cream puffs, Henry [illegible] Nellie had [illegible] for him.

[illegible] it was Nellie, the "cookstove whiz," whom Henry [illegible] to the movies. He intended to [illegible] her about the parcel post cream puffs, kid her along a little about how good her unknown rival's pastry was.

The occasion, however, turned out to be one not well adapted to facetiousness.

She Calls Doctor

For Henry wasn't feeling so hot. And before the show was over he was so sick he and Nellie had to leave the theater.

At Nellie's alarmed insistence Henry let her take him home in a taxicab. He also let her call a doctor.

Then he told about the cream puffs.

"They must have been spoiled," he groaned.

"Listen, Henry," interrupted Nellie. "Have you got the box those cream puffs came in? I'd like to look at it."

She found the box and the wrapping, after Henry had told her where to look.

"There's no sender's name," she commented. "But it's a woman's writing on the wrapper. I'm going to take this home with me, Henry, and see if I can't find out where those cream puffs came from. If they came from a bakery, the authorities ought to be notified. Half the town'll be sick in bed, if there's more of that kind of pastry going around."

Her words reminded Henry of something.

"Say," he gasped. "Al Vadeboncoeur, my helper, ate one of those cream puffs. Telephone him, will you, and see whether he's okay or not?"

But they didn't tell Henry Cassavant what they learned.

They learned that Almand Vadeboncoeur was dead!

Police Suspicious

Vadeboncoeur's doctor signed a death certificate to that effect [illegible] Vadeboncoeur's body over to undertakers who promptly embalmed it and prepared it for burial.

[illegible] Chief [illegible] Coe [illegible] with Nellie [illegible]

Chief Coe turned the box over to State Police [illegible] for chemical analysis. He [illegible] addressed wrapper [illegible] have occasion [illegible] with [illegible]

Easy to Learn

"Henry was going to marry me," she told Chief Coe. "There were a lot of other girls, however, who were always chasing him. Some of them were pretty jealous. There was one in particular I'd like to know more about. Her name is Nellie something or other and she works out at former Governor Pothier's house on Pond street."

Chief Coe received this information non-committally. He didn't say he had already talked with Nellie, that he knew very well who she was and all about her.

Nor did he say that his department was carefully investigating Henry Cassavant's whole background and checking his feminine acquaintances.

Finally, being a gentleman, Chief Coe was careful not to [illegible] to Henry's little widow that [illegible] Henry was [illegible] to announce their engagement.

"We'll look into this case very thoroughly," he promised. "Meantime, if you get any clues, just you come to me without hesitation."

Scorned!

It wasn't hard for Woonsocket police to find out almost all there was to know about Henry Cassavant, himself, for Henry wasn't a man with many secrets.

He had been friendly for five or [illegible] more with his little [illegible] was Mrs. Hattie [illegible] [illegible] she was 39 years old, but she didn't look it nor act it!

There was no least doubt, according to neighbors, about Mrs. Oakley's affection for Henry Cassavant.

In years past, when Henry hadn't owned an automobile, she had ridden around the countryside behind him on his motorcycle.

Other Girls, Too

[illegible]

They knew [illegible]

He had found [illegible]

[illegible]

"I've found out who that Nellie girl is," she said. "And I remember Henry told me, a week or more ago, that Nellie was all the time baking cream puffs for him. Maybe Nellie baked these. And maybe she put something in them, something she intended to kill Henry. Because she knew he loved me."

One Man Slain; One Gets Well, Wiser

Again the chief nodded, non-committal.

"We'll look into it," he promised. "We appreciate your help. Come in as often as you like.

"And there's another little thing. Can you tell me just how Henry spelled his name. C-A-S-S-A-V-A-N-T? Won't you write it down for me, Mrs. Oakley. And what was the name of that block where he was working, Cloutier? Write that down, too, for me, if you please."

Mrs. Oakley obliged.

After having checked every drug-store in Woonsocket, they had found one which had a record of the sale of two ounces of arsenic [illegible] day before the cream puffs with the arsenic filling had been delivered to Henry Cassavant.

Clerk Knows Her

The arsenic sale, of which police learned, had been made at Hod[illegible] [illegible]

"Is this she?" a police detective asked him, showing a photograph.

"It sure is," the clerk agreed instantly. "She's quite a regular customer. I see her often. She said she wanted the arsenic to kill rats with."

That same afternoon Mrs. Oakley called again at the police station.

"I've just met a boy," she said excitedly, "and he's given me a perfectly wonderful clue. You know that girl, Nellie, I was telling you about? Well, she——"

Chief Coe interrupted her sternly.

"Never mind, Mrs. Oakley," he said. "I must warn you that anything more you say may be used against you. You are under arrest for the murder of Almand Vadeboncoeur and the attempted murder of Henry Cassavant."

When it came time for Mrs. Oakley's lower court arraignment police didn't show their whole hand but they showed enough.

They showed a little more when they went before the grand jury and obtained the necessary indictments.

But they finally laid their card on the table only at Mrs. Oakley's trial at Providence before Judge [illegible] W. Sweeney and a jury.

It had been on January [illegible], 1936 that the poisoned cream puffs had been mailed [illegible], with fatal results to Vadeboncoeur and painful results to Cassavant.

It had been on January 31 that Mrs. Oakley had been arrested.

It was on June 1 that, by advice of counsel, Mrs. Oakley requested permission to plead nolo to a charge of second degree murder.

That permission was granted her [illegible].

No defense was attempted.

Mrs. Oakley didn't take the stand.

It was a life imprisonment sentence!

At the time of the trial, Cassavant was still in critical condition at the hospital. He couldn't have testified [illegible]

[illegible]

He never did accuse her!

All he would say was.

"I don't know! I don't know!"

It is likely, however, he had forever lost his appetite for cream puffs.

And, if you had told him then that there was a lot he didn't know about women, he wouldn't have laughed.

He was just beginning to learn.

(In tomorrow's Boston Evening American another true murder-mystery story will be related.)

Bonuses Vainly Sought By Wives of Deserters

COURT ACTION AGAINST MEN ILLEGAL

BY THE BONUS EDITOR

Deserted wives, no matter how deserving, may expect no assistance from the Veterans' Administration in locating mates who are A. W. O. L.

The Boston Evening American's Bonus Editor and the bureaus where bonus applications are filed have been besieged by these unhappy women, in many instances mothers of large families, for information as to the whereabouts of their absent husbands.

Regretfully but definitely, they are advised that such information is confidential—a secret between the veteran and the Veterans' Administration.

A wife in the position described has no course of action through which she may get such data except to write H. L. McCoy, assistant director, Veterans' Administration, Washington, D. C., who will forward her letter to her husband-veteran's last address.

ANSWER IS NO

In many cases wives, separated from their husbands for some time but not divorced, desire to know if they can obtain the latter's bonus money.

The answer is again NO, NO NO. The bonds are deliverable only to the veteran and no court action against them is legal.

It may not surprise the majority of Boston's deserted wives to learn that many husbands, in applying for the bonus, have specifically requested that no information [illegible] given their wives as to their present address.

Many veterans, who were in the service only 90 days, are asking if they are entitled to a bonus, in addition to the $60 bonus they collected when they were discharged.

In that case, they may apply for the bonus, which would be $30, or $1 per day, beyond the first 60 days.

"I am a veteran's widow," reads a letter from Mrs. Elizabeth B., of Readville. "When my husband died in 1930 I was his beneficiary named on his discharge papers—or were they, perhaps, his bonus papers? Will [illegible] kindly tell me if that was [illegible] bonus money I received [illegible]"

[illegible]swer—In [illegible] probability you [illegible] your husband's bonus [illegible]ent. No further payments are [illegible]

[illegible] Teresa M. N. of Neponset [illegible]

[illegible]y late husband was in service only a few weeks and then [illegible] honorably discharged at Boston Navy Yard. I have misplaced his discharge. Am I entitled to his bonus?"

Answer—If he was in service [illegible] to November 11, 1918, he can [illegible]ke application for bonus allowance. This application must be made within one year of the date of death.

B. H. W., of Rutland street, who served as regional director of the French Army in charge of athletics during the war, is advised to go to the office of Cornelius Burke, No. 608 Post Office Building, Boston, bringing with him all his army papers. The Bonus Editor has discussed his case with Mr Burke, who requires further details to adequately advise Mr W.

F. X. McC. of Mt. Vernon street, Beacon Hill, asks what is due him in bonus bonds if he served a year overseas.

Answer—Sixty days is (allowing for the $60 bonus every soldier received when he was discharged) from the number of days you served overseas and this figure is then multiplied by a statistical figure arrived at in the Veterans' Administration office by computing your age and the date you applied for the bonus. To this figure is added the 3 per cent interest [illegible] all bonds and certificates [illegible].

Among the many letters from grateful veterans received at this desk is the following signed by Gilman Seabury, adjutant of Winslow-Holbrook Post No. 1, Rockland, Me.

"This Post wishes to acknowledge the help given by the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser to the American Legion during its fight to secure the payment of the adjusted compensation certificates."

Busy workers swiftly tread the Bonus path as they prepare for the bonus rush on Monday, June 15. At the Federal Reserve Bank. This group, showing an overseer and two clerks, was made as busy fingers and eyes checked and rechecked papers that are necessary for the prompt delivery of bonus bonds to the war veterans.

BONUS BOND HELPERS GEARED LIKE CLOCK-WORK

Veterans, Note!

Veterans, the following instructions are your shortest route to your bonus:

1—Be at the address you gave in your bonus application from 5 p. m. on Monday, June 15, until postman arrives. If you have moved to another address in the same county, notify the postman or postmaster at once. If your new address is in a different county make application to the Treasury Department, Washington, D. C., giving your old and new addresses.

2—When the postman arrives have some one identify you. Have available your Army or Navy discharge, driver's license, letters, lodge membership card, rent receipt or similar papers.

3—Veterans in the Boston postal area may take their bonds to one of the 23 certifying units and exchange them for an interim receipt, so that within 24 to 48 hours they will be sent a Government check. Identification will be by two witnesses, known either to a veteran organization officer or to the postal employes who will be on duty there.

4—The check may be cashed through your bank, your place of employment or by a business connection where you are known. If you have a bank account, your bonds may be certified there and the bank will collect your check for you.

5—Veterans who expect to be absent from home on June 15 should notify the postoffice where they will be on or near that date. If in a foreign port the U. S. consul is authorized to certify their bonds and assist in making application for a Government check. In making such an application give the address to which you wish the check mailed.

GIRL HAS 3 VOICES

Sings in All on New Phonograph

Ithaca, N. Y., June 4 (AP)—Florence A. Wilcox, Itaca singer, is a trio—her own voice singing simultaneously soprano, mezzo soprano and alto—with aid of a new super-phonograph the invention of which was announced today at Cornell University.

Elements new in harmony [illegible] heard when as a trio she sings Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata." Her voices are distinct, perfect in synchronization and of a similarity in timbre new in musical production.

5-MAN BAND IN ONE

It is the result of years of work in which Professor Karapetoff began by devising a phonograph in which he was a five-man band and the sole player of all instruments.

The new device is both a recording and playing phonograph. It can be played like other musical instruments with aid of foot pedals and hand stops which control electrical switches.

Its operation is easy so that even a child can learn to play the variations available. Its purpose is to enable music lovers actually to accompany great singers or great instrumental musicians, by singing or playing with them.

TEACHING CHILDREN

It was designed also, Professor Karapetoff said, for use in teaching children to play or sing. With it they could join in the record of any voice or instrument and proceed as haltingly as their training demands.

To make the trio Miss Wilcox sang the "Sonata" three times, first in soprano, then mezzo soprano, then alto. The super-phonograph recorded them all on the same record.

TEACHER WINS BALLAD PRIZE

New York, June 5—F. O. Cooke, 24, high school teacher of Metuchen, N. J., today was named as the winner of the $100 regional prize offered by the New York American for the best melody submitted for "Just You," first of the lyrics in the Berton Braley ballad competition.

Cooke's musical script will be entered with others from 15 cities to be judged for an additional national award of $100. The air winning the national prize will be widely played by orchestra leaders and bandmasters on radio hookups.

In announcing the prize winner Dr. Sigmund Spaeth, tune detective and chairman of the national jury of awards, said:

"This music is written in slow blues tempo and has an understrain of 'My Country 'Tis of Thee' in a minor key.

"It is a distinctive air, and Rudy Vallee, another of the judges, was particularly impressed with it, saying Cooke indicates genuine talent in composition."

O'Neil Opposed In Gloucester

Gloucester, June 5 — Leading Democrats of Gloucester hope to initiate a movement in the U. S. Senate which will block confirmation of the reappointment by President Roosevelt of Postmaster Gilbert W. O'Neil, a Republican holdover.

"There are several eligible Democrats in Gloucester capable of performing the duties of postmaster," said Sherman B. Ruth, as he departed for Springfield to sit as delegate at the Democratic state convention.

CAPTURED AT GUN-POINT AFTER 50-MILE AUTO CHASE

Climaxing a wild chase of more than 50 miles, two Chelsea youths were captured at gunpoint today by a police officer who leaped to the running board of their machine in Salisbury.

In Newburyport court the two youths, John J. Downing, 17, of Spencer avenue, and Charles Dalrymple, 16, of Washington avenue, pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny of the automobile and Downing also pleaded guilty to charges of operating without a license and registration.

Judge Nathaniel N. Jones filed the latter two charges but held the pair in $2000 each for the grand jury on the larceny count.

Several shots were fired and both pursued and pursuers narrowly escaped death in the mad chase.

The two youths allegedly stole the machine in Chelsea square and headed for Boston.

Word was flashed ahead and Charlestown police sought to capture them but the youths escaped. It was the same story in [illegible] as the fleeing machine headed into the Newburyport turnpike.

State troopers started the pursuit at the Topsfield barracks and continued after the speeding machine until it was finally brought to a halt in Salisbury.

Patrolman John Manghis of that town ended the madcap flight of the pair when he commandeered a passing car and gave chase from Salisbury square.

With gun drawn he clung to the side of the car and forced the youths to halt.

Evening Funeral For Cong. Andrew

Gloucester, June 5 — Sunday twilight will find the low-toned bell which Congressman A. Piatt Andrew donated for the carillon of Our Lady of Good Voyage Church tolling in his memory.

The selections include Chopin's "Funeral March," Handel's "Largo," the "Allegro" from Bethoven's "Seventh Symphony," the tone poem "Finlandia," by Sibelius, and "The Entrance of the Gods Into Valhalla," by Wagner.

THIS IS LIFE

By Robert E. Rogers

On Monday next, the Alumni Association of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology will hold its second annual get-together and reunion for everybody who can possibly come home for that day.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

Assuming that it will be a good day—with plenty of heat—there ought to be a good turnout. At least everybody who has been working hard on the event hopes so. The program will be simple, pleasurable and informative.

In the morning there will be a serious conference on transportation in all its various aspects—by road, by air, and by water, with experts having charge of each of the varied aspects of the subject.

Then there will be a luncheon for the returning alumni. Following that the faculty will be at home to anyone who cares to visit them and talk over old times.

There will be outdoor events, including a dedication of the handsome boathouse for the dinghies, built on the Memorial Drive in front of the Walker Memorial.

There will probably be races, too, for such of the student aquaticists who can keep their boats right side up on their keels in the face of the fitful gusts that blow about on the surface of the Charles river.

River May Prove Coolest Place in Town

Meanwhile, the senior class will hold its time-honored ceremony of Class Day to which the visiting firemen will be most cordially invited.

Ladies who may be bored by these goings-on have their choices of motor excursions to nearby points of interest and trips up and down the river on the busy little launch which will probably be the coolest place in greater Boston.

In the evening a gala dinner at the Symphony Hall, with the ladies looking on from the balcony, to be followed by at least a portion of a Pops program.

The affair will be honored by the presence of Honorable Newton D. Baker who will be the commencement orator the following day.

In the old days from 1912 to 1925 it was the custom of the Institute Alumni to hold mammoth jamborees every five years, including trips down the harbor, great parades by the various classes in a body, and elaborate sessions of various sorts.

With the coming of the depression the Alumni learned wisdom.

It was felt that these big parties, lasting two or three days, with wives and children all expected to turn up, were too expensive, too full of wear and tear, and too likely to cut into the summer vacation. When they happen once in 25 years, as at Harvard, all well and good. But once every five years was a little too much.

So last year the experiment of a one day party, that crowded into a single day all that anyone could possibly endure, was tried out and it turned out to be a big success. Nearly everyone it was found, could afford the time, money and energy for a single day. The thing was successful enough to be tried out again, and Mondays the 8th, was planned as a result.

The idea was not necessarily modeled on Harvard's Commencement Day with lunch in the Yard at noon, the procession of classes, and the Alumni exercises in the afternoon, but it seemed to work out just about as well and it is expected that Monday's festivities will turn out, after several years, and after the affair has been tried out several times, to be equally successful.

Tech Needs a Lure For the Old Grad

Technology particularly needs an occasion of the sort to lure the graduate back for Old Home Day. So many of our men go for years without seeing the changes that take place in the Institute.

There are no occasions, like a big football game, to give the boys an excuse for coming back.

Consequently a day to show that it is alive and kicking, that the old teachers are not dead yet and that there are improvements to be seen, is of vital importance.

Besides, an occasion on which the old grads can see the members of the graduating class being visibly received into the company of educated men, as old C. W. Eliot used to put it, will be good for both the initiates and the old boys.

The colored class banners will wave and for a few moments both the new and the old men will feel what it means to be "safe now in the wide, wide world."

At any rate it will be worth while travelling a hundred miles or so to experience that feeling once more.

FOOD FAMINE IS NEW PERIL

Paris, June 5 (INS)—Fears of an immediate food shortage forced prices sharply upward in Paris today as the nation's epidemic of "folded arms" strikes continued to spread despite the assumption of power by the new Socialist government.

A panicky atmosphere grew in many localities, where long queues were formed before food markets by persons seeking to lay in supplies.

The new premier, Leon Blum, appealed to the country in a nation-wide radio broadcast shortly after noon, urging the public to avoid panic in the crisis, and asking workers and employers to settle differences soon and peacefully

The unique type of strike, in which workers of nearly all industries quit jobs in small groups and without instructions from union leaders, spread like a disease, and for the moment there appeared no authority able to control it.

Near Panic

Near panic resulted in many localities because of the food shortage fears. Prices were boosted. Shopkeepers urged long lines of patrons to be calm, explaining the apparent shortage was due to the heavy demand rather than to any actual stoppage of supplies.

Up until noon today the crisis was notable for its lack of violence, but authorities feared the growing panic might result in disorders soon soon unless the strikes could be settled

Blum, in a four-minute broadcast, announced the government would demand an immediate vote on the 40-hour work week, one of the chief demands of strikers, the colleitive contract, and pay for vacations.

Blum said·

Blum's Plea

Blum's government represents the popular front of Socialists, radical Socialist, and Communists, victorious in the last elections

He said the government was prepared to act quickly regarding all workers, and he asked workers to put their faith in the law. Their claims must be obtained by law, he said.

Blum then asked employers to examine workers' claims in a liberal spirit, and closed with a final appeal to the public to avoid panic and "perfidious rumors which unfriendly observers are disseminating"

As Blum finished radio listeners in could hear strikers singing and dancing inside the Javel telephone apparatus factory, the workers having broadcast on the same wave length. A worker delegate then explained the strikers' viewpoint.

Department store workers joined the strikes today, and only the Socialist and Communist newspapers were published. All newestand operators were on strike.

All flour and grain mills in the Paris region were closed, threatening a serious bread shortage.

A railway strike was believed imminent, an event which would cripple food transportation and further jeopardize the capital's supply.

Slaying Trial Set

Augusta, Me., June 5—Trial of James H. Folsom is to be started without delay in Kennebec County Superior court following the return of an indictment charging him with the slaying of Mary Proulx, 7, in Waterville last month.

Those Dear Old Grads!

Amherst, June 5—How do two decades of life at work change a college graduate?

They will undergo tests to determine who has the biggest waistline, the greatest number of children, the greatest "hot-air" capacity and flat feet.

A pretty nurse, who led Alderman Timothy J. "Steve" Cronin of Somerville through a recent battle against death, will accompany him in the rest of his march through life.

Slipping away from their Greater Boston friends, Alderman Cronin and Miss Dorothy B. Steele, nurse in Lawrence Memorial Hospital, Medford, were married yesterday in St. Mary's Church, Brookfield.

State Trooper James E. Cronin, brother of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Cronin attended the ceremony, where the Rev. Leo Rock celebrated the nuptial mass.

Worcester, June 5—My Blonde, Rockingham winner paying $12.20 on a $2 ticket, ran first too late to do her supporter, George H. Newell, former Holden tax collector, much good.

State Detective Edward J. McCarthy revealed today that Newell, now serving a State Prison sentence of four to five years for embezzling township money, placed $2000 of his $25,000 boots on My Blonde several months ago, hoping to recoup his losses.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Ann Marsters

Hollywood, Calif., June 5—Yesterday I had luncheon at the Vendome.

It is one of the few restaurants in Hollywood where movie people really do congregate for luncheon. That might be difficult to believe after you have noticed all the signs along Wilshire boulevard which try to entice you with the words: "Eat the food the stars eat."

ANN MARSTERS

But you mustn't be fooled. If you are star-hunting at luncheon time, you should go either to the Vendome, or to one of the "Brown Derbys" that you have heard so much about.

You see, I am becoming so "Hollywood-wise" that I was "taken in" even by the cute puppies which are offered for sale at the front doors of these places.

It is just part of a scheme by which people wangle a living out of the tender-hearted.

The dog-seller at the Vendome was typical. He was rather shabbily dressed, but the puppy he carried (an adorable black cocker spaniel) was perfectly brushed and shined.

"How much will you take for him?" asks a stunningly dressed woman.

Mournful Look—and Up Goes the Price

"I hate to let him go," says the man, looking as mournful-eyed as the puppy—and he raises the price another $10.

Remember Baby Peggy?

When I was a little girl, she was the Shirley Temple of the moment. So you wonder what has become of her?

As Margaret Montgomery, she is doing a bit in "Girl's Dormitory." She is trying very hard to make a new start in Hollywood, and she says that her chief difficulty is to make people believe that she does not wish to capitalize on that old name and fame.

In the years that she has been out of pictures, she has studied dramatics and has played four years in vaudeville.

Still Has High Hope And Much Courage

"So far," she said, "I have had nothing but bits to do here, and many of them came to me through sentiment.

"But sometime I know I'll get a real chance to prove my acting ability."

• • •

They have been constant companions, lately, and Henry explained:

• • •

HOLLYWOOD HUMOR—The arm of the producer's wife was encircled with several diamond bracelets. Someone complimented her upon them and exclaimed about their beauty

• • •

HEARD ABOUT HOLLYWOOD—Frank Lloyd, Paramount director, will be in Boston and Salem next week, seeking locations for "The Witch of Salem" starring Claudette Colbert . . . E. E. Clive, almost as busy these days as when he used to run the Copley Theater is dashing from one set to another. On one, he's working with Kay Francis (who was once a student at Notre Dame Academy in the Fenway) and on the other, he's with Olivia De Havilland and Errol Flynn in "The Charge of the Light Brigade" . . . Ginger Rogers wants to go East and try her hand at dramatic stage roles in summer stock . . . Max Baer abandons orchestra leading and takes up training. He's going to fight "Millionaire" Murphy . . . Victor Moore, the comedian, of whom great things are expected by RKO, asked to be remembered to Eddie Lewis and spoke wistfully of Eddie's Club Chalet.

CHICAGO 'COUSINS' HERE FOR 3-GAME SERIES

SEEK 1ST WIN OVER CRONINS

By Joe Cashman

E. Trowbridge Collins, it is hinted, was up at the Fens betimes today to supervise personally the placing of a welcome mat on the threshold of the visitors' clubhouse, which is being taken over for a three-day occupancy by our Chicago "cousins" this p. m.

In fact, if our civic pride was what it should be, flags would be flying, bands would be playing and Mayor Mansfield would be on hand to present the keys of the city to chubby Jimmy Dykes, shepherd of the Windy City flock.

Even this would be a meager show of appreciation for the invaluable assistance our Chisox "cousins" have furnished the Red Sox pennant cause this season

Six times the rival Hose have clashed and six times our Chicago chums have obligingly taken it right on the button, thus being the only opponents who haven't yet landed at least one knockout wallop on our heroes

How's that for being helpful?

Knock Off Yanks

And that's only part of the contribution of these "go through" guys who wear the Pale Hose

The other part is four victories in seven starts against the New York Yankees, which gives them the honor of being the only foe to enjoy an edge over the league leaders.

When the current Western invasion opened last Tuesday the Croninmen were 4½ games below the roof. Now they are but 2½ games back. They swept a three-game series with the Indians and the White Sox took two out of three from the Yanks in New York

How different it would be if the Dykes Demons had treated the Sox like they have the Yanks and vice versa.

So, we repeat, our Chicago "cousins" are deserving of a gala welcome even though they threaten to shoot Vernon "No-Hit" Kennedy, their prize pitcher, to the hill today.

Vernon has come the closest to halting the Fenwaylites. He held them to two runs out in Chicago. He didn't win because he was pitted against Robert Moses Grove on one of his shutout afternoons

And so much faith has Manager Joe Cronin in the generosity of the invaders that he's coming right back tomorrow with Memphis Jim Henry.

Whether or no either of these selections prove a "break" for the White Sox, they are sure of receiving one big favor in the engagement. They won't be called on to face Mr. Grove

Mose earned a vacation until Monday next by completing the slaughter of the third place Indians with a 4 to 3 victory, his eighth of the year

Game for Books

It was a game for the books, one of the most spine tingling ever played anywhere.

Proving astonishingly tough, George Blaeholder gave our peerless portsider a most stubborn argument

"Lefty" hurled scoreless ball for the first six frames, thanks to a miracle shoestring catch by Cramer in the third, yet he was leading only 1 to 0 going into the seventh

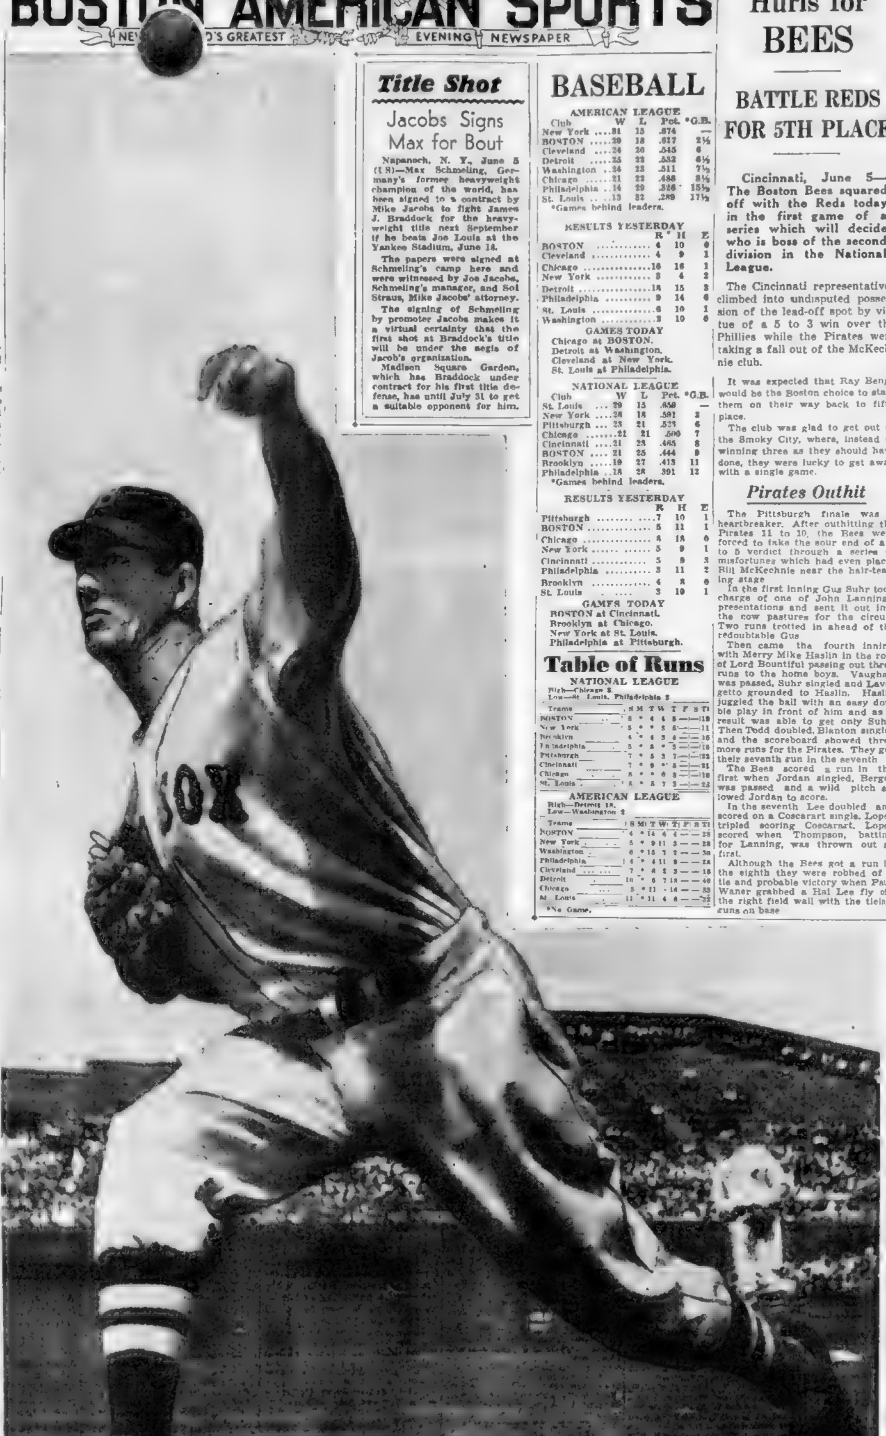
Then he weakened momentarily and the hostiles went in front by turning two walks and two singles into two runs

The Sox wiped out that lead in their half on a walk by Rick Ferrell, a Grove sacrifice and a single by the scintillating Cooke, who had chased home the first run of the game in the fifth with a double

The Indians, fighting desperately, regained the lead by scoring a run on Averill's triple and a scratch single by pinch-hitter Winegarner in the eighth

But again the Sox rallied in their half to put over two runs on a double by McNair, single by Cronin and double by Werber

Then, in the ninth, McNair saved the decision with as great a catch as has ever been made at the Yawkey Yard. Sprinting from his second base position to the foul line after a pop over first by Gleeson, he reached the ball with his glove by a superhuman dive and held it while he made a one-point landing on his shoulder and turned a flock of ground loops. And 7500 hearts returned to normalcy.



THE GREAT MASTER at work. Lefty Grove again proved his mound wizardry yesterday when he allowed the Indians nine scattered hits to chalk up his eighth victory of the year against a lone loss. The Red Sox mound ace has now fully recovered from his split finger and will take his regular turn.

Title Shot

Jacobs Signs Max for Bout

Napanoch, N. Y., June 5 (I S)—Max Schmeling, Germany's former heavyweight champion of the world, has been signed to a contract by Mike Jacobs to fight James J. Braddock for the heavyweight title next September if he beats Joe Louis at the Yankee Stadium, June 18.

The papers were signed at Schmeling's camp here and were witnessed by Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, and Sol Straus, Mike Jacobs' attorney.

The signing of Schmeling by promoter Jacobs makes it a virtual certainty that the first shot at Braddock's title will be under the aegis of Jacob's organization.

Madison Square Garden, which has Braddock under contract for his first title defense, has until July 31 to get a suitable opponent for him.

BENGE Hurls for BEES

BATTLE REDS FOR 5TH PLACE

Cincinnati, June 5—The Boston Bees squared off with the Reds today in the first game of a series which will decide who is boss of the second division in the National League.

The Cincinnati representatives climbed into undisputed possession of the lead-off spot by virtue of a 5 to 3 win over the Phillies while the Pirates were taking a fall out of the McKechnie club.

It was expected that Ray Benge would be the Boston choice to start them on their way back to fifth place.

The club was glad to get out of the Smoky City, where, instead of winning three as they should have done, they were lucky to get away with a single game.

Pirates Outhit

The Pittsburgh finale was a heartbreaker. After outhitting the Pirates 11 to 10, the Bees were forced to take the sour end of a 7 to 5 verdict through a series of misfortunes which had even placid Bill McKechnie near the hair-tearing stage

In the first inning Gus Suhr took charge of one of John Lanning's presentations and sent it out into the cow pastures for the circuit. Two runs trotted in ahead of the redoubtable Gus

Then came the fourth inning with Merry Mike Haslin in the role of Lord Bountiful passing out three runs to the home boys. Vaughan was passed, Suhr singled and Lavagetto grounded to Haslin. Haslin juggled the ball with an easy double play in front of him and as a result was able to get only Suhr Then Todd doubled, Blanton singled and the scoreboard showed three more runs for the Pirates. They got their seventh run in the seventh

The Bees scored a run in the first when Jordan singled, Berger was passed and a wild pitch allowed Jordan to score.

In the seventh Lee doubled and scored on a Coscarart single. Lopez tripled scoring Coscarart. Lopez scored when Thompson, batting for Lanning, was thrown out at first.

Although the Bees got a run in the eighth they were robbed of a tie and probable victory when Paul Waner grabbed a Hal Lee fly off the right field wall with the tieing runs on base

MR. BOSTON

Robert Reprisal: Danno's Defender Sets the Terms

By JACK CONWAY

JACK McGRATH, who found youthful Danno O'Mahony throwing a 56-pound weight in Dublin, Ireland, and later managed him into the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, lit a cigarette and then adjusted his eye glasses. If you did not know the astute Mr. McGrath, you might suspect he was a college professor or possibly a delegate to the international conference at Geneva. There is not anything bombastic or excitable about McGrath's makeup. He plays the game of wrestling with the shrewdness and foresight of a chess player.

Mr. Boston

Jack arrived in his native Worcester from Montreal to read in the newspapers where Eddie Quinn, manager of Yvon Robert, was taking terrific verbal shots at Danno O'Mahony. I was interested to find out what McGrath's reactions were to the whole thing.

"When in Montreal," said McGrath, "Jack Ganson offered O'Mahony a guarantee of $15,000 with a 37⅓ per cent privilege to defend his world's heavyweight championship against Yvon Robert. I refused the offer as I know O'Mahony wouldn't have a chance of winning in Robert's home town. He would be jobbed like Strangler Lewis was when he lost his title to Henri DeGlane. The referee in the Lewis-DeGlane match disqualified the Strangler on the ground he bit DeGlane. I don't know what dodge they would use to strip O'Mahony of his title, but it is certain they would rule against him.

Time Limit Bouts Injure Wrestling

I ASKED McGrath if there was any chance of O'Mahony giving Robert a championship match in Boston or in some other American city.

"Yes," replied McGrath slowly, "but with conditions. I'll name the terms for the match. They will have to be the same as in Danno's last meeting with Robert."

"You mean a bout with a two-hour time limit," I said. "Personally I think a championship tussle should be to an absolute finish. The draw decision in the last O'Mahony-Robert go was unsatisfactory to me. I like to see a winner and a loser in a title contest whether it is wrestling, boxing or some other sport."

"Most of O'Mahony's bouts have been to a finish," went on McGrath. "Quinn and Robert, however, have been so nasty in their attitude toward O'Mahony and myself that I don't think I have to show them any consideration.

I still insist title bouts should have a winner and a loser. O'Mahony and McGrath owe it to the public and to the wrestling game to war against contests which have a time limit.

O'Mahony would add to his prestige as a wrestler if he were to defend his title against Robert in a finish contest. The American Wrestling Association, which has championed O'Mahony's casue in his controversy with Dick Shikat, should insist that Danno meet Robert with the time limit off. Let the bout, if signed up, be to a positive finish. Otherwise I personally don't care to watch it.

Ruth May Go to Olympic Games

DENNIE DENNIS, who will be Leslie Mann's assistant in the management of the American Olympic baseball team, was a caller. He revealed to me that an invitation will be extended to Babe Ruth to make the trip to the Olympic games with the American amateur ball players.

"Babe Ruth stands for baseball everywhere," said Dennis. "He would be a tremendous drawing card in Europe, and it might be arranged for him to give a special exhibition of hitting a baseball at the Olympic games in Berlin.

"It will be the first time that a baseball team will represent the United States in the Olympic games. Our team, which will consist of 20 players, will be picked at trials which will be held in Baltimore from July 1 through July 12. The 20 players will be named from different states so that it will be a representative American club.

"We shall sail for Germany on July 15 aboard the S. S. Manhattan. Our first game will be against a nine from North Africa on August 12. We shall later play at Antwerp, Amsterdam, London and Paris, and shall return home early in September.

"Leslie Mann sold Avery Brundage, president of the A. A. U., the

VICTOR GHEZZI LEADS PACK IN NATIONAL OPEN

TWO DAY Total Now 140

ONE STROKE FROM RECORD

Short Hills, N. J., June 5 (INS)—Victor Ghezzi, tall, saturnine and methodical, shot another 70 at his field this morning to take a temporary, and perhaps permanent, lead over the pack in the second round of the National Open Golf Championship.

The performance gave him a two-day total of 140, a single stroke behind the all-time record for championship play at this point.

The overnight leaders were Paul Runyan, Clarence Clark and Ray Mangrum with 96 each. But it was considered doubtful whether they would be able to better the effort of Ghezzi, who gave a magnificent demonstration of how golf should be played.

Yesterday he went to the turn in 33, three under par, without a mistake until the sixteenth. Today he hit the turn in 34 and made no mistake until the sixteenth!

Here he three putted to take his only score over par. Then he played the seventeenth in par 5 and the eighteenth in par 4. This came on the end of a tee shot that split the fairway and an approach that finished flag high 20 feet from the cup.

Ghezzi's card:
Out 4 4 3 4 3 4 3 5 4—34
In 3 5 4 3 4 3 5 5 4—36—70—140

Made One Fumble

Ghezzi was almost flawless in his monotonous perfection. He got home with a drive and a mashie for his birdie at the first. He did it with a drive and a 7-iron at the fifth. At the 13th he holed a 20-footer for another birdie and at the next he was hole high in two and went down in two putts for a par.

Over the green with his tee shot at the fifteenth he chipped to within four inches of the cup. His miscue on the sixteenth green was his only fumble.

Ky Laffoon, with a 71 yesterday, shot a sub-par 35 and Mangrum, the 69-man, was also 35 to the ninth, playing the last seven holes in two under par, with birdies at the seventh and ninth. This performance made him exactly even with Ghezzi at the twenty-seventh.

Johnny Bulla, Chicago, a 71 man yesterday, seemed fading with a 39. Tommy Kerrigan, 70 yesterday, had a par 36 while W. W. Crowder, Warrensville, O., a 73-man, shot 39.

Willie Goggin, the Californian, shot 34 to the turn, with birdies at the first and second holes and then seven pars. He had a 73 yesterday. Tommy Armour, with a 74 yesterday, reached the ninth in 35.

Jake Fassezke, Jackson, Mich., was handicapped by a strained arm in shooting 38—41—79 for a total of 151. He suffered the injury yesterday while shooting his par 72.

Dusty Cooke Leads Red Sox at Bat

By Joe Cashman

Robert Moses Grove's thrilling Thursday triumph over the Indians put him back at the top of the pitching heap with eight wins and one defeat. Monte Pearson of the Yanks, who had been leading with the same record, suffered his second setback when the White Sox knocked him out of the box in the first inning over in New York.

The Sox have gone back to their old habit of failing to make many runs at the bat whenever Grove is pitching. This started [illegible] season by [illegible] him eight runs [illegible] of his first two starts, but since then he has had to struggle every inch of the way for his wins.

"If I grow me a beard before my next game," he chirped while under the showers yesterday, "these guys may think I'm a new pitcher from the House of David who needs plenty of runs to win and go out and get 'em."

For a fellow who didn't see any real pitching for a month and can't yet take his normal grip on the bat, the courageous Joe Cronin has done a remarkable job of hitting since returning to the lineup. His Thursday contributions were a double and a single and the knocking in of the tying run in the eighth.

"Heinie" Manush and "Rick" Ferrell finally got back in the game at the finale against the Indians, "Heinie" playing the entire game in leftfield, went hitless. Little "Rick" singled and scored the first run of the game on Cooke's double in the fifth and then, after [illegible] to start a rally in the seventh, he was removed to let Jack Wilson run for him. He may take today off as his ankle is still far from strong.

The amazing "Dusty" Cooke is now the leading hitter among the Sox regulars. He helped himself to three safeties off George Blaeholder to boost his average to .331. The pet peeve of most of the fans in past years, "Dusty" has become the prime favorite of the patrons, especially the bleacherites who greet him vociferously every time he runs out to his sun pasture.

"Doc" Cramer continued his batting slump and also continued to turn in at least one [illegible] catch daily. His Thursday [illegible] was a catch of Knickerbocker's [illegible] over short in the second inning. While both Manush and Cronin were just failing to nab the pop, "Doc" made a [illegible] dive between them and made the catch with his glove on the turf.

That sensational clutch blow [illegible] was forgotten when McNair came through with his [illegible] in the ninth. It will always be a mystery how "Bob" managed to reach the [illegible] and a greater mystery how he managed to hold on to it while landing on his ear and somersaulting all over the premises.

The Indians feared Grove's tender thumb might handicap him in fielding bunts. They finally [illegible] otherwise when he threw [illegible] of them out.

The Indians went from here to New York where they open a three-game series with the Yankees today. So every victory the Sox can gain over Chicago will put them nearer the top [illegible] their margin over the third-place Tribe from the Forest City.

ANN MARSTERS' BEST BETS FOR TODAY

Hollywood, Cal., June 5 — My bankroll suffered a slight drop yesterday when one of my selections ran out of the money giving me a return of $11.30 for my $12 investment.

LADY DAY won at Agawam, paying $4 win, $3.60 place, while SWAMP ANGEL ran second at Rockingham, returning $3.70 for place. ADVOCATE JUNIOR ran out at Agawam. Going into the fifty-sixth day my bankroll is $441.70.

ANN MARSTERS' BETS

$2 Win, $2 Place, Bedight, Agawam, 3rd
$2 Win, $2 Place, Leros, Rockingham, 3rd
$2 Win, $2 Place, Star Porter, Belmont, 6th.
BANKROLL IS NOW $441.70. DAY'S PLAY $12

Loking over the eastern racing cards from this side of the continent today I'm selecting LEROS in the third at Rockingham and BEDIGHT in the third at Agawam. It's $2 win, $2 place on each.

My late special for today is STAR PORTER in the sixth race at Belmont. It's $2 win, $2 place on this one too.

(At the suggestion of Walter O'Hara, Miss Marsters has set out to determine that conservative bets can result in satisfactory profits, or at worst small losses. Walter O'Hara, Narragansett Park owner, provided the capital with a $1000 gift. Half was turned over to the Boston Evening American Christmas Fund immediately. The remainder will be similarly handled at the end of the experiment. This is the fifty-sixth day.)

LEROS BOSS OF THIRD AT ROCK

MONEY MUDDLE AT AGAWAM PARK

WILSON Best in SECOND

RETRIBUTION IN EIGHTH

By Dave Wilson
(Selections made for fast track)

BEST BET—MONEY MUDDLE 2ND RACE

Money Muddle, third to Screen, needs only to duplicate that most recent endeavor to win in the 5½ furlongs of the second stanza at Agawam Park today. He is the day's best bet.

FIRST RACE
Forget Not, Gay Blade, Canana

FORGET NOT breaks from one of the favorite outside post positions and needs only intelligent handling to earn brackets. GAY BLADE, a slow beginner, figures to be along in time to save the place from the faint hearted CANANA. The latter held on better than usual last time.

SECOND RACE
Money Muddle, Snicker, Gay Nellie

If anything upsets my dope and hands MONEY MUDDLE a drubbing, it will likely be SNICKER. The latter is dropping down. GAY NELLIE displayed [illegible] improvement last trip. Should prove hard to drub for the show award.

THIRD RACE
Bedight, Golden Effort, Molly

BEDIGHT ducked yesterday's third race to await this easier spot. Form charts point him out of a field of this sort. GOLDEN EFFORT, on general form, is [illegible] the danger. MOLLY, [illegible] faint-hearted, should [illegible] enough to save the [illegible]

FOURTH RACE
Fitkin, Evangelist, Stool Pigeon

FITKIN'S last race served to put him on edge for a winning effort in a cheap field of this sort. He outclasses his opposition on past records. EVANGELIST and STOOL PIGEON figure pretty much alike. They rate as named.

FIFTH RACE
Taunton, Dancing Cloud, Sun Way

SIXTH RACE
Three Daggers, James Boy, Old Lady

THREE DAGGERS' [illegible] effort goes for the well known Mr. Sweeney. Maryland form shows that he is capable of far better things. JAMES BOY, another that's heaps better than recent races, should offer the contention. OLD LADY figures to be right there, if up to a race.

SEVENTH RACE
Good Dame, Pilot Bread, Fife,

GOOD DAME needs only to run back to her last to chalk up consecutive brackets. She encounters little more than last trip. PILOT BREAD displayed excellent form in drubbing weaker company last time. Figures next best in what appears to be strictly a two-horse race. FIFE shapes up next best on Hagerstown form.

EIGHTH RACE
Retribution, Sound Money, Infilee,

Dartmouth High In Golf Final

Worcester, June 5 — Commerce high school of Worcester was favored today to defeat Dartmouth high school in the finals of the Massachusetts high school golf championship at Worcester Country Club.

Dartmouth earned a place in the finals by defeating Arlington high six matches to three, while Worcester disposed of Peabody high, 8½ to ½.

ENTHUSIASM IN FIFTH

By Dave Wilson
(Selections made for fast track)

BEST BET—LEROS THIRD RACE

Rockingham Park, June 5—Mrs. E. McCuan's Leros, on general form, sticks out like the proverbial sore thumb in the 5½ furlongs of the third stanza here today. He is the day's best bet.

FIRST RACE
Little Audrey, Sis Royal, Opoca

LITTLE AUDREY, on top form is entitled to the high figures in this wide-open affair. H. LeBlanc rides. SIS ROYAL, under a feather of 105 pounds, is strictly the danger. OPACA figures well on his last.

SECOND RACE
Dixie Princess, Be Just, Currants

DIXIE PRINCESS stands out over opposition of this sort. She needs only to duplicate her most recent endeavor in order to insure brackets. BE JUST, pitted a trifle too ambitiously last trip, should offer the contention. CURRANTS figures well in the fight for the minor award.

THIRD RACE
Leros, Radiator, Madwind

LEROS needs only to break alertly to score here. Form charts [illegible] over cheap opposition of this sort. Contention, if any will be furnished by RADIATOR. MADWIND holds some class.

FOURTH RACE
Believer, Tornadic, Sun Teatime

FIFTH RACE
Enthusiasm, Hope To Do, Liberal

ENTHUSIASM, a bang-up fourth to Speed To Spare, needs only to duplicate that most recent endeavor to insure brackets here. HOPE TO DO is dropping off eight pounds from a corking third to Fickle Chance and Vote Boy. LIBERAL for the remainder.

SIXTH RACE
Volta Maid, Seawick, Bye Bye Mary

VOLTA MAID stepped eight furlongs in 1 41 1-5 to make a holy show over similar opposition over a good track only a few days back. Previous form indicates that the additional furlong will be right down her alley. SEAWICK figures next best. BYE BYE MARY merits good figures on her last.

SEVENTH RACE
Miss Ginbar, Exaggeration, Running Heel

MISS GINBAR, well conditioned in spring endeavors, figures to take the lead and lead from flag-fall to finish. EXAGGERATION, freshened up slightly, shapes up dangerous on good Maryland efforts. RUNNING HEEL figures next best at the weights.

EIGHTH RACE
Legender, Sun Abbot, Masked Revue

LEGENDER, if not too sore, should romp through this weak opposition. Six panels in 1.16 indicates that he is coming up trained to the letter of perfection. SUN ABBOT, a slow beginner, should be along in time to save place from MASKED REVUE.

LONDON TOWN:

Well, gang, here is one on which I suggest you take the ribbon off the old kale sack. "Positively the best jumper shown hereabouts, since Good And Plenty." Such is the comment appended by the chief of staff at Belmont Park.

Personally, I feel this one of the safest sent along by the "Suicide Club" in many moons. Yeah, select your own second and third horses. That's HOW good.

Trainer Odom is sending a nice pair of two-year-olds postwards in the third. Now this trick SWAHILI may be a top notcher. Oh yes, they shipped STAR PORTER over from Maryland—for this spot. Also I understand JERSEY is loaded. Yeah, let your conscience be your guide.

HAWTHORNE

Out at Hawthorne the Denemark confederacy figure to mop up a gob with DARK WOMAN. On the occasion of her most recent start, she displayed brilliant speed, but apparently was a trifle short.

MANAGER BILL is the logical choice and probable contender. NAUGHTY, this way rigged, should win by open daylight—from the mob slated to bear colors in the fourth.

BLUE TRAIN, which has been freshened up, was whispered about—overnight—as a real good thing. You have the info for what it is worth. NATIONS TASTE and DARK MIST stand out in their respective races.

BELIEVER is the "Eagle Bird" from Rockingham Park. Taking a line through that last winning effort, it would seem she should win by open daylight. Also the "Market" was extremely "active" overnight. Yeah, and nothing "talks" just like it. More anon.

FLEETWOOD COHEN'S BEST AT WONDERLAND

Extra Expert's Pick To Win Feature

By Sam Cohen

BEST BET—FLEETWOOD SEVENTH RACE

Fleetwood, highly considered opening night only to disappoint, comes back again tonight and looks like a stickout on the ten-race card at Wonderland Park, Revere, tonight. The Hall dog got away to a poor start but finished strongly last time out and tonight his opposition is not quite as tough.

Extra, who ran like a real champion in the opener gets the nod in tonight's feature. The pride of Freda Koontz seems to have just enough to edge Molly Darling and Court House.

FIFTH RACE—5-16 MILE

PEPPER ANDREW—HOPING STILL—CASH COLLECTOR

2 Pepper Andrew	N. G. Allen	61	6-1	Should stay in front
4 Hoping Still	D. Leahy	60	6-1	Will win if ready

8 Regal Andrew	John Pesek	71	8-1	Well placed

PEPPER ANDREW winner of last two schooling races over futurity route by four length margins should go to the top and stay. HOPING STILL erratic. CASH COLLECTOR should be in the money. LADY CUTLET inclined to fade in closing stages. No line on others over route.

SIXTH RACE—FUTURITY

1 Salty Sea	John J. Keenan	[illegible]	5-2	Drubbed cheaper ones
6 Cheap Beef	J. F. Doyle	66	6-1	Also moving up

SEVENTH RACE—FUTURITY

6 Fleetwood	J. D. Hall	70	5-2	My best bet
7 Platinum	J. W. Ewall	70	6-1	Average schoolings

EXTRA—MOLLY DARLING—COURT HOUSE

7 Extra	Freda Koontz	54	5-2	Best in even race
5 Molly Darling	Mrs. M. Falling	49	5-2	Needs only to repeat last

7 Mary Elizabeth	J. A. Austin	59	7-1	Throw out last
6 Dancing Officer	Dan Oswald	64	7-1	Chance at price
5 Gangster's Boy	Crescent Kennels	69	8-1	Must improve
8 Uno Laddie	Foxhill Kennel	65	8-1	Rates close up
4 Just an Argument	John Pesek	70	10-1	Seems outclassed

DUMMY might surprise, can better opening night's effort. Others very even with JIMMY FOX getting the call because of opening night victory. JUST AN ARGUMENT worst of good, even lot.

idea of having a baseball nine represent the United States in the Olympic games. Baseball is our national pastime, and should be represented the same as other sports in the Olympic competition. Mann took a team of amateur ball players to Japan a year ago. The club made a splendid record, and attracted large crowds. Japan has a keen interest in baseball as was first shown when Babe Ruth attracted hundreds of thousands of persons to the games he played while touring the land of the Mikado."

Random Shots at the Target

JACK SHARKEY is thumping away at the small bag each day, doing regular gym work and also road work as he starts to get ready for his ten-round bout with Phil Brubaker at a Goodwin A. C. show at Fenway Park on June 25 . . . Brubaker will soon start East, and will complete his training in this city . . . Bill Greenlee, manager of John Henry Lewis, writes me that the world's light heavyweight champion is ready to box Al McCoy in this city the latter part of July or in August . . . Greenlee also informed me he is anxious to have Lewis appear in a Montreal ring . . . The light heavyweight champion has received an offer for two bouts in Australia . . . Boxing is going big in Australia as was proved when Charley Lucas guaranteed Barney Ross $15,000 and agreed to pay him an additional $5000 for expenses and also take care of his taxes for a bout with Jack Carroll for the world's welterweight championship . . . Ray Steel and George Zaharias, wrestlers, have signed for matches in Australia . . . O'Mahony may also go to Australia following his bouts in Ireland and England during the Summer.

Dot Andrus

New Member of Wightman Team

London, June 5 (AP)—Mrs. Dorothy Andrus of New York and Stamford, Conn., today was chosen as a fifth member of America's Wightman Cup tennis team.

Helen Jacobs, captain of the American team, announced the appointment and said it had not yet been determined whether Mrs. Andrus would play singles or doubles.

Mrs. Andrus has been playing bang-up tennis in European tournaments this year and yesterday defeated Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, American Wightman Cup team member, in the fourth round of the St. George's Hill tournament.

3 Record Holders In Tiger Meet

Princeton, N. J., June 5 (AP)—A complete entry list that reads like a 'Who's Who in American Track' was announced today for the third annual Princeton University invitation meet to be held in Palmer stadium, June 13.

Leading the list of 33 athletes—the cream of Uncle Sam's Olympic hopefuls—were three world record holders who are scheduled to compete in their favorite events.

Glenn Cunningham, former University of Kansas runner, who set his mark of 4:06.7 in the first invitation meet two years ago, will be pitted against his old rivals, Bill Bonthron and Gene Venzke in the mile event.

Walter Marcy of Fresno (Cal.) State College, who holds the standard of 6 feet 9⅛ inches, will be in the high jump with a crack field that includes Eddie Burke of Marquette, Al Threadgill of Temple, Cornelius Johnson of Compton Junior College, George Spitz, formerly of New York University, and the veteran Harold Osborn.

The third record holder was Al Moreau, Louisiana State graduate, who shares the 110-metre high hurdles mark of 14.2 seconds with Percy Beard.

Others entered include Milton Green of Harvard in the 100 meter hurdles, John Hofstetter of Dartmouth in the quarter mile, and Philip Good of Bowdoin College in the 120-yard high hurdles.

Injury Jinx Puts Out Cochrane

By Associated Press

One of the most persistent injury jinxes to dog any one club in years is doing its best to count the Detroit Tigers out of the pennant chase and wreck the world champion's hopes of hanging onto their honors.

A series of tough breaks beginning with the loss of the star Tiger hitter, Hank Greenberg, and following up with the removal of the No. 1 pitcher, Schoolboy Rowe, and the outfield slugger, Al Simmons, all laid up for repairs, was climaxed yesterday by an illness which took Manager Mickey Cochrane out of the lineup suffering from a nerve ailment.

His illness struck him suddenly shortly after he had smashed out a homer with the bases loaded to spark the Tigers to an 18-9 victory over the Athletics.

The win gave the Tigers undisputed possession of fourth place in the American League race, for the Washington Senators, with whom they had been deadlocked, lost their apparent stranglehold on the St. Louis Browns and fell 6-2 in the series finale.

British Walker Cup Team Complete

London, June 5 (INS)—Membership of the British Walker Cup golf team, which will oppose an American combination in New Jersey in September, was completed today with the announcement for four more players chosen to represent Britain.

Previously announced members of the Walker cup team were Dr. William Tweddell, captain; Harry Bentley, J. D. Langley, P. B. Lucas, Jock McLean and Hector Thomson.

TIGER AWAITS NEW PAPOOSE

New York, June 5 (AP)—At Baltusrol: Strange sight, indeed, to see Bobby Jones and Lawson Little, Jr., sitting on the sideslines as the boys teed off in the national open.

Bobby and a couple of pals went out for a practice round, but old Walter Hagen, looking younger and more jovial than ever, soon had the Jones gallery following him.

Who will win? Well, Jack Doyle, famous Broadway betting commissioner, says Horton Smith and Henry Pickard are the favorites . . . In Doyle's book this pair is 8 to 1 to win, 3 to 1 to place and 8 to 5 to show.

The real fireworks are expected to start popping in the third round Saturday morning . . . There will be no general tightening up until then . . . The Detroit money is backing Hagen to win.

Grand Slam

Michigan bettors hope Walter can duplicate the performances of the Detroit Tigers in baseball, the Detroit Lions in pro football, the Red Wings in hockey and make it more or less of a grand slam . . . Don't be surprised if the lowest score in the 40 years of the open's history wins this event.

At Napanoch: The dope here is that Joe Jacobs and Max Schmeling will definitely split after the Joe Louis fight and that "Yussel Yee" will go in as matchmaker of Mike Jacobs' Hippodrome . . . Trevor Wignall, famous sports columnist of the London Express, is watching Max train . . . Also Tommy Webster, the London cartoonist. Both came over on the Queen Mary.

Note to Joe Louis: Back in 1926 Schmeling knocked out a guy named W. Louis in one heat in a European ring—if that means anything . . . Schmeling puts in his spare time trying to learn to use a typewriter . . . Max has promised he'll return to Napanoch to train for Braddock—if he whips Louis. Ah!

Along Broadway: They say the Dempseys expect another 'cheerful little earful' in August . . . The Yanks continue to have trouble knocking off the second division clubs.

Professor Billy McCarney, one of the smartest of the fight managers, is back on the stem after a month in a dark room battling an ulcer on the eye . . . Jimmy Braddock has begun training for a September bout with either Louis or Schmeling . . . He's been doing gym work for two weeks and Monday will start road work.

Red Changes Name

The more you see of this big Irishman the less you wonder why his popularity is growing by leaps and bounds . . . noting the rapid pace the Italians on the Yanks—Di Maggio, Crosetti and Lazzeri—were setting, Charlie Ruffing, who had been in a slump, painted the name "Ruffino" on his bats and won two in a row . . . maybe there is something in a name, at that.

Most of the boys along Broadway have their dough on Horton Smith in the open . . . we stick to Picard but wouldn't be surprised if Harry Cooper gets loose.

Indians Buy Frank Jerwa

Springfield, Mass., June 5 (AP)—President J. Lucien Garneau of the Springfield Indians, who came here following the Canadian-American Hockey League's parley in New York on Wednesday, announced today that he has purchased Frank Jerwa, stellar forward, and Joe McGoldrick, veteran defence man, from the New Haven Eagles of the same league.

Pick Brevity To Win Stake At Belmont

By Associated Press

Race fans will find many outstanding improvements at old Aqueduct when the Queens County track opens its gates today. The entire plant has been repainted in green and white colors. Other important changes are: An extension of the grand-stand 100 feet, adding 1200 additional seats and affording more room underneath the stands for the bookmakers; the installation of the camera eye atop the judges' stand and also the finish announcers and the improvement of the jockey quarters.

The Belmont Stakes, which will be run over one and one half miles at Belmont Park tomorrow, has attracted so much interest that many of the leading trainers are hanging out their choices.

Max Hirsch, trainer of Bold Venture, winner of the Preakness and Kentucky Derby, selects Brevity, the horse his colt beat in the Derby. Hirsch Jacobs and Henry McDaniel also like Brevity while Earl Sande, who has ridden five Belmont winners, selects Granville. Frank Ryan believes Red Rain will win.

Ninety-six two-year-old fillies, the largest number in the history of the event, remain eligible for the Lassie stakes, which will be run at Arlington Park during July. Only 13 starters now are required to give the race a gross value of $35,000, the richest since the stake was inaugurated in 1929. The list of eligibles is headed by Hal Price Headley's Anogee, winner of the Fashion at Belmont Park and the Old Colony at Narragansett Park.

Metaraus Reacts to Saliva Test

Chicago, June 5 (AP)—The Illinois racing commission considered today the case of the first evidence of stimulation discovered this season on an Illinois track.

Stewards at Hawthorne yesterday, announcing the horse Metaraus had reacted positively to strychnine in a saliva test after winning a race last Monday, ruled off that thoroughbred and four others from the stable of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Orr of Omaha, Neb., for the remainder of the meeting.

Mrs. Fabyan Out Of Net Tourney

Weybridge, Eng., June 5—Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan of Brookline is the latest victim of the jinx which seems to affect American title seekers here this year.

The American tennis star was eliminated in the fourth round of the St. George Hills tennis tournament by another American, Miss Dorothy Andrus of Stamford, Conn.

JOHN L. Tops Joe LOUIS

TOM O'ROURKE TELLS RUNYON

(Tom O'Rourke, patriarch of pugilistica, strikes a discordant note in the paean of praise that rises from most of the old timers for Joe Louis. The veteran fight manager tells Damon Runyon that the secret of Joe Louis' punching power may be attributed to the caliber of Louis' opponents. This is the thirteenth of a series of special articles by the king of sports writers revealing the secret of Joe Louis' punching power.)

By Damon Runyon

Copyright 1936 by Universal Service

New York, June 5 (US)—Tom O'Rourke says the secret of Joe Louis' punching power may be the calibre of Louis' opponents.

Tom O'Rourke seems to strike a slightly discordant note in the paean of praise that rises from most of the old timers for Joe Louis.

He is rising four score year or more, and what he hasn't seen in Fistiana couldn't have been worth seeing.

Has Great Punch

He concedes that Joe Louis is apparently a great puncher and he attributes this to the fact that Louis is a sure hitter, that he is cautious and doesn't waste any punches, and that he always hits to the right spot.

But Tom says:

"We may know more about the secret of Joe Louis' punching power when we get a fellow like James J. Jeffries in front of him—the Jeff who fought Bob Fitzsimmons, the Jeff who could absorb punches 'til the cows came home.

"Louis hypnotized Carnera. Paolino was all right in spirit, but the poor fellow was all through physically. Baer acted as if he was attending his own funeral. I was surprised at Baer. I thought he was a dead game fellow. How are you going to tell a man's real punching power when his opponents quit in front of him? Louis didn't knock 'em dead, as you expect of a supposedly super-puncher.

"So I say, maybe the secret of Louis' punching power is the caliber of his opponents. Carnera looked a great puncher when he was tipping over those round-heelers early in his career in this country, but we know now he couldn't punch a lick. I admit that Louis seems to have all the attributes of a puncher, but I'd like to see him punch somebody that can take a punch—or at least who will take a punch."

Gray Tom's memory of the heavyweights goes back to the earliest American king of the division under the Marquis of Queensberry rules, John L. Sullivan, the Boston strong boy. John L. held the title so long that when he got licked in New Orleans by James J. Corbett, men went to their graves believing the report a canard.

Boosts John L.

"Sullivan in his second year of fighting when he weighed 185 pounds would have stopped Louis," asserts Tom O'Rourke. "It wouldn't have taken him long, either. Louis stands out there in the ring with his left hand in a sort of pose—not poise—pose. He couldn't have posed that way with his left with John L. in front of him. Sullivan would have countered with his straight right."

"Maybe we can tell more about the secret of his punching power when he meets those fellows Max Schmeling and James J. Braddock. I don't think either of them will quit. At least they may not get in there hypnotized by him. Still, I wish it was going to be old Jeff."

And Tom O'Rourke sighed, as if in regret for the once famous "California grizzly," Jeffries, now a bald headed old man promoting amateur bouts at Burbank near Los Angeles, once the seat of his country estate.

Few men that ever lived could take the punching Jeffries could and remain upright.

But of course it is a question that we can never answer if any of those who punched Jeffries could punch as hard as "the Brown Embalmer."

"WHEN I LOVED YOU"

By Hazel Livingston

CHAPTER EIGHT

David was to take them over to Mill Valley, and they'd visit the old house, and drive out through the flowery country.

"Caroline has asked us all to tea!" Grandmother objected when it was mentioned next morning.

"Oh, Caroline!" Evelyn grunted. Even when David telephoned that he couldn't possibly take the day off, she was determined not to postpone it.

"You go to Caroline's," she told grandmother, airily. The thought of Caroline's thwarted plan that she'd made so high-handedly without consulting anyone was pleasant enough almost to make up for the disappointment of David's not driving them.

So they started off, jauntily, on a perfect April day.

The ferry ride across the bay was perfect. They sat out in the sun on the upper deck and threw crackers that Evelyn bought to the circling, screaming gulls.

"We always brought bread from home for them when we were children," she said, remembering the old days, knowing that she was going to visit the beloved old house again.

"That's Angel Island and that's Alcatraz, where they have the prisoners—and the hardened ones are out there, though you can't see them—and over there's Goat Island—"

There wasn't a question she couldn't answer. She was in high spirits. She even knew which of the waiting electric trains to take, to bring them to the Mill Valley house.

"This way!" she led off in a rush of enthusiasm through the little town, up a lane that was lined with hawthorne trees heavy with white and pink bloom.

Even when they left the shade-trees, and turned up a steep hot "short-cut" to the upper road nobody minded much, though Dorathea did wish she'd worn flat heels like Jan's.

It was longer than Evelyn remembered. Hot for April, too. But never mind, they were going to the old Falley house.

At a hedge, and an open iron gate, she paused to get her breath and powder her nose before she pointed up the road that was placarded "Private — keep out," and said:

"This is the place! See, isn't it just what I told you? You can't see the house from here, but you will soon—"

The Old Home

She was striding right up the private road, past the gates and the sign. "Look at the forget-me-nots . . . But there should be cinnerarias here, too! They aren't keeping it the way we did. I hope things are all right inside."

"But mother, maybe the people won't want us to come in," Dorathea whispered.

And Jan, who cared just as much what people thought, but wouldn't admit it, looked around nervously and said, "Poo! What do we care?"

"Well if I can't visit my own home," Evelyn puffed, for the road was steep. "The home where I was raised—and I—a Falley—"

They were nearing the house now, and they weren't a bit disappointed. It was just as they'd always dreamed of it, just as they wanted it to be.

"Oh, it's nice," Dorathea breathed. "It's just where I've always wanted to live."

"But wait till you see the inside," Evelyn cried, hurrying them on, and then a man with a rake, and a big police dog at his heels, came down from a side path.

"This is private property. No trespassing," he said gruffly. The dog waited just behind him, neither barking nor growling, nor wagging his tail.

"I'm one of the Falleys—we own this house, you know," Evelyn said brightly.

The gardener stared.

"Yes indeed. Right now we're renting it to the present occupants. These are my daughters. We're calling."

In spite of himself, the man looked impressed.

"They ain't home," he said after a pause.

"Then at least we'll look around a bit," Evelyn said, advancing.

But the man with the rake was just as firm. "I'm sorry, but I got my orders."

Dorathea and Jan began to drop back, and Evelyn to argue. In the end they were permitted to make the tour of the grounds, even to walk up to the porch and peek in at the windows, the gardener right at their heels.

She Didn't Care

Evelyn didn't care. She peeked and pointed, chatting, explaining, but the girls were nervous. "I don't know when my people'll be getting back," the man kept saying. "I got my orders!"

"Come, mother, please!" Dorathea begged.

At that moment the dog bounded away, barking joyously.

"That's the young man coming. Now what did I tell you? You'll have to move on!"

"Certainly not!" Evelyn said indignantly. "I'll talk to him myself."

Her eyes sparkled, she patted her hair, straightened her hat.

Then the dog dashed around the corner of the house, and after him came, not a young man, but a boy.

He was a thin, delicate looking boy with pale olive skin and dark eyes, under curiously straight, dark brows.

For a moment Evelyn was taken aback. But almost instantly she recovered. "How do you do?" she said brightly. "I'm one of the Falleys. Evelyn Falley Keith, and these are my daughters, Dorathea and Janet. I brought them to see the house where I lived as a little girl. I'm sure you don't mind."

"Certainly not," the boy said. His level dark eyes slipped from Evelyn to Jan, and rested there. "I'm Lowell Kramer. In the absence of my father and mother, may I be the host?"

* * *

"Jan's boy friend."

From that April afternoon when he made her a stiff little speech in his precise, odd English, the family had no other name for Lowel Kramer.

As a joke at first, then as an actuality, the Kramer boy was to remain Jan's boy friend, until the end of the chapter.

It amused Evelyn so much that she told everyone about it. The story of how the Kramers' gardener tried to chase them off with a rake, and the Kramers' son practically gave them back the house and begged leave to call upon them with his mother, was a story that grew better with every telling.

Before she was through, she had him kissing Jan's hand as he bade her goodbye.

"All those South Americans favor blondes," she explained. But as often as she told the story he looked at plain little Jan, and wondered how it happened.

Nobody could understand it.

Learn to Read Dreams

"WHY does that dream keep bothering me?" Mary has been wondering. She asked her friends, and they just laughed at her.

But a modern psychologist would not have laughed!

"I dreamed of taking Jimmie to the zoo, as I often do," said Mary, describing her dream. "We looked at the lions and tigers and monkeys, and then we came away. Nothing happened. Yet I can't get that dream out of my mind!"

For a good reason, Mary. That little Jimmie of yours is wild, undisciplined. Tantrums, yells, mulish disobedience, vicious meanness toward other children—that's Jimmie's usual behavior.

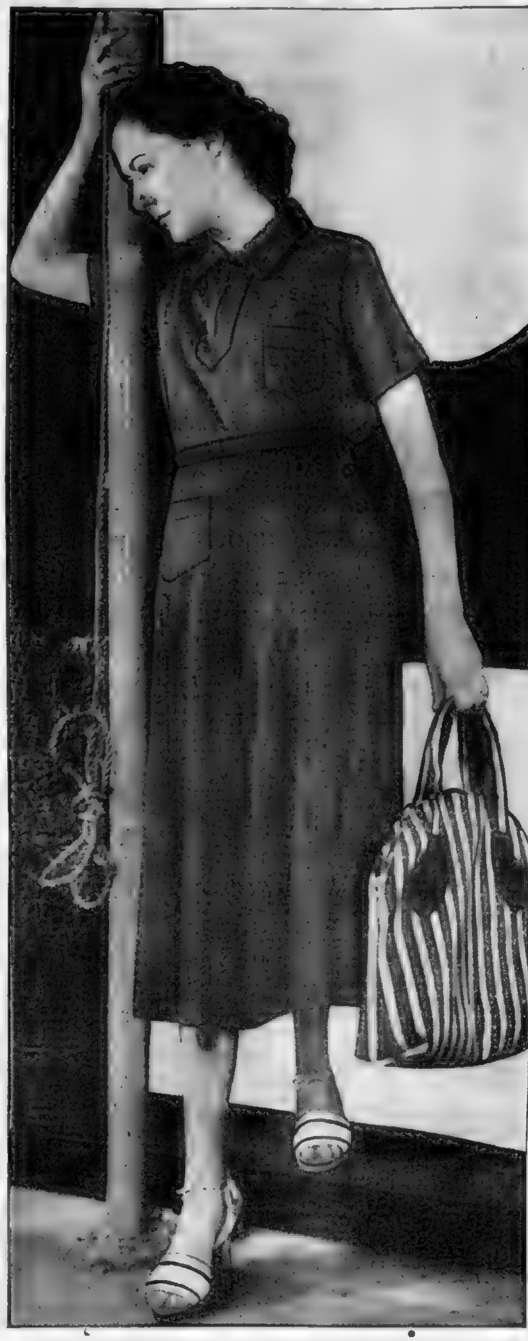
Many people have urged you to bring the boy under control. Your dream says that you secretly fear the wildness of your son as you fear a wild beast. You know his uncontrolled impulses may wreck his future. He should cage them up, as the lions are caged, or prison bars may hold Jimmie himself some day!

That's the dream, bringing a message from the unconscious to the conscious mind, revealing secret fears.

Modern psychology has an entirely new slant on dreams, more interesting than the old superstitious nonsense. Our 40-page illustrated booklet, INTERPRETING YOUR DREAMS, will open up this new science for you, give you clews to the meaning of your own dreams. Sound, accurate, interesting.

Send 15c for our booklet, INTERPRETING YOUR DREAMS, to Boston Evening American, Home Institute, 109 West 19th St., New York, N. Y. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Congress Favors Culotte



PLAY IN CULOTTES, or laze in culottes. Either way, you'll never find a fashion more comfortable nor more becoming. With the advance in importance of the culotte, it is increasingly better in cut and general effect, and grand ones are to be had for very little money.

For instance, the Fashion Congress selection, above, modeled by Miss Dorothy Watters, is of fine navy jersey cut with ingenious flared sections so that it loses its "pants" character and has all the flattery of a gored skirt. Culotte, around three dollars! It is ensembled with a Mediterranean red cotton mesh shirt, something over a dollar; beach sandals, and a handsome rubber-lined stripe silk bag. For shopping information on this play outfit, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, Liberty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American.

Keep Pins Out of Mouth

NEEDLES, toys, pins, nails and safety pins were never made to enter the human stomach. Yet for them to do so is a common occurrence.

As a rule this accident occurs in children, but adults are guilty of putting in the mouth things that never belong there.

Of course this is an almost inexcusable accident. But in the face of frequent warnings the swallowing of foreign bodies continues to occur with alarming frequency.

This is a dangerous accident, particularly if the object is small and has pointed edges. When a pin or a jagged object is swallowed it may tear and rupture the lining of the gullet, stomach or intestine. It may become lodged in the tissues and lead to a severe internal hemorrhage.

Instruments have been invented that make it possible for the physician to look into the throat, gullet or windpipe and even the stomach. By the use of these devices many lives have been spared and serious damage prevented by the safe removal of the offending substance.

Never place a pin or other object in your mouth. This is especially a bad thing for the mother to do, because it sets a bad example for the baby and young children. As you know, youngsters love to mimic their elders, and if they see adults place pins and other objects in their mouths they are almost sure to do the same thing.

Bridge

Avoid Easy Surrender

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

When a bad Bridge player gets a bad "break" it is apt to demoralize him into disgusted surrender; when a good player gets a bad break, it stimulates him to extraordinary effort.

True, cards become almost sensate things to a great many players—but it is nevertheless foolish and futile to get angry at them, just as though they were people. Far better to keep cool and to call on one's reserve resources.

West opened the three of diamonds, dummy played low and East's King won. East's diamond return was won by dummy's Queen and a low spade was led to the Ace. When East failed to follow suit, declarer saw that his contract was in danger, with the loss of one trick in every suit appearing probable.

Nevertheless he did not give up—he merely looked around for "possibilities." West's opening lead, and play to the second diamond lead strongly indicated an original holding of four diamonds. With that one likelihood to go on, declarer now led the nine of hearts which was taken by East's King.

A third round of diamonds went to the Ace and dummy's remaining heart was now ruffed in the closed hand. Next the King of trumps was led, after which the Ace and King of clubs were cashed.

With the stage set as well as was possible under the circumstances, a third round of trumps now threw West on lead and since he was out of clubs he had to return a red card which permitted the discard of dummy's losing club while declarer ruffed.

SETTING THE TABLE

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—How should I place the butter spreader on the bread and butter plate? I have seen it done in several ways, and I wondered just which one is correct.

2—What, too, is the correct position of the water goblet?

3—When I serve a fruit cocktail, should I place a tea spoon or an oyster fork?

WONDERING.

1—The butter spreader should be placed on the bread and butter plate either parallel with the silverpieces at the plate, or parallel with the edge of the table. This carries out the "straight line" idea of the setting of the individual place. It should not be placed in a diagonal line on the plate, or with the blade resting in the bread and butter plate.

2—The water goblet is placed directly above the dinner knife.

3—With a fruit cocktail we place a tea spoon . . . so that we may eat the delicious juice of the fruit cocktail.

"Your Figure, Madame!"

By IDA JEAN KAIN

(Copyright, 1936, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

IF YOU are to escape overweight, your calorie intake must be gauged by your activity. Calories are associated with practically every activity, and the three good squares have expanded into a series of teas, bridge refreshments and after-dinner suppers, all of which are the undoing of the American silhouette.

Our favorite recreations are contract and eating, conversation, movies and a snack. Playing bridge for two hours, you burn not more than 200 calories and think nothing of consuming several hundred calories in the refreshments which follow. The most heated conversation requires only 100 calories per hour, so you can't talk off the pounds.

Two hours at the movies watching Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers lose weight will burn only 168 calories for you! Exercise by proxy is fine—for the other fellow's figure! Do you walk home from the movies? Of course not, you're tired. But you stop in for a bite to eat—a cup of coffee and a sandwich, or a bottle of beer and potato chips. At the very least, you get 300 calories out of an unexpurgated sandwich and coffee. Beer contains 240 calories per pint, and 10 potato chips, if you stop to count them, contain 100 calories.

Surplus food is stored as fat, and when you decrease your activity and increase your calories, avoirdupois is inevitable. Normally, you are entitled to a liberal number of calories, and the average woman can use from 2000 to 2400 calories daily; the average man's allowance ranges from 2500 to 3000 calories.

With practically no exercise, you use from 14 to 16 calories per pound of body weight. With light exercise, you expend from 16 to 18 calories per pound, while fairly active exercise enables you to use 18 to 20 calories per pound of body weight.

Multiply your body weight by one of these three energy factors, 14, 16, or 18. Modern housekeeping is classified as light exercise, and 16 is the average factor for this type of activity. Women office workers should use from 14 to 16 calories per pound of body weight. The factor, of course, varies in accordance with outside activity. The average man working in an office will use 16 calories per pound of body weight.

Suppose your weight is 140 pounds. This, multiplied by 16, gives 2240 calories as the day's energy requirement. This sounds like a liberal allowance, but if you are adding weight, you are storing calories. There is a preponderance of evidence to show that the average person does exceed calorie requirements.

If you are considerably above the weight that is normal for you, you must do better than keep within your calorie limit.

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Reading Young Woman Asks Recipe for Marrying Millionaire

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"I want to marry a rich man, have a house as big as the public library, drive the fastest car in town, cruise occasionally on a yacht all my own."

These are a few of the things she wants this young woman in Reading, who today solicits my assistance. And, unless I miss my guess, she's now watching every mail for the wondrous recipe I'm expected to "special delivery."

It's too bad, of course, but our Reading friend is going to be a disappointed lady. I have no such alchemy. I can no more turn a poor girl into a rich one than could the ancients make gold out of lead. The feat just isn't possible.

And, although I hate to be a crape hanger so far as my correspondent is concerned, I must of necessity, add that throughout my long experience I have never seen a woman deliberately marry a man for his money. Always there were other considerations, and those who did find millions in marriage found them more by accident than by scheming.

STRAIGHT FROM SHOULDER

Our Reading reader spoke frankly to me, and I am taking the liberty of being just as free with her. So here goes.

What have you to offer in exchange for the "library" house, fastest car and occasional yacht cruises? Are you so physically or mentally superior to women in general that Mr. Rich Man would prefer you to all others?

The odds are one hundred to one the answers to both questions will be "No." For, like thousands of girls her age, our Reading sister has been too busy day-dreaming to really make an effort to acquire by work even a fractionary part of the luxuries she so much desires. And, unless she succeeds in coming out of the mental stupor into which she has lulled herself, she will go through life vainly hoping and never receiving.

There are a million mistakes a girl or boy can make in life. They range all the way from passing traffic signals to daylight robbery and murder. But, if one were to ask me to name the most tragic of all mistakes I would without hesitancy say

"DELUDING ONE'S SELF THAT MARRIAGE IS THE SHORT ROAD TO RICHES."

Money looks for money. The rich marry the rich. Social registrites marry social registrites. Nobility, the nobility. Royalty, royalty. All this is understandable when we realize people usually select life partners from the sphere in which they move. Association makes for friendship, friendship for courtship, courtship for marriage.

For that reason it is as difficult for poor you and me to marry a millionaire as it would be for the proverbial camel to pass through the eye of the proverbial darning needle. It just can't be done.

THERE'S ONLY ONE WAY

My advice to all girls and boys who dream of mansions, fast autos and cruising yachts is to work HARD TODAY, HARDER TOMORROW, STILL HARDER THE DAY AFTER. By so doing they will raise themselves higher and higher above the vast majority who refuse to work hard. It will take time, plenty of time, but in the end the girl or boy is bound to obtain recognition. And this recognition depending on the amount of effort expended to acquire it, will attract the attention of those who can supply the mansions, the fast autos and the cruising cars.

We do what we WANT to do. We get what we WANT to get. This is as true today as it was in Washington's day. The only catch being that there are more people living now and consequently more effort is required.

If our friend in Reading reads this (and I pray she will), she'll probably give up her idle dreaming and marry the poor, but lovable boy next door, which would be a not at all bad idea, for history shows that more millionaires acquired their riches AFTER marriage than before. So—and let's hope she does—she may yet make us all envious with her "library" home, fastest car and cruising yacht.

Here is another interesting letter.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I've been married five months and wish I were dead. Before the wedding, Tom would go anywhere with me. Now he's chained to the living room davenport. His expression is one of complete boredom. And were it not for the Saturday and Sunday sports, in which he still takes delight, I'm afraid he'd be tempted to throw up his hands and call off our marriage.

What in the world can I or any other woman do with a man like this?

MRS. A. S.

MY DEAR MRS. A. S.:

If you were ill you'd probably take terribly tasting medicine. Its bitterness wouldn't bother you much, for your one object would be to get well.

Fortunately, you are not sick. But your marriage is. It is slowly dying from a lack of mutual interests.

My advice, therefore, is cultivate these interests before it is too late. They, nothing else, will save you from the divorce court.

If your husband enjoys sports, you should take up sports in a big way. Learn all about them. (It isn't really very difficult.) Arrange your work so you can accompany him to the games when he asks you. Discuss the plays and players. You'll be amazed at the results.

And while you are so treating your marriage, resolve to avoid neighborhood gossip, fashion discussions, elaborations of your pains and aches, and all the other womanly "interests" usually so distasteful to men.

PUNISHMENT METED OUT TO BOYS

CHAPTER 23

I DO NOT believe there is anything in the world more pleasurable than the sight of a rosy, smiling baby.

One's pity and sympathy will be more stirred by a sick infant, but a healthy little one in the last part of its first year strikes a response in every human heart worthy of the name.

There were none of us unstirred when our own adorable baby, Faith, was carried into the room in Katherine's arms. Her hair in clinging ringlets close to her scalp, her face and body rosy from her bath, her pink rompers fresh and dainty, she looked what Katherine called her, "Her tiny majesty," and Dicky, Noel, Mary and I crowded round her adoringly.

BABE KNOWS BOYS

Junior and Roderick hung back shamefacedly until I took pity on them and with an arm around each drew them to the front of the group. At the sight of them, Faith, who had been smiling at us all impartially, stretched out her hands to the boys and made a crowing sound of pleasurable recognition.

"There's justice for you," Dicky observed with a grin. "These lads smear her all up with molasses and chicken feathers and get her so mad she's swearing in baby talk. And when she comes back she picks them out for accolades instead of her loving parents and other relations."

"She's too comfortable to cherish resentment," Katherine said. Then Roderick interrupted.

"Aunt Katherine," he said with appeal in his voice. "Aunt Katherine."

"Yes, Roderick," she said, looking down at him with a smile. "What is it?"

"Aunt Madge says you have to be the judger of us and tell what our punishment is going to be for getting Faith all smeared up with molasses and chicken feathers."

PEN SMEARED, TOO

"It isn't only Faith that's smeared," Mary put in. "Pipe that play pen, and those toys!"

"Have you decided yet about the punishment, Aunt Katherine?" Junior struck in anxiously.

Katherine looked at the two worried young faces thoughtfully, and I knew that she was engaged in the disciplinary measure known as "letting them stew in their own juice" for a bit.

"Yes, I have," she said judicially at last. "We all know you didn't mean anything wrong by what you did, but you must learn that as much trouble is sometimes caused by thoughtlessness as by malice. So to make you realize how much trouble you caused, I'm going to have you clean up this play pen and these toys. I'll show you how. Run along now and put on your overalls, then come back here. It will probably take you about two hours."

"Oh! Gee"! they exclaimed in unison, looking at each other ruefully. Then Roderick said sorrowfully, "That means—" only to be silenced quickly by Junior.

TAKE THEIR "MEDICINE"

"Never mind what it means," he said. "We've got to take our medicine, haven't we? Excuse us, please."

They darted to the door and Katherine turned troubled eyes after them.

"They've something of their own on the fire," she said. "Perhaps I ought not."

"But perhaps you ought," Dicky said emphatically, while I nodded a vigorous assent. "It's just the lesson they need. But my muscles are sore from keeping in the laughs. However, we haven't time for retrospective mirth. Let's hike back to the living room and go into a committee of the whole as to what's to be done with this new problem Phil Veritzen has sprung on us."

Fashion Flashes

YOU MAY go down to the sea this summer in anything from the costume of Hindu dancing girl to the outfit of a Kentucky Derby jockey.

The big idea is your beach clothes must definitely be planned for effect this season. You can't just put on your old swim suit, toss a bath towel around your shoulders and think you'll pass muster at the best beaches.

There are those who still contend that the prime reason for going swimming is to swim, but they are being greatly outnumbered these days by those who feel that the beach is just another chance for a fancy dress promenade.

However, there is a happy medium in the beach clothes of the season. If you try hard you may find some clothes that will do for honest-to-goodness swimming, and yet incorporate the newest tricks displayed in the rotogravure sections.

With it you may wear a rakish knee length cape of white sailcloth or matching [illegible] jersey and a [illegible] cap of white pique or satin, with a peaked visor brim.

And of course if you like to be fragile and decorative on the beach you may step out in a fitted flaring beach robe that looks like an evening cloak, and even wear your earrings.

The new fruit jewelry is made of catalin and comes in a luscious array of cherries, apples, oranges, lemons, peaches, pears and bananas.

Either in single clips or grouped in pairs or threes on pins, they give a smart touch of color to the neckline of a summer frock or blouse.

The cherry clips are especially beguiling. Dangling by their stems from two or spread leaves, they are clustered in threes on pins and clips. Some catalin [illegible].

CARELESSNESS—

that often brings UNHAPPINESS

YOU may know girls like the one on the left—at home, unhappy, while others are out enjoying life.

Often they are victims of ill health that results from unwise dieting—from eating meals that lack sufficient "bulk" to provide needed internal exercise.

Common constipation results. Too often it isn't regarded as serious. Yet doctors will tell you that constipation can slowly undermine your health, leading to discomfort, lowering of bodily resistance, and disease.

Don't neglect constipation. Usually it is due to lack of "bulk" in the foods you eat. When it is, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a safe and pleasant corrective. Scientific tests in leading universities have shown that this delicious ready-to-eat cereal supplies the "bulk" needed to provide regular elimination.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN absorbs moisture in the body, forming a soft mass that gently cleanses the intestinal walls. It does not break down in the system as does the "bulk" in many fruits and vegetables. So it is often more effective.

Isn't it better to use this natural laxative food in place of patent medicines? Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily, served with milk or cream, are usually sufficient. Stubborn cases may require ALL-BRAN oftener.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is not a "cure-all"—but it does correct common constipation. It is guaranteed by the Kellogg Company. Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or cook into appetizing muffins, breads, waffles, etc. ALL-BRAN has a tempting nut-sweet flavor. Eat it regularly for regularity. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Serve ALL-BRAN regularly for regularity

The Clean Axe

Roxbury Woman's Story of the Man Who Came to Confess Murder

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO EVERYBODY:

Step up here, boys and girls, and meet MABEL SCHWENDENMAN, of 24 Heath avenue, Roxbury, who says that the biggest thrill in her life was her first pair of high-heeled shoes. That statement nearly disqualifies Mabel for membership in the Adventurers' Club. High heeled shoes may be a thrill for all I know, but they're not an adventure unless somebody's trying to hit you on the head with one.

FLOYD GIBBONS

No—we can't pay Mabel ten bucks for the biggest thrill of her life. But her SECOND BIGGEST thrill makes her a distinguished member of the club without any argument at all. She went to the door one night to let in a caller, and he turned out to be one of the strangest callers you ever saw in your life.

All that happened a few years ago—January 8th, 1929, to be exact. It was before Mabel was married—when she was Mabel Osborne, and living with her mother and dad and her 12 brothers and sisters in Broad street, Medway.

Mabel's oldest brother worked on a late shift at the woolen mill, and he never got in until long after everyone else was in bed. They used to leave the door unlocked for him and—well—that's how Mabel happened to get mixed up with that SECOND BIGGEST thrill of hers.

Mabel's bedroom was on the second floor right next to the stairway. Mabel is a light sleeper, too. That's how it came about that, when on the night of January 9th there came a knock at the door, she was the first to hear it. She thought it was her brother returning from work at the mill—thought that some one had locked him out by mistake—so she put on a bathrobe and went downstairs.

She was only 14 then. They say children are not as easily surprised as grown folks are, but what Mabel saw when she opened that door surprised her plenty. Outside was a strange man—a man dressed only in a suit of underwear and a dark blue work shirt, CARRYING AN AXE ON HIS SHOULDER.

It was a bitter cold night. Wind blew gusts of fine, dry snow into the hallway, but the man, in his bare feet, didn't seem to mind. Mabel stared at him, her mouth agape. The man stared right back at her, with eyes that seemed to burn. At last, he spoke.

Leon was the local fire chief. That might explain the axe. But the fire chief had moved out of the house when the Osbornes moved in.

Mabel said, "No, he moved away several months ago. What do you want?" She was beginning to get over her surprise, but the man's next move frightened her almost speechless. Stepping inside the door, he said, in a matter of fact tone, "I'VE JUST KILLED MY SISTER-IN-LAW AND HER TWO CHILDREN, AND I WANT YOU TO NOTIFY THE POLICE."

"In that moment," says Mabel, "I changed from a child to an adult. There I stood, facing a confessed murderer, with his deadly weapon still in his hand. The light in his eye told me he was mad, and that didn't make me feel any more comfortable, either.

"Give me the telephone book on that table," I commanded, quickly. "Call the number I tell you."

"Hastily I looked up the police chief's number and gave it to him. The man obeyed me like a dog. When the connection was completed, I told him to have the police come right out."

By that time half the Osborne family was awake. Mabel's dad came to the top of the staircase just as the stranger completed the call and stood up raising the axe to his shoulder.

Mabel saw him and raised her finger to her lips just in time to stop him from crying out. He came down the stairs, and Mabel told him the man's story. Her dad gently relieved him of the axe, and the stranger began to cry.

For the first time then it occurred to Mabel that there was no blood on the axe with which the stranger claimed to have murdered a woman and two children.

But before she had time to think that over there came a knock at the door and the police chief came in. He took a quick look at the axe and a long one at the weeping murderer—and then he went to the telephone and called a doctor.

There followed another short wait—then the doctor arrived. He cleared the whole case up in short order by immediately recognizing the stranger. "Why," he said to the murderer, "you're the fellow who lives all alone in that shack out in the New City section." And as he said that, the stranger collapsed.

The doctor knew the name of the stranger's sister-in-law, and the chief of police called her home on the phone. The doctor bent over the fallen man. When he arose, the chief was turning away from the telephone. "Everything's all right over there," the chief said. "He hasn't even been near the place."

"I didn't think he had," the doctor replied. And then he explained the whole business. "This poor fellow is no murderer," he said. "He has double pneumonia and he's in a raving delirium. I happen to know that he's mighty fond of his sister-in-law's two children. But—well—the human mind is a funny thing at times."

There's only one thing funnier than that, and it's the way Old Lady Adventure manages to get around to everybody in the course of a lifetime. You've had a swell adventure—I know you have. Write it up and send it to me.

Thrills Pack Film

By HARRIS MORGAN

Deepest-dyed villains with a Turkish background of intrigue comprises an hour of the two necessary to enjoy the complete show current at the Keith Boston Theater, and for contrast that is really contrast the offering is "The Harvester," a picture of rural life a score and ten years ago in rural America. "The Harvester" takes up the other hour of screen time.

Alice Brady's beautiful performance in "The Harvester," in the part of Mrs. Biddle, is one highlight of the entertainment, and the work done by Nils Asther for one and Fritz Kortner for another and [illegible] in "Abdul the Damned" is also exceptional.

"Abdul the Damned" has a historical background and depicts the ascendency of the Young Turks after the cruel rule of Abdul Hamid II. Old Abdul was a merciless guy, and from his career the scenarists of "Abdul the Damned" have extracted some spicy incidents that, if you are a seat gripper, will give you chances to practice your hobby.

Sultan Hamid was smitten with the charms of a Viennese actress played by Adrienne Ames, according to the story of "Abdul the Damned." His overpowering zeal to make Miss Ames his beloved furnishes the nucleus of the romantic story that finds John Stuart effective not only as the able young military Messiah of Turkey but as the potential mate for beautiful Miss Ames.

Minimum Wage Law
SUPREME COURT DECISION
Given Understanding

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, June 5—A great deal of misunderstanding has arisen concerning the recent Supreme Court decision against the New York minimum wage law for women.

Hasty critics assert that it is a blow to state sovereignty, and it will tend toward centralization. The old talk about a "no man's land" for legislation on economic problems, is revived by the President. Others jump to the conclusion that it is a blow to women, to labor, etc.

None of these snap opinions is justified, and anyone who will study the decision can easily prove that the criticisms are unfounded.

• • •

In the first place, the Supreme Court upholds the adverse decision of the highest court of the State of New York. It holds that the decision of a state court concerning the intent of a state legislature is final.

The Supreme Court specifically upholds the power of the states to regulate hours and conditions of work for men and women.

The fundamental basis of the decision is the right of individuals to freedom, including the right to hold property and make contracts. This right of the individual is the basis of our federal government, and the United States was founded to protect and preserve it. Accordingly, the Constitution limits the power of states to impair such individual rights.

It does not even hold that a state may not pass a valid minimum wage law. In fact, it is implied in the decision that if such a law is made (1) without unreasonable discrimination between women and men, and (2) with a definite and reasonable standard of minimum, it may be sustained.

The court holds that "minimum wages for women alone would unreasonably restrain them in competition with men and tend arbitrarily to deprive them of employment and a fair chance to find work." That is true. It is common sense. Many employers would not hire women if they could get men at the same wage rates.

As to a standard for any minimum wage, the court makes it very clear that it must be such as not to deprive the employer of his rights. The obvious trouble with the New York law, as with others, was that it prescribed a cost-of-living test. Of course, everybody agrees that every law-abiding citizen has a right to live, but it does not follow that any particular employer must be made responsible for furnishing the living. The employer-employe relationship is a business relationship, and all the employer can be responsible for is a wage payment according to the value of the laborer's service.

The right to a living is a right as against society through government. It is the state that must give relief if a worker cannot earn a living wage.

DUTIES
On German EXPORTS
IMPOSED ON CERTAIN GOODS

By Kingsbury Smith
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, June 5—A state of intensified economic warfare today existed between the United States and Germany as the result of imposition by this government of a virtual embargo on certain Germain products.

The action taken by this government was in retaliation against what was held to be German discrimination against American trade, especially the "dumping" of German goods on the American market.

Countervailing duties ranging from 22 to 56 per cent were slapped on ten of Germany's principal exports to this country, including cotton and rayon gloves, cameras, surgical instruments, toys and leather.

• • •

These countervailing duties are in addition to the ordinary highest prevailing rates of duty, which Germany already is obliged to pay. Because of its policy of discrimination against German goods, Germany is barred from any of the benefits which the United States grants other nations under the reciprocal trade agreement program.

The new countervailing duties will place Germany at a 100 per cent disadvantage with many of its competitors for the American market.

German quarters here view the action as making it virtually impossible for Germany to sell in this country the goods on which the duties have been increased.

London's Foreign Exchange Steady

The dollar was quoted at $5.02½ and the franc at 76¼ to the pound sterling.

AUTO OUTPUT
Above Average

April output of automobiles in the United States and Canada, based on factory sales, totaled 527,726 units, according to the Department of Commerce.

This output was 130 per cent of the 12-year average, and compares with 438,945 units, or 117.5 per cent of the 12-year average in March. Output of automobiles in April, 1935, totaled 477,059 units.

Wall Street Hears

New York, June 5 (INS)—That second quarter of Electric Auto-Lite (ELO) should exceed $1 a share, against 66 cents in the first three months this year.

That Burroughs Adding Machine (BGH) is expected to show earnings of around 65 cents a share for the first half.

WOOL
ACTIVE
DURING PAST WEEK

New York, June 5—Wool goods markets were moderately active during the past week, according to the New York Wool Top Exchange Service.

A number of men's wear mills succeeding in speeding up the placing of duplicate orders on fall goods by clothing manufacturers, but only a few producers were so favored, the majority reporting business slack.

Nevertheless, the belief persists that there is considerable business in the offing and that mills will be the recipients of numerous orders once clothing manufacturers consolidate their commitments from retailers and determine their piece goods needs for the rest of the season.

Fancy patterns continued to outsell all others in men's wear, but some mills noted more interest in serges and oxfords. Jobbers did a fair business on the latter items. In some manufacturing centres, production began to slow down but is expected to resume at March levels in the near future.

"It is probable that most men's wear mills will begin to show spring lines early in July," says the Exchange Service. "It is quite likely that prices will show advances as compared with fall. New lines of tropical worsteds and flannels will be opened at the same time. Producers of tropical worsteds are now approaching the end of one of the most successful seasons in years. It is estimated that sales of these lightweight fabrics during the season were 25 per cent larger than in the previous year. Flannels also sold in large volume despite increased competition for cotton slacks.

"Women's wear producers last week booked a fair amount of business on fall cloakings and suitings. Garment manufacturers plan to open fall collections next week. These openings should be followed by increased orders for the types of wool goods selected by retail buyers. Considerable business has already been done on rough-surfaced coatings and fancy fleeces, and many mills have swung into fulltime production. Demand for dress goods is coming to life again, and mills have been booking a fair amount of business on quality cloths as well as on low-end merchandise. Despite increasing competition from spun rayon goods, worsted wills believe that sales of all-wool dress goods in the next few months will be the heaviest in some years.

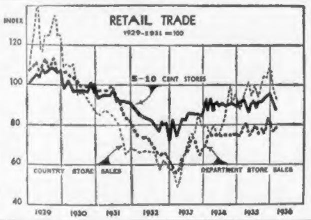
"Reports from the retail trade were satisfactory. Tropical worsteds sold in volume at retail, and shops continued to do a brisk business on white and pastel wool coats. Swim suit sales were not quite so large as expected due to unseasonably cool weather."

RECORD
Packard Sales

Deliveries of Packard cars in May totaled over 7200 new cars, a record as compared with the previous peak of 7190 cars set in August, 1929, according to M. M. Gilman, vice-president and general manager.

"Not only were Packard deliveries sustained in increased volume, but there is no perceptible falling off for June," Mr. Gilman said. "I believe Packard will have as good a month in June, perhaps better."

RETAIL STORES



Wall Street Sidelights

New York, June 5—Brokerage firms which have been complaining the loudest against the 55 per cent customer margins are not particularly hopeful for an early revision in the Federal Reserve Board rules.

As a matter of fact a canvass yesterday disclosed little jubilation prevails over the discussions being held between the Stock Exchange and the Reserve authorities on the subject.

The opinion exists that inasmuch as the board originally determined its margin policy on the basis of credit employed in stock market speculation, there is no reason at this time for a modification of the regulations. The Stock Exchange report of member firm borrowings against collateral for the month of May showed total loans of $969,997,000 were with two exceptions the highest since June, 1934. The current aggregate, however, is lower than at the end of April and March this year, but is substantially above the February and January totals.

Utility Shares Status Analyzed

The improved market for public utility securities this year is attributed by a Stock Exchange firm analysis to three factors, as follows: "Amazing gains in earnings by the operating companies; second, diminution of anti-utility sentiment throughout the country, and third, the general conviction that even if the anti-utility holding company bill is declared constitutional, which is extremely doubtful, the companies will be able to shuffle their properties and reform new integrated systems as permitted by law. Obviously the larger profits of the operating companies bring about substantial gains in the profits of the holding companies"

• • •

Rate of Rail Return Better

Improved railroad operations are reflected in the roads' April operating earnings at levels equalling an annual rate of return of 2.44 per cent on property investment, against 2.03 per cent in April, 1935. This lifts the rate of return for the first four 1936 months to 2.18 per cent, against 1.81 per cent in the like 1935 period. For the full year 1935, the rate of return was 1.93 per cent, against 1.78 per cent in 1934, 1.83 in 1933 and 1.25 in 1932, the low year of the depression. In 1931 the return was 2 per cent. The 1929 rate was 4.84 per cent, the highest since the 4.99 rate in 1926. It is necessary to go back to 1916's rate of 5.9 per cent to find a year in which the carriers earned over 5 per cent on investment.

The Cotton Belt And Guilders

The interest of first terminal and unifying mortgage bonds of St. Louis Southwestern (Cotton Belt) Railway bonds in the reorganized company may be enhanced by the nation's monetary policies and decisions of the courts. It has been established that a holder may collect coupon interest in guilders, in that the indenture provisions call for payment in either guilders, pounds or pre-war francs. Guaranty Trust Co., as trustee under the first terminal issue is to enter blanket claim of $1700 per $1000 bond, the value in guilders, in the reorganization proceedings

Has Margin Question a Political Aspect?

The revival of the discussion of the possibility of some easing of margin requirements by the Federal Reserve Board took a new turn yesterday. Board room gossip mongers at once saw a political aspect of the matter. They had it all figured out that nothing would be done, apart from possible preliminary study, to change the requirements before August. The easing of the regulations would be expected to bull the stock market and if the modifications were adopted then a broad advance would develop and continue until Election Day. All of this sounds very nice but the authors of the idea could give no authority for it, other than to say that certain politicians have some astuteness in their own field, and that no chances are being overlooked to curry favor with the electorate.

1935 Copper Use Over 1934

Accompanied by increases in principal consuming lines of from 9½ per cent to 42 per cent, domestic copper use during 1935 totaled 567,000 tons, against 467,000 tons in 1934, an increase of more than 21 per cent, according to American Bureau of Metal Statistics estimates. Last year's total was the highest since 1931 when 650,000 tons were taken.

Use of copper by the automobile industry last year was the largest since 1929 when 138,200 tons was used. Consumption for light and power lines in 1935 represented the largest use since 1931 when 85,000 tons were used. The building industry consumed the most copper since 1930.

DUTCH PRIVATE
Discount Rate Up

The private discount rate has been advanced to 4⅝ per cent from 4½ per cent. This indicates the ineffectiveness of the new bank rate and the possibility of a further increase in the rate. There was a heavy demand for sterling and further gold shipments which were estimated at 15,000,000 guilders.

Shares on the Bourse reacted on London pressure, especially American issues.

SALES GAIN
Vigorous Recovery Shown

Sales in the "5 and 10-cent stores" have remained fairly constant during the last two years, while big gains have been recorded by department stores and "country retail stores."

The 5-and-10 sales, however, did not decline so sharply as did the business of other stores during the depression.

The chart shows that the low point in sales of 5-and-10 stores was reached in December, 1932, when the index (based on 1929-1931 equals 100) reached 73, or 27 per cent under the index normal.

Meanwhile the index of country store sales was dropping 50 per cent to just half the normal level. This low was reached in 1933. The department stores were reaching their bottom the same year, at 44 per cent below normal.

Since those bottoms were reached department store and country store business have both recovered vigorously. In fact, country store business at the end of 1935 actually exceeded any period almost since 1929. They have dropped sharply this year, but still are better than 90 per cent of the index normal. Department store sales are around 80 per cent of normal, an upturn of almost 60 per cent over their bottom level.

Five-and-ten store sales are below 90 per cent of "normal," but have held around this range for two whole years.

Retail Advertising In Big Gain

Chicago, June 5—Retail advertising lineage in newspapers made the largest comparative gain of 1936 during the week ended May 25, when an increase of 9.6 per cent over the corresponding week of 1935 was chalked up, according to the index of retail activity appearing in Advertising Age today.

Based upon reports covering all of the newspapers in 65 major cities, the Advertising Age index shows that for the week in question a total of 18,164,667 lines of retail advertising was placed in the 65 cities, compared with 16,573,133 lines last year, a gain of 1,591,534 lines.

During the period since the first of the year, retail lineage in the 65 reporting cities has totalled 345,260,418, compared with 334,066,512 during the corresponding period of 1935. This is an increase of 11,193,906 lines, or 3.4 per cent.

BROKERS'
Loans Increase

Brokers' loans by member banks in New York city for their own account in the week ended June 3 increased $208,000,000 to $1,176,000,000.

Loans on securities by New York city member banks in recent weeks compare as follows (000,000 omitted):

	June 3	May 27	June 5, '35
To brokers in New York	$1,103	$894	$775
Elsewhere	73	74	59
Total	1,176	968	833
To others	756	748	729
Total	1,932	1,716	1,562

These loans do not include loans made for account of other banks, corporations or individuals. Loans are not broken down into time loans and demand loans.

Support for American Book, American Hard Rubber and Pepperell lifted prices for gains of a point or more. General Public Service preferred moved up nearly 4 points.

The rest of the list worked lower with setbacks ranging from fractions to 2 points or more. Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, Safety Car Heating Brill preferred and Driver-Harris sustained losses of from 1 to 2 points.

U. S. Trust Co.

REDUCING COST AIDS MASSES

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser
Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service

Chicago, June 5 — A tonic-like hopefulness runs through the thinking of General R. E. Wood, president, Sears Roebuck & Company, the world's largest mail order and merchandising enterprise.

A talk with the executive created the impression that he believes fundamental economic forces building up national recovery will transcend any detrimental political influences

The merchant prince of the catalogues believes that, barring a European war, which he thinks will be averted, that the whole world is destined for a flourishing period.

Under his sane leadership, General Wood's company stuck to its knitting during the depression period, continuing without interruption its store expansion programme, which, incidentally, is still under way.

Reaping the benefits of sustained expansion, the company, in a recently closed four weeks' period showed the largest gross sales for such a period in the history of the enterprise.

That record includes department store as well as mail order sales. The mail order end itself is contingent on total farm gross income, and has not yet climbed up to the 1929 level.

As to near-term prospects, General Wood's analysis looks forward to a marked stimulant to summer trade from payment of the soldier's bonus and from delayed distribution of farm benefit checks. In his prognosis, the executive looks forward to the gradual restoration of farm income to the pre-depression level.

He now sees evidence of public buying power gradually building up, finding that there is a lag of about six months before the fruits of adding a worker to industrial payrolls or boosting farm income percolates to the large service groups, such as barbers and cooks.

The general is impatient with the lack of statesmanship of many business men in blindly resisting reform.

He himself has not hesitated to take a heterodox position, such as supporting the plan to vary the price of gold.

General Wood is sympathetic neither to the Old Guard in politics nor to stereotyped thought patterns of business men. He practices the technique of fact-finding and is inclined to do his original thinking based on first hand data.

He is not sympathetic to the idea of exploitation of business enterprises by financiers.

Incidentally, the company which he heads has never gone to the public or to its stockholders for additional capital, having been built up through the years out of plowed back profits. The original investment was around $11,000.

The general takes pride that the officers of his company have their personal fortunes invested in the business and that profit-sharing in the corporation includes all the workers.

He believes that these arrangements create a business morale that has a significant bearing on profit results. He insists that the chief executive of any well knit, competently functioning organization has any easy time.

Apropos of the recent discussion in this column of the distinction between concentration of economic power, on the one hand, and monopoly, on the other, an executive of a large corporation, which has operated to reduce costs and thus to increase the buying power of his customers, points out:

"There are two definite fields of thought among business men in corporations, just as there are very diametrically opposing views of thought among politicians.

"The older school of thought was monopolistic and its main idea was that of consolidating business, then boosting prices and getting larger profits that way.

"The other school of thought has always held the view that the only way to conduct business intelligently is to strive continually to reduce prices to the masses of the people. In this, I believe, we have been reasonably successful.

"Today the older school of thought is going more and more into the discard and I think, with very few exceptions, there is little monopoly among business in the United States."

N. E. INDUSTRY

Price STRUCTURES Firm

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

Reports of steady improvement in shoe and woolen lines feature current reports on New England business.

Firm raw stock prices are noted in both industries, and despite the reticence of large buyers of finished goods there are no signs of a weakening attitude by processors.

Actual sales of woolen goods have been quite light and manufacturers are purchasing raw material rather sparingly according to the current Dun & Bradstreet report. But active purchasing of raw wool in the West has resulted in growers receiving an increase of 1 to 2 cents a pound for their clip. So despite the backwardness of mills a turn in business with demand showing moderate improvement might result in a fair sized buying rush.

• • •

Shoe retailers have done a good business in the past month and the trade reporting agency says they are in a good position to take in substantial quantities of merchandise. Here too large buyers incline to postpone placing orders. And again they are meeting with little success in obtaining price concessions. The leather market is firmer and tanners insist on holding up their asking prices. All in all an encouraging situation that could result in a sudden burst of manufacturing activity should one or two quantity buyers become nervous about their unfilled needs.

• • •

Notebook: New York brokers are not very hopeful regarding the outlook for lower margins . . . But some State Streeters we have spoken with say they think some reductions will be allowed . . . The gold stocks are in better favor . . . A few traders are nibbling at the group on the theory European currency troubles will ultimately bring buyers . . . That record gain in stations reported by the Bell System for May will help offset the Washington investigation . . . When business is good it is easy to forget other troubles.

• • •

The stock market continues to be a nervous, uncertain affair that is hardly calculated to stir potential buyers now on the sidelines. The foreign news is bad. Some observers do not believe the French situation should have much effect, but we do not see how it can be other than unsettling. When an important world power is beset with currency troubles and radicalism that disturbs conservative home elements it is hard to believe international markets will ignore the news. For the present we will hold aloof from the market.

"Bits O' Gossip: Air Reduction new never had the dip many expected would follow the split up of the old stock . . . And even the halving of the U. S. Industrial Alcohol dividend, in which the company has such a large stake, failed to bring out any stock . . . Investment trust buying of low priced utilities is rumored in some quarters . . And naturally Stone & Webster comes in for mention in this connection . . . Retail sales reports continue of the best . . . And superlatives will be needed to describe the rest of the year, according to the gossips.

F. H. Prince Replies to RFC Head

F. H. Prince has written a letter to Jesse Jones, chairman of the RFC, protesting against the criticism advanced by Mr. Jones Wednesday on the proposed plan of reorganization of the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad.

In his letter, Mr. Prince maintained that the RFC would receive better security on the $5,000,000 proposed to be advanced under the reorganization plan than it would for the $7,200,000 which the RFC has offered to lend to various western railroads to divide the properties of the Minneapolis & St. Louis.

"The question of the Minneapolis & St. Louis is not one which so especially interests me as it is to adopt a system which I believe to be the easiest and best method of reorganizing our railroads and one which would take us out of the difficulties in which we are today," Mr. Prince said.

STOCK Prices Stand STILL

MANY ISSUES UNCHANGED

New York, June 5—The stock market gave a perfect example of suspended animation today, as the rank and file of issues ranged around their previous closings.

Key groups, including steels, rails and motors, were little changed. General Motors and Chrysler chalked up small fractional gains.

Johns Manville lost a point and U. S. Gypsum nearly as much in the building section, while Western Union climbed a point. Westinghouse advanced nearly 2 points at one time.

Mixed Items

Dun & Bradstreet found that retail distribution this week spread out rapidly, with hurried purchases of seasonal goods amplified by special buying for weddings and graduations.

Wholesale volume, it was added, expanded through the stronger flow of reorders and the release of larger fall commitments.

Consumer demand, aided by the arrival of real summer temperatures, was said to have been the strongest since the pre-Easter shopping season. With the bulge expected to accompany payment of the soldiers' bonus, most retailers were counting on June to build up the best business of the year to date.

The disclosure that brokers' loans, in the week ended Wednesday, jumped $208,000,000 to the largest total since 1929, failed to excite speculative forces.

It was explained that the increase was due, almost entirely, to borrowing by government security dealers in order to participate in the recent treasury bond and note issues.

Sterling, at the beginning of foreign exchange transactions, was up ⅛ of a cent at $5.02½, and the French franc was unchanged at 6.58⅝ cents.

Comments of Brokers

Minor swing traders who were advised to maintain a liquid position during the past few days should continue their sideline position for the present, and await the completion of the present downward movement which is expected to find temporary resistance at approximately the 148 level.—P. S. Feigus — Prentice, Blauner and Brady.

Current developments should occasion only a temporary postponement of a resumption of the uptrend.—J. E. Molloy—Hornblower & Weeks.

The recent technical action as well as the political uncertainties dictate conservative trading policies for the time being.—J. S. Nelson—Josephthal & Co.

Pending clarification of some of the uncertainties now clouding the immediate outlook for stocks, see no need to be hasty in making new trading commitments. — H. D. Comer-Paine, Webber & Co.

It is likely that the high levels of the pound sterling and the dollar will be maintained despite any devaluation move on the part of France. This being true, there is no justification for expecting any tremendous liquidation in our markets.—F. H. Richardson-Southgate & Co.

A leading writer on the market from the standpoint of the Dow theory states there is some justification for considering that the action of the averages since the April lows indicates an upward secondary trend, but his own opinion is traders should consider the secondary direction downward pending further developments.—G. M.-P. Murphy & Co.

There is reason for maintaining a cautious trading policy for the time being.—J. P. Maher, Shields & Co.

Technically, it would seem that after the past four sessions of gradually receding prices a rebound should be near.—J. S. Bache & Co.

AIR TRAFFIC

Shows Earlier Seasonal Gains

New York, June 5—Improved traffic volume during May has launched the air transport industry on what currently gives promise of being an excellent summer season.

It is estimated increased operations now under way will result in noticeably better second quarter showings in some instances than in the first quarter, when severe weather interfered with operations.

The seasonal summer upturn in air travel started early this year. This is attributed to generally improved business conditions, and to wider interest in flying.

Recent introducton of air scrip, being sold to individuals and corporations to provide rate reductions for round-trip flying, interchangeable on all lines, is credited with aiding the business.

The industry is paying particular attention to vacation travel this year, which is expected to be an important factor in summer and fall business.

Meanwhile sharp gains in air express continue to be reported. This type of traffic has not yet reached a point of major importance in comparison with passenger and mail business, but improvement recently indicates it will be in the future.

Larger Wheat Crop Estimated

Based on conditions as of June 1, or thereabouts, the average estimate of five leading grain experts places the winter wheat crop at 501,000,000 bushels, against the government's estimate of 464,000,000 bushels a month ago and the private estimates averaging 486,000,000 a month ago. The actual crop in 1935 totaled 433,000,000 bushels, or well under the five-year average of 618,000,000 bushels.

The first estimates on spring wheat place the probable crop at 236,000,000 bushels, which compares with an actual crop last year of only 170,000,000 bushels, far under the average.

The combined wheat crop, on the basis of present estimates, should total 737,000,000 bushels, which, if realized, would compare with 603,000,000 bushels last year.

Apparently, the rains that occurred last month in parts of the Southwest saved considerable wheat, which accounts for the higher estimate, as of June 1.

As for the spring wheat crop, a liberal output was anticipated from the first when farmers' intentions to plant one of the largest crops on record became known several weeks ago.

RETAIL FOOD

Costs Down

The Bureau of Labor Statistics index of retail food costs declined 0.3 per cent during the two weeks ended May 19.

The decrease was due primarily to lower costs for meats and dairy products, the Bureau reported. The composite food index on May 19 was 79.9, against 100 for the 1923-25 average. This is 1.8 per cent below a year ago and 22 per cent below May 15, 1929.

Bar Gold

Electric Earnings Best Since '31

Emerging from the most hectic years of its history, the electric power and light industry, despite unprecedented harassment, will record for the first six months of this year the best earnings since 1931.

Already intrenched with a good recovery recorded for the first quarter of year, the industry is being encouraged in its expectations for the six months operations by maintenance of record demand for its service from all classifications of business.

For first half of 1936 the industry anticipates use of electricity by power and domestic customers will have set a new record in volume for any corresponding period and probably will surpass the 1935 first six months period by more than 13 per cent.

Belief exists that gross operating revenues will surpass last year by around 5½ per cent, and net is likely to rise better than 7 per cent above the previous year.

First National Strs. Earnings Dip

First National Stores, Inc., reports for the fiscal year ended March 28, 1936, net profit after taxes, depreciation and all other charges of $3,163,329, equal after preferred dividends to $3.65 a share on the 827,634 shares of common stock (less 11,055 shares in treasury). This compares with net profit of $3,433,504 in the 1934-35 year, equal to $3.89 per share of common.

The showing in March quarter was improved, with earnings rising to the equivalent of 98 cents a common share, or the highest for any quarter since the September period of 1934. In the December, 1935, quarter earnings were 90 cents a share, and in the quarter previous to that were 93 cents a share.

The company's balance sheet as of March 28, 1936, showed current assets of $19,160,228, including $4,349,391 cash and $3,513,533 United States government bonds, and current liabilities of $4,742,123, making net working capital of $14,418,105. This compared with net working capital of $12,534,228 a year earlier.

Sales during the fiscal year ended March 28, 1936, rose 7.4 per cent over the year previous to a new high total of $119,575,417.

Dividend

Continental-Diamond Fibre Company declared a dividend of 50 cents, payable June 30 to stock of record June 15. On March 30 last a similar dividend was paid.

Central Aguirre

BULLS Get Few BREAKS

IN TIGHT POSITION

By International News Service

New York, June 5—Stock bulls are finding few of the market breaks going their way these days, and as a result are in more of a hole at the moment than they care to admit.

The unexpected delay in congressional adjournment, following the death of Speaker Byrns, and the disturbed situation in the gold-bloc currencies, heightened by the serious French strikes, proved real body blows to speculative sentiment yesterday, and touched off a sharp reaction in stocks.

The loss of 2.14 points in the industrials was the severest in many weeks, although better resistance in the rails and utilities limited the setback in these divisions to fractional proportions.

Especially disconcerting to bullishly inclined traders was the disposition of volume to broaden on the downside, with transactions in the final hour, when prices were at their worst, constituting one-third of the day's total sales.

Turnover Small

The inability of the market to make any progress on the upside since the Memorial holiday weekend, has aroused fears in certain quarters that the late May upturn was merely another technical rally and that stocks are now resuming their intermediate downtrend.

In the light of subsequent events, observers now regard the then unexplained break in Westinghouse Electric on Tuesday last, as the real tip-off that the situation marketwise had taken a turn for the worse. A drop of more than 7 points in so important an issue within three trading sessions cannot be laughed away any too lightly.

Judging matters solely on technical conditions, the general list must still be regarded as in a trading zone, pending a return of genuinely active sessions.

Washington Notebook

Washington, June 5 (AP)—An upturn in new financing for capital investment, rather than refunding, is noted in the Securities and Exchange Commission's April analysis of registrations under the Securities Act. About $36,300,000, or 6.2 per cent of the net cash proceeds of issues tabulated, was intended for expenditure on plant, equipment and other assets—the largest amount yet reported for one month by the SEC Securities with estimated gross proceeds of $751,012,738 became effective, also a new month record.

Further growth in the backlog of rail equipment orders was disclosed in the monthly report of the Association of American Railroads. Class 1 roads, the association said, had on order May 1, 18,467 new freight cars compared with only 1449 on the same date a year ago. New cars put into service in the first four months increased to 5916 from 753 in the comparable period last year.

In wake of the flight of capital from France and movement of gold to the United States, New York city member banks reported to the Federal Reserve Board a sharp rise in deposits held for foreign banks. The total rose to $378,000,000 in the week ended Wednesday, an increase of $30,000,000 over the preceding week and $117,000,000 higher than a year ago.

The Crown Cork & Seal Company, Inc., has filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission a statement covering 225,000 shares of $2.25 cumulative preferred stock, with warrants for purchase of common stock, to be offered in exchange for outstanding $2.70 preferred stock, to provide capital for development of the Acme Can Company, a recently acquired property, and for "other purposes."

Further improvement in demand for oil burners was reported to the census bureau by 152 manufacturers. New orders increased to 10,373 in April, compared with 9235 in March and 8576 in April last year. The total for the first four months was 34,022 against 23,350 in the year 1935 period and 19,005 in the similar 1934 months. Building revival was held largely accountable for the gains.

Union Trust Co.

Tea Sales Off

Sales of National Tea Co. for four weeks to May 23 were 10.9 per cent below the like 1935 period.

TERRORISTS

Doing SHOCKING Acts

By B. C. Forbes

Shocking labor conditions grip Akron, Ohio. Terrorism reigns. Loyal workmen have been beaten almost to death. Others have been kidnaped. Communistic agitators seized possession of the entire Goodyear plant and held it for 12 hours.

Although 28 of the law-breakers, Goodyear employes, are awaiting trial under the Ohio riot law and 3 other workers face charges of assault and battery, no peace is yet within sight.

I learn that the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, because of the Communistic disturbances at its main plant in Akron, has arranged to expand its production at other centers, especially in Los Angeles and in Gadsden, Ala., where it has factories.

Another Akron tire manufacturer confided to me recently that, because of labor agitators there, he plans to build a factory elsewhere.

And Remington-Rand has announced that, because of what it regards as an utterly unjustified strike by workers at its Middletown, Conn., plant, and the lack of adequate protection for employes anxious to work, it has closed permanently its plant there.

• • •

This column some time ago drew attention to labor disorders and defiance of the authorities in Akron. Goodyear, however, finally agreed to take back all the strikers.

But subsequent events reveal that there are trouble-raisers who don't want industrial peace but perpetual industrial warfare.

No fewer than 15 "sitdowns," meaning that workers take their places in the plant but refuse to work, have been indulged in since the settlement. In one instance complete disruption of production for 24 hours occurred.

Some of these "sitdowns" came without the slightest warning to the management, without any attempt by union employes to negotiate with the management, as provided in the strike agreement.

Many other threatened "sitdowns" were avoided only because the management granted concessions they considered wholly unfair.

Said the Akron Beacon Journal on May 23:

"An incident occurred at the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company early yesterday that unfortunately threatens to put the stamp of gangster terrorism upon the union labor movement in the rubber industry. In the very heart of Plant 2, with scores of workers nearby, a group of 25 men fell upon and seriously injured two fellow employes."

• • •

Later, union employes kidnaped 20 other workers, including three supervisors, imprisoned them inside the plant, took possession of the entire factory and held it for 12 hours.

The same local newspaper commented editorially:

"The epidemic of disruptive, outlaw sitdowns in the rubber industry has reached the point of crisis. It will have to be stamped out quickly if the economic lifeblood of Akron is not to be destroyed.

• • •

All this lawlessness has occurred in a plant which agreed to adopt the 36-hour week and which was paying, before the strike, an average of more than 95 cents an hour.

• • •

"What is back of this unrest? Why has the management yielded so consistently? The answer to the first is minority radical agitation. To the second: The strike showed the futility of attempting to act as one normally would act under the circumstances here described while the forces of disorder are in the ascendancy. Goodyear lost five weeks of production during the strike, and we are now in the peak of market demand. The policy of the management, therefore, has been to seek to avoid any further serious interruptions during this period."

• • •

Events impel the answer, "Yes."

Bureau of Mines shows production of 6,758,000 tons for the week ended May 16, and 6,811,000 for the week ended May 23, 1936.

Europe Cannot Sidestep League Question

THE tension in Europe shows little sign of relaxing and until it does, the possibility, as distinguished from the likelihood, of war remains a factor in all reckoning of the future.

No nation wants war.

None is prepared for it financially or politically, regardless of the appearance of readiness which several present in the size and equipment of their armed forces.

ITALY'S successful defiance of the League of Nations, coupled with her victories in Ethiopia, is not yet recognizable as making for the peace in Europe which everyone desires.

Italy's financial position, strained by the huge outlays for her African campaign, is still further hurt by the sanctions which the League of Nations refuses to annul. Although operating on a scale which is far short of effectiveness, as has been proved, they are serious curbs upon Italy's freedom of action in meeting her economic and financial problems, and are resented as such.

The League Council does not meet again until June 16th.

There is little hope, therefore, of removing the pressure of sanctions with the promptitude which Italy asks and which the preservation of world peace calls for.

Nor is there any CERTAINTY that the sanctions will be lifted, even tardily, in view of the attitude of several powers other than England.

SOVIET RUSSIA is reported to be willing to increase the penalties against Italy for her disregard, of treaty and League obligations, and the proposal is made by another great Continental Power that the Suez Canal be closed against Italy on the theory that the League cannot persist in a stationary position, but must go forward, enforcing the penalties against Italy by additional pressure, or remove them altogether.

With the present state of mind in Italy, any attempt to add to the burdens against which she now protests, and which she will not long consent to endure, must greatly intensify a situation already grave enough.

Somebody must back down, unless all can be persuaded to heave overboard the pestilent and war-breeding remains of the League of Nations.

THE League has shown it can do no good.

Fame Awaits Music Writers

SONG COMPOSERS throughout the country are voicing their interest in the outcome of the Berton Braley Ballad Competition of the Hearst newspapers.

The nation's outstanding orchestra leaders and bandmasters have promised to include the winning music for the two ballads in their programs.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, June 5—Thoughts while strolling: Wonder if Wally Beery ever met Berry Wall? For oblivion: Swing music. Peter Arno continues his lead as ace of the sophisticated sketcher. Roy Howard the E-flat cornetist. Talk of the horsey set: Mrs. Byron Foy's high but toned shoes and Mrs. Orson Munn's sun parasol.

Prediction: Chaplin will wind up his career with a serious film drama. New York's nearest to the Mona Lisa flick of dry smile — that of Neysa McMein. And for an expansive grin no one can top Eugene Kelcey Allen. Add trusting faces: Walter Huston's.

For the Look the Same as They Did 15 Years Ago Club: Arthur Brisbane. How lonely everyone who knew him feels when thinking of George Buckley. What's become of Irene Bordoni? Not many since the late William F. Brann can be so angry in print as Henry L. Mencken. Study in calm: Burns Mantle.

Patsy Kelly's name for a shoe horn: A heel-getter-in. Lady Furness ought to be swell singing a torch song. Nobody can look more the imperious lady than Mrs. Oliver Harriman. Manhattan's deathless cry: "Step on it!" No wonder France won't pay us: The Salon Azure at the Coq Rouge is renamed Jardin d'Ete.

Choice for King of the Stuffed Shirts: Nicholas Murray Butler. Buddy Rogers didn't let a film eclipse end his career. So many have. Add Broadway comebacks, too: John Steele, the tenor. The Havana Post calls this the wonder column. The wonder is, I suppose, that I get paid for it.

New York newspaper women are far more efficiently organized than the men. Their yearly Front Page Ball is a caper that brings out the biggities from the current First Lady in Washington to the reigning authors and stage [illegible]tars. Also there is a camara[illegible]rie among the lady writers in [illegible]w York that is unknown to [illegible]r brothers. [illegible]n Chapman, the columnist, finds an amusing reaction among sophisticated first nighters. In a dancing musical show Tamara Geva does a big ballet scene. It is a travesty and the only realization that it was came from the guffaws in the balcony.

In another musical revue there was a bizarre rhinestone number, designed to be so blatantly overdone that it would forever end those glittering spectacles. Yet the top drawer premiere audience accepted it with a gasp as a beautiful scene. One of the critics muffed the burlesque idea.

James Gordon Bennett had a penchant for outlawing names of enemies, and there was a Sacred Cow list in the Herald editorial rooms a foot long. But he often relented, and their permissibility was restored by cable from Paris.

There was one phrase that to Bennett, however, was anathema. It was the hyphenated "dinner-dance." He insisted it should be dinner and dance and woe unto the violator thereof. He was irritated, too, by reporting that someone was "on a ship." He insisted it should be, to be correct, "in a ship."

Bing Crosby coming East for his vacation and bringing his string of horses as well as a maid for his wife, a governess and nurse for his children and his own private secretary, is something for the students of American Opportunity.

A little more than six years ago, Crosby's name was lost in the collective billing of The Three Rhythm Boys. He was the one who tapped a cymbal with a tenor drum stick while beedle-de-bohing as a feature between tunes of the Paul Whiteman orchestra. Today he's reputedly a millionaire and on top of the world.

That sailors are among the better customers for the rented rowboats in Central Park is not a comic paper creation. The rowing season is in full swing and in the twilight gobs and their girls form nearly half the patronage. Oddly, these are more often seamen just in port from world cruises. Now and then a town celebrity goes in for a little row-boating. Herb Roth once got a sketch of Caruso in an early morning, sculling. O. Henry is said to have whiled away some lonely hours there, too.

The ancient jehus with their equally ancient herdics are still drooping like so many moulting sparrows on their perches across from the Plaza this summer. Many thought last summer marked their last stand—about four were left. This evening I counted seven. Rheumy eyed statues of dispair. One in particular was a Clemenceau gone to seed. All seemed to have lost energy to call out for fares.

There used to be one who intoned with a sheepish grin: "Kerridge lady. Very exclusive!" But he now merely sits and sucks at a charred cob pipe. One thing is strikingly noticeable. And taxicab drivers could study profitably the jehu's concern for neatness. When not dreaming he is using a whisk broom or polishing rag.

He was an old grump whose music hall seat was behind one occupied by a collegiate flibbertigibbet who twisted, squirmed and finally slid down on his neck with his knees in the air. Right then the grump nudged him and snorted: "What's the matter, Bub. Worms?"

"Dear Govt."

By Winston Norman

Mr. Roosevelt
VERY PERSONAL
Wash., D. C.

Dear Mr. President:

This here letter is a secrit, Mr. President, so don't let nobody open it. I figgered I better tell you the Republicans is haveing a Convenshun in Cleveland next weak, so I have took a r. r. Train to go back & snoop on them for you.

Well Mr. President, you will wonder how I got where I am at. Well, a bunch of us Boon-doglers was talking the other day & one of them says, "My friends, I am woried," he says, "them Republicans wants to overthrow the Govt next weak, they are going to run Mr. Roosevelt for Ex-President of the U. S."

We seen where that would gum up our Boon-dogling, so another man says, "I move we send a Democrat to snoop on them Torys. Our President don't have no time for poiatics, he is too busy takeing care of the voters with WPA Relief."

"But why dont the Pres. send Mr. Farley back there, disgized as a Republican?" I says.

"He can't do that," says another man, "because him & Mr. Farley is allready disgized as a Democrat and somebody might find out what they really was."

So we seen there wasen't nothing to do but send a Ofisial Snooper to Cleveland, and I got the job Mr. Pres.

I guess I will be the only Democrat in Cleveland next week, the self-respecting ones will move out of town when the Republicans begins to get thick.

Well, I will cloze now, Mr. Pres., the Train just slowd down & some gentlemen jumped on board, they look like Republican Deligates to me.

Mr. Farley's 'Faux Pas'

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

Edwin C. Hill

The French would say our smiling and usually genial No. 1 postmaster, Mr. Jim Farley, had been guilty of a "faux pas," but back in New York they would say Big Jim "put his foot in his mouth," and both expressions mean the same thing. They apply to a remark which the postmaster general made in a speech in Michigan, which remark may come back to haunt him time and again during the campaign.

Indeed, it might prove to be an important factor in the outcome because the history of American politics is filled with cases where the ill-spoken word has elected and defeated Presidents. Mr. Farley was slamming Governor Landon on the ground that the Governor was inexperienced, that he had not been heard of a few years ago and that he was being put forward now as a candidate for President "because he was elected Governor of a typical Prairie State."

Then the deluge fell upon Mr. Farley's head. Representative Short of Missouri said in the House of Representatives:

"Mr. Farley asks who in the world was Alf Landon and who knew anything about him two years ago. I retort, who ever heard of Jim Farley two years ago?"

VAN BUREN SUFFERED

It is not quite one hundred years ago that a national political campaign in this country was decided upon such a phrase as "who is he, he comes only from a typically Prairie State." It was a Tammany man who said it, too, one of Martin Van Buren's lieutenants.

The Whig Party had nominated General William Henry Harrison to oppose Van Buren, the Democrat. It seemed rather certain that "The Little Giant" of New York, the shrewdest politician the country has ever known, would be returned for another four years in the White House. But one of his injudicious supporters, making a speech, flipped off this challenge: "Who is Harrison, why he lives in a log cabin and drinks hard cider."

That gentleman found out to his sorrow that the spoken word is often a boomerang. The Whigs took up the log cabin and hard cider sneer and made it their campaign cry. Those were the days when campaign songs were the big thing, and the Whigs of the country took to singing this refrain:

And lounge on his cushioned setee.

Drinks only his own cider, too.
He plows his own ground, he feeds his own hogs—
This hero of Tippecanoe.

BLAINE'S MISFORTUNE

Forty-four years after the log cabin indictment occurred the "Rum, Romanism and Rebellion" incident which deprived James G. Blaine of the presidency and elected Grover Cleveland, the first Democrat since Buchanan. The campaign was near its close, and Blaine was being counted in when it was decided that a reception should be held for him in the Fifth Avenue Hotel in New York city, where he would meet the Protestant clergy.

There had been no religious issue in the campaign. In fact, Maine's Plumed Knight was well in favor with Catholics as well as Protestants. But it remained for the Rev. Samuel D. Burchard to wax into a flight of alliterative oratory and to tell Mr. Blaine that the gathering would never ally itself with the party whose antecedents had been rum, Romanism and rebellion.

Blaine did not refer to this allusion in his speech. In fact, he had not heard it or caught its significance. But it defeated him, although the Roman Catholic hierarchy urged that it not be used against him. It has happened before and it will happen again that a catch phrase is sometimes more important in an election than great issues.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Elsie Robinson

For years after he went away I could not stand that painting. It broke me to look at it—thinking of the gallant years we'd had together, and the love that had linked us like fire through poverty and pain. Each morning, seeing his face afresh, I'd sob—crying out in awful loneliness and rebellion. Each morning, seeing his face, I'd hate the day ahead—go into it bankrupt.

(How well you know that feeling, poor child, don't you!)

Then slowly my grief began to grow up. I began to see that great love should mean more than bankruptcy to the one who is left behind—that it should have a more worthy and glorious memorial than bitterness.

DOWN TO GRAVE

It did not come to me easily or quickly, this awakening, for—though I did not realize it—I had gone down into the grave with him and did not want to rise again. Though I went automatically through the motions of living, there were long months when I still huddled in the darkness of death—clutching his loved body close to my heart in mad sorrow—holding it like a dreadful shield against Life.

Nor would I see how sickly and shameful such surrender was—nor how dreadfully it betrayed his brave and beautiful memory—

But, little by little, I learned to live again. Little by little the courage came to rise up from that grave and live his love out proudly, as he would have wished it to be lived. Now, when I come into my work cabin of a morning and meet his challenging smile, I no longer weep—

Instead, I lift my hand and laugh—"SALUTE, DEAR!"

Perhaps you do not know that gay toast which the Italians give when they raise their glass of wine. Only one word, but in it rings all the joy and pride of life. It is a promise as well as a toast, that word "Salute!" A promise to live gaily, thankfully, abundantly—with shining pride. It is indeed like a trumpet call to arms!

So each morning, coming to my work, I stand before my boy's dear face, raise my hand and cry "Salute!" And wherever he is, I know that he hears and is glad.

"SALUTE, DEAR!"

For they do not want our sorrow—our dear dead—nor deserve it. Prolonged grief is not an honor but an insult—a cruel cheapening of something that once was the finest thing in life. If love was a good bargain once, it is a good bargain always, and deserved something better than the vicious tribute of tears. Seeing those tears, who will want to love? Who will believe that love is worth its price?

Do you feel that love is worth anything it costs? Do you believe that you are stronger, richer because love once came your way?

Then prove it by your bearing now! Do not shame your love by bearing it as a blight. Hold it high—as a beacon for all the world to see!

Rise from your grave and cry—"SALUTE, DEAR!"

No sunshade and no optical device ever invented was such a rest cure for a man's eyes as the passing of the recent rash of platinum blondes.

This is the time of year when husbands begin thinking of their summer vacations—and wives put the last finishing touches on the plans they made six months ago as to where and how it will be spent.

To a man, a love-affair is like a mystery story. All the fun and excitement consists in guessing what will happen next. But a woman always wants to read the last chapter first—and then turn back and start right in the middle of the story.

When a man finds himself paying two or three allotments of alimony, he should make up his mind to stop changing wives and begin husbanding his change.
